E. D. Shaw.
A Stalin Story.
Ham and Eggs 25 Cents.
Many Have Despaired.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

E. D. SHAW died yesterday in New York City. He was a good newspaperman, an able publisher and editor, and a good friend. Newspapers that he touched were successful, in Washington, Chicago, Milwaukee.

Frank A. Munsey said of him, to this writer:

"He's the best man that I have."

One who purchased the Washington Times from Munsey, and was fortunate enough to secure Mr. Shaw's services, wished to increase his salary. "Not until the Times earns the money," was Mr. Shaw's reply, and he meant it. He made the Times earn the money, and much more.

HE WAS A good man, loyal, a credit to his profession. The ablest merchant in Washington said:

"I need no better guarantee than Mr. Shaw's word."

Everybody who knew him would have said the same.

A LADY says she was expelled from Russia because she wrote about a Jewish boy who saved a man from drowning in the Black Sea. The man, according to the story, which is, presumably, untrue, said:

"My name is Stalin. I am powerful. Ask what you like, and I will grant it."

The little Jewish boy is supposed to have answered:

"If your name is Stalin, all I ask is that you don't tell anybody I saved you."

FIRST, A LITTLE Jewish boy would be too intelligent to make such an answer. Second, Stalin would be too intelligent to expel anybody for an amusing yarn.

The lady's husband, a capable engineer, says, what is more important, that Russia has a gigantic surplus of anthracite coal, acres upon acres covered with piles of it, and the plan is to dump all that coal on the United States.

The Russians will find it hard dumping, what with cheap oil and powdered soft coal, that makes no smoke. We have quite an anthracite surplus of our own.

IN SAN FRANCISCO, according to Bruce Dennis, editor and owner of the Klamath Falls (Ore.) Herald and News, "ham and eggs are selling for two bits," and that, says Mr. Dennis, means that prices have hit bottom.

It is known, according to the Klamath Falls Herald and News, that the surest test of the cost of living is the price of ham and eggs.

Another indication is the fact that in many places eggs without the ham, and raw, have sold as low as 12 cents a dozen and lower.

GANDHI, OF India, "despairs of lasting peace."

He says:

"I have tried my utmost for permanent peace, but I find nature against me."

Big and little men, leaders and followers, have despaired of practically everything, since the beginning of time.

Those that tried to cure slavery despaired often, but slavery is gone. And those that, ages ago, fought against cannibalism, probably despaired, but cannibalism is gone.

War will go in time, but you can't do it by making laws. You must do it by changing human beings, a slow process.

R. M. JONES, of Tulsa, Okla., hears about a British anti-aircraft gun that "throws a shell five and a half miles, 'vertical range' into the air." Mr. Jones adds: "Few planes fly higher," and he thinks battleships can defy airplanes.

But suppose the gun doesn't hit the plane. It is hard to shoot accurately up into the air, and easy, as practice has proved, to drop a bomb accurately.

It is harder to hit a small airplane, going 150 miles an hour, than to hit a big battleship, going 25 miles an hour. An airplane that can drop enough TNT to sink a battleship costs $75,000. A big battleship costs $50,000,000.

IF ANTI-CRAFT guns bring down a bombing plane, that means three men killed. If a TNT shell explodes on the deck of a battleship, or in water near it, and sinks the ship, it may kill a thousand.

If we must have battleships, to provide broad decks for old naval officers, and profits for builders, well and good. But, in addition to furnishing targets for other airplanes, we ought to have airplanes of our own, to attend to enemy ships. WE NEED AIRPLANES.

CAPT. RICKENBACKER, our best fighting flier, will tell Mr. Jones that when he was fighting in Germany, bringing down more than two dozen German planes, he paid no attention to anti-aircraft guns.

Gen. Mitchell, head of our air forces in France, will tell Mr. Jones that, with half a dozen planes, he can sink any battleship afloat. Those interested take good care not to let him prove it.

Pinchot Aide Recommends Commissioner's Recall; Would Subpena Accounts

Developments today in Harrisburg were:

1—Special Counsel Gray asked investigation of Public Service Commissioner Benn's brokerage accounts.

2—Gov. Pinchot denounced the startling suggestion of the anti-Pinchot Senate investigators that the Public Service Commission be placed under Superior Court instead of the governor.

3—A close vote in the House was looked for late today on the Moore bill, which would give Pittsburgh voters the right to decide by referendum whether they want the city-manager form of government.

HARRISBURG, April 14.—(AP.)—Recall of Commissioner James S. Benn, and examination of his bank and check books for the past eight years was recommended to the Senate committee investigating the Public Service Commission by Attorney William A. Gray, special counsel for Gov. Pinchot.

Gray also asked that the records of the Pennsylvania Railroad cost plus contracts be investigated. Disposition of the railroad contingent fund, he said, should be investigated.

These recommendations were contained among others in a letter written by Gray to Chairman

WORKS QUIZ RECORDS STOLEN

Office of Lang Engineer Looted; City Inspector Admits Contractor's Gift

Theft of bid records and the admission of a city inspector that he had accepted a "gift" from a contractor, were among the developments today in the investigation of Attorney Henry Oliver Evans' charges against the Department of Public Works in City Council.

The highlights of the probe were:

1—Chief Engineer Charles M. Reppert revealed that his office had been entered last night and records of bids on bridge contracts stolen.

2—John B. Milvy, city inspector, admitted that he had been presented a "gift" by Joseph J. Darney, "wrecker" of a building in Grant street.

3—Furniture experts and Main & Company auditors check furniture delivered to city home at Mayview.

The stolen records, it is understood, pertained to bridge contracts on Carson street, the Boulevard of the Allies and other important city improvements, under fire in connection with the investigation of Attorney Evans' charges of ineffeciency in the Public Works department.

REVEALS THEFT

The theft was revealed when Attorney Evans asked for a tabulation of bids on bridge work. Reppert said that his office and Spain's rulers in stately court dress recently. King Alfonso today abdicated his throne, left Madrid under heavy guard after a cavalcade of civil guards had escorted Queen Victoria, daughter of England's late Queen Victoria, and other royal figures to British safety.

KING ALFONSO

LAST BOURBON FALLS; ROYAL FAMILY TO FLEE COUNTRY

By THOMAS A. LOAYZA
International News Service.

MADRID, April 14.—The reign of King Alfonso XIII of Spain ended abruptly today when he abdicated his throne as the result of a conclusive repudiation of the monarchy in the provincial elections held throughout the country on Sunday.

The King's abdication was absolute, ending the monarchy in Spain and dissipating the last Bourbon dynasty in Europe.

The royal family, who have been prepared for a sudden departure since yesterday, will leave Madrid this evening by way of the Delicias station, apparently heading for Portugal.

SIGNS DECLARATION

Convinced at last that his was a lost cause, the monarch appended his signature to an abdication declaration prepared by Count de Romanones, one of his staunchest supporters, and Niceto Alcara Zamora, slated to become president of the proposed Spanish republic.

The King's capitulation ended a rule which technically began from the cradle.

He withheld his abdication until no doubt remained in his mind that the provincial elections held throughout the country represented an overwhelming public repudiation of his rule.

The last of the Bourbon kings relinquished his throne at a moment when an unprecedented wave of republicanism was sweeping over the country. Many large cities, notably Barcelona, Albacete and Almeria, had proclaimed a republic in force, throwing out incumbent officials and appointing republicans in their stead.

PORTRAITS TORN DOWN

His last few minutes of kingship found republicans, flushed with their greatest victory since the short-lived republic of 1876, tearing down portraits of the monarch in Barcelona and tossing them into the streets.

The events immediately preceding Alfonso's capitulation came with machine-gun fire rapidity.

Throughout the morning, the monarch apparently remained adamant in his determination to retain his throne and fight to the last ditch for the regal power handed down to him from his ancestors.

His first real change of heart followed a visit paid to the royal palace by the Count de Romanones, who assured him that no course other than abdication was open to him.

REPUBLICAN FLAG UP

Shortly after the announcement of the King's abdication was made public the Republican flag was run up on the staff atop the Madrid postoffice.

A Republican committee, headed by Zamora, will take over the reins of government this evening, with Zamora acting as provisional president until elections can be held to elect a president and members of Parliament.

News of the King's abdication was received in the streets of Madrid with little manifestation, except for a few groups of demonstrators who organized impromptu parades.

In other cities of the country, however, especially in Seville, there were the wildest scenes of rejoicing. Residents danced through the streets, stranger em-

U.S. GUARDS 300 IN NICARAGUA

WASHINGTON, April 14.—(AP.)—The State Department today announced that orders had been dispatched to the commander of the gunboat Asheville to land forces to protect 300 American citizens at Puerto Cabezas, Nicaragua, which is endangered by an advance of Nicaraguan insurgents.

The gunboat commander reported to the Navy Department today that four Americans have been killed and three were missing within the last 48 hours.

Navy Department reports said insurgents threatening Puerta Cabezas are much stronger than at first believed.

They are of the same forces operating in Northwestern Nicaragua under Sandino, Blandon and Pedron. These forces apparently are moving in large bodies across Northern Nicaragua, converging on Puerta Cabezas.

DETROIT, April 14.—(AP.)—The twenty millionth Ford automobile, with Henry Ford at the wheel, was driven to Mr. Ford's estate today and parked beside the first one, which was made in 1893. Edsel Ford rode with his father.

Democrats Take Chicago But Spain Goes Republican

—By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER—

Honors are even. Democrats knocked off Chicago last week. This week the Republicans swept Spain.

Which slapped King Alfonso in the face with a crisis that couldn't be squared with a banquet.

Al had been the kink of Spain ever since they had to tie his crown on to prevent it from falling in his nurse's lap.

It is a Republican victory. But it couldn't be imported soon enough to save Chicago from the Democrats.

There's only one method of successful electioneering. That's the Australian ballot system. You drop your vote in a kangaroo's pouch. When they catch the kangaroo they register your vote.

DEMPSEYS SPAR OVER DIVORCE

LOS ANGELES, April 14.—(AP.)—The prospects of seeing Jack Dempsey in another "battle of the century"—this time with his wife as opponent and the divorce court as the arena—were dimmed slightly today by an exchange of statements in which they almost called off the fight.

To Jack's statement that he had gone to Reno, Nev., to get a divorce because his wife, Estelle Taylor of the movies, had proclaimed a decision to follow her career and had told him to "get out," the actress replied yesterday that she had not known of any plans for a divorce and that

Fair Skies Hail Opening Of Baseball Season

Associated Press.

"Play Ball" said the weather man today in the eight major league cities where the embattled athletes heave at each other in the opening skirmishes of the 1931 baseball war.

Clear skies greeted the early risers in all fronts according to reports to the Associated Press, with the promise they would continue until the last man was out in all the cities but St. Louis.

The Chicago Cubs and Pittsburgh Pirates, offering the stellar attraction in the National League, found the sun waiting them today in Chicago with the prediction that the day would continue fair and warm and that 45,000 fans would be on hand. French was slated to pitch for the Pirates and Root was to do the hurling for the Cubs.

In Washington, where the Japanese cherry trees already are in bloom, fair and warm weather greeted President Hoover and the 25,000 to 28,000 fans who are expected to find their way to the Senators' Park to see them battle with the world champion Philadelphia Athletics and to watch the chief executive throw out the first ball.

PIRATES, CUBS DRAW CROWD

By CHARLES J. DOYLE,
Staff Correspondent.

WRIGLEY FIELD, CHICAGO, April 14.—Although the weather had turned a bit cloudy and cool at 1 o'clock, Chicago fans stormed the home of the Cubs this afternoon eager to see their favorite in action against the Pirates in one of the biggest opening days Chicago has yet enjoyed. Hundreds of anxious fans formed lines early this morning and thousands were rewarded for their loyalty by seeing gates to unreserved section thrown open.

Something like 20,000 were taken care of in this manner, the day broke with the sun beaming down giving the whole setting one of joyous springtime and one to cheer the heart of every lover of baseball. The brightness continued until the noon hour when clouds began to gatner, but there was little or no suggestion of rain.

French will oppose Root.

MOORE'S GIFT RECALLED

Abdication of King Alfonso today served to focus attention on the $100,000 bequest which the late Alexander P. Moore made to Queen Victoria, of Spain, for her charities.

Moore, one-time United States ambassador to Spain, specified that the Queen should apply the money to her hospital charities. Whether her departure from Spain will affect the bequest was an unsettled point today.

WILL CONTESTED

The contest against Moore's will, begun by his step-daughter, Mrs. Dorothy Russell Calvit, daughter of Lillian Russel, is to be resumed in Common Pleas Court tomorrow. This is the contest which has delayed the carrying out of the bequest to the Queen.

While he was ambassador to Spain from 1923 to 1925, Moore was regarded as a good friend of the Queen and of King Alfonso. They were seen together frequently in Madrid.

LAUGHLIN IN MADRID

The present ambassador to Spain, Irwin B. Laughlin, of Pittsburgh, was in Madrid today, undoubtedly vitally interested in the affairs of state.

16 ESCAPE BLAZING TUNNEL WHERE 10 OTHERS DIED

HIDE IN AIR CHAMBER 12 HOURS

10 Firemen and 6 Workmen Fight Way Out of Shaft Through Smoke and Gas

CHICAGO, April 14.—(AP) Ten firemen and six workmen emerged alive at 9 a. m. today from the blazing sanitary district tunnel that had been a tomb for 10 of their fellows during the night.

Led by Division Fire Marshal Patrick Peirce, the survivors crawled unaided to the surface through the shaft that had been an avenue to death for the 10 firemen and tunnel workers trapped in lethal gas and unbearable heat.

They had saved their lives through 12 hours imprisonment by sealing themselves in safety air chambers at an end of the new sewage disposal tunnel.

AIR SHAFT CLEARED

Heat that melted the rubber suit of a diver and fumes that choked and blinded the daring rescue squads had forestalled thorough search of the bore until a new smoke-ejecting device rushed here from Kenosha, Wis., was applied to the air shaft.

Its double-barreled pipes sucked the smoke from the chamber 50 feet underground and forced compressed air down, clearing a path to safety for the entombed men. Once on the surface, they were rushed to St. Anthony's Hospital, where 28 other firemen already were patients suffering from injuries and the effects of gas.

THOUSANDS WATCH

Thousands milled about the entrance of the tunnel.

The victims were pitiable sights as they were carried to the surface, their faces and clothes grimy with mud, moisture and smoke.

Two priests stood at the entrance of the tunnel, ready to administer last rites.

The structure within the bore hampered rescue work throughout the night. Firemen's hose could not be dragged into it, and the use of chemicals would have been fatal in the narrow confines of the tunnel.

It was said a workman added to the conflagration when he entered the tunnel to close steel fire doors and dropped a burning candle into a heap of sawdust.

INVESTIGATION BEGUN

A policeman was killed near the scene when struck by an ambulance on the way to the hospital with injured.

Hundreds of policemen and all of the fire-fighting equipment in the city were pressed into service.

Coroner Herman N. Bundesen has begun an investigation.

Acts of heroism were numerous. Murray Cahill, a foreman, led one squad of firemen into the smoke-filled tunnel and remained until the smoke overcame them all—despite their gas masks.

KILLS BOARDER, SELF, BURNS 2

WOOSTER, O., April 14.—(AP)—Ellis McGregor, 65, living near here, ran amuck at his home today, poured gasoline on his wife and stepson, set them afire, fatally stabbed a boarder with a butcher knife, and then committed suicide.

The slain boarder was Clayton McAfee, 50.

Mrs. McGregor, 40, and her son by a former marriage, Harold Riddle, 25, were taken to a Lodi hospital in a critical condition. Doctors said they would probably die.

McGregor, a stonemason, was found dead in a shed behind his house. He had hanged himself with a log chain.

Nautilus Mechanic Sold Business to Make Trip

By HERMAN GIESKE

YONKERS, N. Y., April 14.—Harry Zoeller, of Yonkers, who's headed for the North Pole, is one of the principal motor mechanics of the trans-Polar submarine Nautilus, now moored at his home town.

He is 33, married, and has three children, Edward 12, Josephine 10 and Henry, 7. They live in Bridgeport, Conn., and about the two happiest boys in Bridgeport are Eddie and Henry Zoeller, for they exclaim delightedly:

"Our Dad's going to the North Pole with Sir Hubert Wilkins."

Zoeller is almost equally enthusiastic. For many years he has been engaged in the submarine game. He has been down so often as a member of the test crew of the Lake Torpedo Boat Company, that diving in a metal whale is quite commonplace.

Of the Wilkins expedition he said:

"I thought so much of the trip that I sold out my automobile brake business in order to go."

SURPRISES DUE IN GIRL MART

SAN DIEGO, Cal., April 14.—(INS.)—Trial of Alexander Pantages, theatrical magnate, and his four co-defendants, continuing today, was expected to provide even more revelations than developed yesterday, when Pantages opened his "million-dollar" defense against "girl bazar" charges.

Hundreds of persons, anxious to hear details of the charges facing Pantages, John P. Mills, Jesse Shreve, Olive Clark Day and William Jobelman, were barred yesterday from Justice of the Peace A. L. Mundo's courtroom, where the preliminary hearing was held.

Among the developments arising out of the five defendants' asserted violations of the state juvenile act, by leading young girls into "lives of dependency," were:

1—Helen Camille Livingston, said to be 17, failed to recognize Shreve, millionaire business man, whom she accuses of treating her improperly.

2—Lydia Nitto, 17, accuser of Pantages, admitted on the witness stand she had told the Los Angeles District Attorney that the showman had never mistreated her.

3—Defense and prosecution lawyers clashed when Attorney Jerry Giesler, counsel for Pantages, tried to question Miss Nitto about her past and "luxurious treatment" accorded her by the Los Angeles District Attorney.

4—John P. Mills, wealthy broker, denied through his attorneys that he will turn state's evidence in a hope for immunity.

5—Justice of the Peace Mundo today will rule on the admissability of the story of Miss Nitto's past life.

FOUR ANTI-DRY FINDINGS TOLD WOMEN

Mrs. Charles H. Sabin Says Sentiment Against Law Prevails Through Country

WASHINGTON, April 14. (AP.) — Four findings of sentiment against prohibition—among them the Wicker sham report—were listed today by Mrs. Charles H. Sabin, of New York, before the second meeting of the Women's Organization for National Prohibition Reform.

The law enforcement commissioners' separate reports Mrs. Sabin termed a document that "should be adopted as the handbook of the anti-prohibitionists."

OPPOSITION SHOWN

She named as other indicators of opposition to the Eighteenth Amendment:

"Increase in our own membership.

"Change in the complexion of Congress.

"Refusal of more and more of the states to spend money and effort for the enforcement of a law repugnant to their people."

As Mrs. Jesse W. Nicholson had called upon the National Woman's Democratic Law Enforcement League to support prohibition above their party, Mrs. Sabin demanded that "patriotism shall be placed above party," asserting:

"Prohibition is the paramount political issue of the day."

But the debate, she claimed, "is now upon the best method of ridding ourselves of its (prohibition's) admittedly glaring and ever more and more threatening evils."

CHARGES UPHELD

Every charge her organization brought against prohibition, Mrs. Sabin declared, was "fully substantiated by the President's Commission on Law Observance and Enforcement, adding:

"Though by some feat of Japanese sword-swallowing, the commission managed in its summing up as a unit to eat its own words, nevertheless for the findings which it spread upon the record, and for the plain demand of 10 of its 11 members for repeal or revision, we owe it a debt of gratitude."

Asking prohibitionists to "wake from their dream and join with us in ridding the country of this (prohibition) curse," she warned:

"If they refuse, they, and they alone, must render an accounting to the generations to come."

she would fight the case if it materialized.

Asserting the former heavyweight boxing champion had "no grounds for divorce," Miss Taylor denied they had lived apart for nearly two years and said she had been maintaining the Dempsey home in Los Angeles. Dempsey's original statement said Miss Taylor had forsaken domestic life for her career.

However, Miss Taylor conferred with her lawyer regarding the possibility of instituting divorce proceedings in her behalf in Los Angeles. She announced the filing of any action here would be held in abeyance pending receipt of "definite word" as to Jack's intentions.

Miss Taylor's statement led Dempsey to comment in Reno that if she had changed her mind and is willing to give up her career and become a "real home maker" a divorce might be avoided.

Asked what she would do if Dempsey wanted a reconciliation, Miss Taylor said:

"I don't know. First I would try to find out whether he made all those accusations he is said to have made. Just now I don't know what my feelings are."

POSTOFFICE JOB THREATENED BY STRIKE

Agents of 60 Organizations Of Union Men Meet; Hear Complaints of Workers

Business agents of 60 organizations connected with the Building Trades Council of Pittsburgh met today to discuss the labor situation involving Booth & Flinn, contractors on the new postoffice job, and Local No. 3 of the structural iron workers.

At the conclusion of the business agents' meeting, it was announced that 19 men had been called off the George Westinghouse Bridge project. Company officials said four men had been discharged and there was no strike. There was no change in the postoffice building situation.

The contracting firm has replaced the structural iron workers on the postoffice with members of the pile drivers' union, not affiliated with the Building Trades Council here.

Labor leaders declared the cause of the trouble was the discharge last Saturday of 22 members of structural iron workers, who were paid $1.50 per hour by the Booth and Flinn Company. These men are affiliated with the Pittsburgh Building Trades Council. They were replaced by members of Local No. 2264, of the pile drivers, affiliated with the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners, whose pay rate is $1.31¼ per hour.

George Hockensmith, superintendent of Booth & Flinn said:

"No iron workers struck. They were paid off because of an inferior job of pile driving, some of the piles being from 15 to 18 inches out of alignment. They were replaced by union pile drivers at regular wages of that organization.

"About a half-dozen open-shop carpenters were laid off and replaced by union carpenters. There was no change in wages.

"One electrician was laid off yesterday. He had failed to complete certain work in the time specified. The company is finishing the work and installing the generator with our own open-shop electrician.

"Instead of 15 men going on strike on the Westinghouse Bridge, four were laid off because they were not devoting sufficient time to their work. Our open-shop electrician is getting $1.50 per hour, the union scale."

A walkout of 60 electrical workers on the new Gulf Building today was declared to be a minor case, and not related to the Booth & Flinn postoffice trouble.

SEEK TO UPSET REPEAL VETO

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., April 14.—(AP.)—Opponents of Illinois' prohibition enforcement laws today were girding their forces, they announced, for an attempt to override Gov. Louis L. Emmerson's veto of the O'Grady-McDermott bill, which called for their repeal.

Representative Thomas O'Grady, co-author of the repeal measure, said in Chicago that an attempt to pass the bill over the governor's veto would be made this week, but leaders in the "dry" forces maintained that such an effort would prove futile. The "drys" said their strength in both the House and the Senate was sufficient to block any success for their opponents. The National W. C. T. U. in Evanston issued a statement asserting "the veto makes Gov. Emmerson a national figure."

PROBE OF BENN DEALS ASKED

Earnest, of the investigating committee, on April 8, which was placed in the committee records today.

Gray also urged that Commissioner Benn's son-in-law, Walter L. Morgan, should be required to produce his bank books and check books and books of account "so that it may be ascertained whether such account was used to cover transactions in which Commissioner Benn was interested.

MAY SCAN ACCOUNTS

The Governor's counsel also asked that the brokerage accounts of Eastman Dillon & Co. be subpenaed for the purpose of showing transactions under Morgan's name "especially with reference to the Philadelphia Electric Company stock which I am advised he bought in large lots" in the period beginning in 1924. Gray said it was questionable whether Morgan has sufficient funds of his own for that purpose.

Loring Dam, vice president of the brokerage company, should be subpenaed to testify concerning Morgan's account, Gray said, Gray wrote:

"It was stated to me that he knew that that account belonged to Commissioner Benn."

Coolidge Hails Visit Of Japanese Royalty

NORTHAMPTON, Mass., April 14.

To the Editor of The Sun-Telegraph:

The pleasure with which the people will welcome the brother of the Emperor of Japan, Prince Takamatsu, and his wife, Princess Kikuko, will be very deep and sincere. It will exist not only because of the royal rank of the visitors, but because they represent a nation for whom we have the highest regard, and with whom we have always been on terms of peace and friendship.

Mr. Coolidge

Those sentiments are the real foundation of progress. The acquaintance that comes from the contact of one people with another through travel increases the bonds of understanding and sympathy. Trade is increased and common interests are developed. Our commerce with Japan is large and important for both countries. But after all friendship between people is the important thing. If that is on a sound basis, economic relations will adjust themselves.

In stating that he desired to see our art treasures the Prince was better advised than many of our own people. He will find them of a richness and extent seldom surpassed. Whatever we may have of interest will be gladly displayed to the Prince and Princess and we hope they may take home with them the realization of our admiration for Japan.

CALVIN COOLIDGE.

TROUBLED KINGDOM

King Alfonso occupied himself during the early years of the century in trying to straighten out the troubles of his kingdom. The Spanish-American War had greatly impoverished Spain, and there was much discontent among the lower classes.

With the outbreak of the World War, Spain remained neutral, mainly through the influence of the Vatican. Alfonso threw himself whole-heartedly into the task of helping the various governments in the exchange of prisoners. He spent large sums of money in helping destitute prisoners of war and aiding them in repatriation, while he gave generously towards Red Cross work.

With the conclusion of the World War, affairs in Spain began to take a bad turn. It was found that the Spanish government and Parliament were ridden with corruption to an extent never before known, and with the subsequent outbreak of the Riff revolt in Morocco, and the large losses to Spanish troops, discontent spread rapidly throughout the country.

The people were taxed to the limit of their endurance, and things were coming to a bad pass when, in September, 1923, Gen. Primo de Rivera, then in control of troops in Barcelona, staged a coup d'etat, threw out the existing government and established a military dictatorship, with himself as dictator.

This coup was sponsored by Alfonso himself, and for six years he allowed Primo to rule with an iron hand.

DE RIVERA FLEES

De Rivera himself had trouble keeping the various radical elements in check, and the opposition became so consolidated that in 1929 he was forced to flee the country. He died a few weeks later in Paris in exile.

Spain's next political ruler was Gen. Damaso Berenguer, handpicked choice of the King, whose regime was supposed to be a "transitional government" between the dictatorship and the return of parliamentary rule.

A few weeks ago, Alfonso published a decree returning constitutional guarantees to the people, and announcing that elections to the Cortes would take place on March 1 to 15. The various political parties, however, refused to participate and, as a result, Berenguer submitted his resignation.

The King lived up to his reputation as an astute politician, and Jose Sanchez Guerra, one-time rebel who was exiled for leading a plot against Alfonso, was intrusted with the task of forming a cabinet.

GUERRA FAILS

When he failed, Admiral Juan Batiste Aznar, staunch, rock-ribbed Royalist, who never before had any political experience, formed a cabinet of decidedly monarchistic texture.

King Alfonso then reaffirmed restitution of constitutional privileges to the people and set April 13 as the date for provincial elections, to be followed later in the sumemr by parliamentary elections to choose the personnel of the first Cortes (parliament) to sit since abrogation of the constitution by Primo de Rivera's dictatorship in 1923.

The excitement gradually died down, and King Alfonso rested firm in the belief that, while growing Republican sentiment doubtless would force him to curb the absolute monarchy under which he had ruled, there was little or no danger of his enforced abdication.

The day before the elections were to take place, the Monarchists were supremely confident. A few hours later they were thunder-struck as returns from all sections showed an overwhelming preponderance of Republican votes. Even the clergy, long a bulwark of Royalist strength, had swung over to the Republican cause.

When the first conclusive results became known, it was obvious that the monarchy, the last Bourbon dynasty in Europe, was drawing to a close.

Alfonso himself was stunned and overwhelmed by the elections. He was quoted as saying:

"I feel like a man who has gone to visit the house of a friend only to find that the friend was dead."

ZAMORA ONCE MONARCHIST

MADRID, April 14.—(AP.)—Don Niceto Alcala Zamora, slated to become president of the proposed Spanish republic, once was a staunch Monarchist and a firm supporter of King Alfonso.

He turned against the King, near the beginning of the dictatorship of Gen. Primo de Rivera in 1923, to avenge what he deemed a personal political insult by Gen. Rivera.

In his quest for satisfaction he spent the most of his personal fortune and became the most defiant of the Republican leaders. Arrested for his connection with the revolt of last December he was only recently tried by a court-martial. From his cell, during the time he was under arrest, he continued for a time to conduct his campaign for a Spanish republic.

The court-martial sentenced him to six months' imprisonment on March 23 and on March 25 he was given his freedom on the condition that he refrain from anti-government politics. On April 5 he predicted the establishment of a republic if the Monarchists were defeated in Sunday's elections.

ALFONSO 'GOOD SPORT' TO END

MADRID, April 14.—(INS.)—King Alfonso XIII of Spain signed his abdication decree at 5:15 p. m. today (12:15 p. m. eastern standard time), according to an official announcement.

The moment his pen left the document after signing it with his characteristic flourish, the house of Bourbon as a reigning dynasty went out of existence.

Reports from the council chamber said Alfonso bowed to the inevitable with a show of the old spirit of sportsmanship for which he has become famous throughout the world.

As he left the cabinet room he embraced his ministers with emotion.

ALFONSO KING AT BIRTH

MADRID, April 14.—(INS.)—A king from the moment he was born, Alfonso XIII enjoyed a long reign but not a happy one.

Considered for many years one of the most popular and democratic of European monarchs, Alfonso suffered reverses from the time of the close of the World War, and during the last 11 years saw his once great prestige dwindle in direct proportion to the growth of republican sentiment.

Born May 17, 1886, six months after the death of his father, Alfonso XII, Alfonso XIII automatically became the King of Spain. His mother, the beloved Queen Maria Christina, was appointed regent and ruled the country as sovereign until Alfonso became 16 years of age when, according to Spanish constitutional law, he reached his majority and came into his full kingship.

ONCE POPULAR

Alfonzo at once endeared himself to his subjects by paying personal visits to virtually every part of the country to "get acquainted," as he termed it, with things and people. The popularity he thus gained in his early youth stool him in good stead during the trying times that followed.

A chance visit to England in 1905 brought him into contact with Princess Victoria Eugenie, of Battenberg, daughter of Princess Beatrice and a niece of King George. It was a case of love at first sight, Alfonso becoming immediately enamored of this handsome and charming, typically English girl.

After a short courtship, the couple were married at Madrid on May 31, 1906.

BOMB AT WEDDING

Even at this time, however, there were among Spain's population many radical political elements, including many Republican die-hards who had never become reconciled to re-establishment of the monarchy after the republic of 1876.

Their greeting to the bridal couple was a bomb hurled at the couple's wedding carriage. The King and his new Queen escaped with a mere shaking-up, but 28 innocent bystanders were killed and almost 100 injured by the explosion.

From the beginning, Alfonso had to cope with the Republican elements. Attempts upon his life were frequent, and through the years it was freely predicated that the last reigning Bourbon dynasty in Europe would fall and a republic be proclaimed in its place.

Alfonso's attitude toward the regal state was a peculiar one. The only post-war autocrat in Europe, he steadfastly maintained he had done his best to carry out a difficult duty. He once said:

"Royalty is not a vocation one would choose, but a duty that is imposed upon me. I have always done my duty, and that is a deep satisfaction for my conscience."

SEES DAUGHTER KIDNAPED

UNIONTOWN, Pa., April 14.—Forced into an automobile in front of her home today, Miss Elizabeth Kimberly, 20, was kidnaped in sight of her mother, Mrs. Charles Kimberly, of Coffey street.

Both Mrs. Kimberly and her kidnaped daughter screamed, the mother says, but the car continued at full speed and disappeared.

Mrs. Kimberly told officers she recognized the man at the wheel of the car as Frank Shaner, of Charleroi, whom she forbade to come to the Kimberly home.

A warrant charging Shaner and his companion, "John Doe," with kidnaping was sworn by Mrs. Kimberly before a local alderman.

BERKELEY SPRINGS, W. Va., April 14.—Chester Giles, 45, father of three children, still was missing today, and was believed drowned when he rolled, during his sleep, into the Potomac river while on a [illegible] trip with relatives Saturday night.

Flier, Film Bride, Plan Visit to Pittsburgh

NEW YORK, April 14.—(INS.)—Lillian Roth, motion picture actress, and William C. Scott, aviator, of Pittsburgh, were honeymooning here today following their secret marriage in Atlanta last Saturday, Miss Roth told International News Service:

"It was all very romantic. I met Bill about six months ago down at the aviation field in San Antonio, Tex. He wanted me to take a flight with him. I had always said I would never go up in an airplane. But I went up on my first plane flight and that was the beginning.

"We decided a short time ago that we would get married and here we are.

"Am I a flyng fan now? I should so so. I hope some day I will be able to get a flying license of my own.

"Our plans now are indefinite, although we shall go to my husband's home in Pittsburgh for a while as soon as I can fulfill my professional contracts.

"Of course, we are very happy."

BAN ON BONUS VOTE DENIED

TRENTON, N. J., April 14.—(AP.)—Vice Chancellor Backes in an opinion filed today directed that stockholders of Bethlehem Steel Corporation might ballot upon the cash bonus system inaugurated by Charles M. Schwab in 1917, but that the vote may neither be recorded nor announced until sanctioned by the court.

The court decision denying the petition of 22 stockholders paved the way for consideration of the bonus question at the annual meeting at noon today in Newark.

The vice chancellor took no action on the stockholders' application to restrain the payment of further bonus pending final hearing in their suit to recover as much of the $36,000,000 alleged to have been paid for bonuses, as the court may hold to have been excessive.

The payments of $1,600,000 in 1929 to the president, Eugene G. Grace, and large sums to other officers have been attacked by the minority group as "excessive." They claim that the total amount paid over a period of years is about 80 per cent of the amount distributed in dividends.

CORINTO, Nicaragua, April 14.—(AP.)—Col. Frederick L. Bradmann, who was in charge of United States Marines in Managua after the earthquake of a fortnight ago, has left Nicaragua for San Francisco for a vacation because of his health. FATHER OF TWO SENT TO PRISON

Clifton A. Cassidy, 35, of 613 East Ohio street, must go to Western Penitentiary for the next two years, and his two children must spend the same period in the Juvenile Detention Home.

Cassidy was sentenced in Criminal Court today after being convicted on four charges of robbery. He told Judge Ambrose B. Reid that his wife had deserter him and their two children—a boy, 6, and a girl, 8. He added that because of a spine injury he was forced to wear a cast. Judge Reid sentenced him to two to 20 years and accepted Prosecutor Earle R. Jackson's recommendation that the children be sent to the detention home.

Police Radio Broadcast Put Into Operation

Station WPDU, Pittsburgh's new police broadcasting station, set up to combat crime, was put into operation today.

Two radio-equipped autos, one filled with detectives, the other with Public Safety Director James M. Clark, Police Supt. Peter P. Walsh and Assistant Supt. Ben Marshall cruised the city, alert for crime messages broadcast from Mt. Washington.

First tests of the new station were conducted from 1 to 5 a. m. today and satisfied Clark. H. E. J. Smith, of the Bell Telephone Laboratories, reported that the signals were received as far away as 30 miles and that only one "dead spot," where the messages could not be picked up, was discovered—the Liberty Tubes.

Many radio fans will be able to pick up the police broadcasts by turning the dial to the stopping point—below 199 meters.

It was understood in usually reliable quarters that five of eight members of President Uriburu's cabinet would resign either today or tomorrow.

P. S. C. COUNSEL DEFENDS BODY

HARRISBURG, April 14.—(AP.)—Counsel for the Public Service Commission has transmitted to Chairman William H. Earnest, of the Senate utilities investigating committee, "a summary of the situation disclosed at the hearings."

The letter, signed by Arthur H. Hull, of Harrisburg, and Ira Jewell Williams, of Philadelphia, concluded:

"The complaints against the commission have their roots in ignorance, real or assumed, of the powers and functions of the commision under the law; or in antagonism to the principles of the Constitution of the United States and the Constitution and laws of this Commonwealth.

"The commission is appointed by the Legislature to exercise the Legislature's powers of regulating public service companies. The Legislature should not countenance unjustifiable efforts to impair public confidence in the body which it has created."

Outlook of Trout Season Bad Due To Drought

BELLEFONTE, Pa., April 14.—Centre County fishermen are pessimistic over the outlook for the trout fishing season, which opens tomorrow.

The prolonged drought of last summer and winter played havoc with the mountain trout. Most of the streams dried up and thousands of trout caught in the deeper pools were unable to get either up or down and fell an easy prey to animals and birds.

Bank Incorporation Ban Urged in State

HARRISBURG, April 14.—(AP.)—Incorporation of banks, trust companies or title companies would be prohibited until June 1, 1941, by a bill offered in the House by Representative Burns, Philadelphia.

ELECTION CODE PLAN CHANGED

HARRISBURG, April 14.—The State Senate has revealed a plan to sidetrack the revised election code backed by the Pennsylvania Elections Association, but to salvage some of the changes it proposed. The revised code is sponsored by Senator Frank J. Harris, of Crafton.

For that purpose, another code gathering present statutes into one act but making no changes, has been reported from the Senate Elections Committee by Senator Harris, who also is sponsor of that code. The plan of the Senate is to pass this code after inserting as amendments some of the provisions proposed in the code of the elections association.

The first of these proposed additions, lifted almost bodily out of the election associations measure, has appeared in the Senate.

Sponsored by Senator James S. Boyd, Norristown, it provides for permanent personal registration in every election district in the state, re-establishes registration boards in Pittsburgh, Philadelphia and Scranton, and directs county commissioners to act as a registration commission elsewhere.

The elections association's code has not been shelved definitely, Senator Charles Ealy, Somerset, chairman of the Senate Elections Committee, said, but action upon it as a whole is unlikely.

Senators have opposed it as embracing too many changes at one time.

Shoots 1st Robin Of Season; Man Fined $10

GREENSBURG, Pa., April 14.—John Kominski, of New Kensington, doesn't like robins, so when he saw his first one of the season he seized a gun and shot it.

A neighbor witnessed the episode. A constable was notified and arrested Kominski.

Kominski was haled before Squire J. B. Hagerman, where he paid a fine of $10 for shooting the bird.

CITY MANAGER BILL NEARING HOUSE TEST

Vote Late Today Likely With Outcome Depending On Philadelphia Votes

By ED PRENDERGAST
Staff Correspondent.

HARRISBURG, April 14.—The city manager bill, sponsored by D. Glenn Moore, hung in the balance today, postponed in the House because of the heavy calendar of legislation. It was expected the vote would be taken late today.

Many indications point to victory for the bill, although the count is close and before the roll call might be upset.

BOTH SIDES CONFIDENT

Forces of Mayor Kline, of Pittsburgh, are working furiously to trade votes. Exchanges of promises to support the Harvey Municipal Water League in return for city manager "nay votes" were being made.

Moore, sponsor of the city manager local option bill, worked to gain votes. Some of his cohorts pledged their strength to keep the Philadelphia city manager bill pickled in committee in exchange for "aye votes" for the Moore bill.

Kline adherents claimed potential victory while Moore's supporters were confident. On six votes hangs victory or defeat.

PHILADELPHIA TO DECIDE

Dr. Joseph G. Steedle, leader of the Kline forces, predicted that if passed, the bill would be by two votes, or if lost, then by four votes.

It was understood they were Philadelphia votes.

Philadelphia, with a split delegation but holding the balance of power that can swing the pendulum either way, indicated it might throw the full force of its two-score delegation to the bill, although another report held that only 21 Philadelphians would vote for the bill.

MEMBERS ALERT

While it is purely local to Pittsburgh and third-class cities, the entire Legislature is embroiled over the measure. Legislators in both House and Senate remained in their seats through the long session last night, fearing to leave lest the issue reach the floor in their absence. A record attendance of 208 members was present in the House, the largest of the session and a sign of the battle impending.

The preliminaries of attaching votes to the defense and offense were so hard-fought that Senator Samuel Salus, of Philadelphia, struck and shaken up by an automobile en route to the session, rested a short time to recover from the shock, but appeared in his place a short time afterward.

KLINE FORCES IN FIGHT

The fight against the manager bill is being led by the Kline forces in the House, but it is likely the Allegheny County delegation will split. The Kline group is using every resource to press votes into line, as are friends of Moore.

Opponents of the measure are talking defeat for the bill, declaring it provides no check on an administration headed by a city manager. They are saying:

"Too much power for one man. Both the manager, the controller and other officers are appointed and controlled by the council. The bill provides no check."

FRIENDS ANSWER

Friends of the measure reply:

"There is no reason why the bill should be halted by the Legislature. The people have a right to express their opinion on a form of government that is responsible directly to them. It is a local option bill, and should be passed on to the voters."

This reflected the opinion of Senator Frank J. Harris, who yesterday announced he favored the bill.

Reports of changed alignments on the measure in the various delegations were passing rapidly. Splits in Lackawanna and Luzerne counties were reported last night, but the latter was said to have changed today. Other changes are apt to be made.

WATER BILL HELD UP

Sharing the tension of this bill was the municipal water act, authored by Senator Lanning Harvey, of Wilkes-Barre. It is aimed directly at the Scranton Spring Brook Water Service and would permit communities, through their courts of common pleas, to condemn utilities and construct and operate municipal water plants.

Harvey was assured of considerable support, but this measure shared the uncertainty of the Moore bill.

It was postponed until today for the same reason.

PINCHOT FLAYS COURT CHOICE OF P. S. C.

Declares Senate's Plan Would Drag Appellate Body in Political Mire

HARRISBURG, April 14.—(AP.)—Gov. Pinchot today said that the Senate Investigating Committee's report recommending ouster of the Public Service Commission was a support of his contentions, but he asserted that its plan to give the appointive power to the Superior Court would not only leave the commission in politics, but drag the appellate court in with it.

The Governor said:

"What better testimony could there be to the position I have taken right along than to have the hand picked Senate investigating committee back up my contention that the present Public Service Commission is not fit to hold office.

"And this was the committee whose original purpose was to show that I had been abusing the Public Service Commission and the public utilities without reason.

"But backing up my demand for the abolition of the Public Service Commission isn't everything the majority of the investigating committee did. Having made that highly satisfactory contribution to my war against gouging public utilities, it proceeded (again according to papers) to recommend that the new commission shall be appointed by the Superior Court. The reason alleged for this recommendation is said to have been to take the commission out of politics. As a matter of fact, it would not only leave the commission in politics, but drag the Superior Court in with it. Nothing could be worse."

Renew Opposition To Senate Plan

HARRISBURG, April 14.—A second row over the report of the public utility investigation conducted by the Senate sub-committee has been promised for late today, the day set by the Senate for the final recommendations and report.

A meeting at 4 p. m. and a Judiciary General Committee meeting half an hour later are expected to bring out startling charges, amplifying the bitter battle of yesterday, when the minority members refused to accept the report in part or full. If no agreement is reached, majority and minority reports will be made tonight at a Senate session, or an extension of time sought.

While the differences were promised secrecy, it was learned Senators Buckman and Weingartner objected to the provision set up by the chairman, Senator Earnest, that the power of appointment to the Public Service Commission be transferred from the Governor to the Superior Court.

Associates of the administration and Pinchot supporters, the two senators are said to have pointed out that the Superior Court is where the appeals from the Public Service Commission are taken. Other friends of the administration termed the proposal a ridiculous political gesture to whitewash both the service commision and the utilities.

The storm, reported to have centered around Senator Earnest, was agitated by other anti-Pinchot senators, among them Senator George Woodward, of Philadelphia.

PINCHOT ATTACK REPORTED

Coming in the midst of the Judge McDevitt action in Philadelphia, charging the Mitten Management and the Philadelphia Rapid Transit officials with being "vultures," and ordering the company into receivership, the report was considered particularly tame.

It is said to criticize Gov. Pinchot for alleged "lack of co-operation with the committee," declaring he did not prove his charges. Pinchot friends point out that what actual material was brought out during the Senate investigation was accomplished by William A. Gray, governor-appointed counsel.

RECORDS HINT CIVIL SERVICE EVASION

Spirit of Law Apparently Violated in Naming of Inspectors on City Jobs

The spirit of the civil service law has been violated in the appointment of a large majority of the Public Works Department inspectors named during the Kline administration, a check of the records of the Civil Service Commission indicates.

Of 28 inspectors named since Mayor Kline took office, 18 have been appointed "provisionally."

A provisional appointment means that the appointee is not selected on merit from a list of those who have qualified competitively for a position, but instead is named by the Mayor or a department head and later qualifies by taking a noncompetitive civil service examination.

Provisions of the civil service regulations provide that provisional appointments may be made only when list of eligible applicants who have passed examinations are not available.

There has been no list of available candidates for public works inspector since last September 1 although one of the most important functions of the Civil Service Commission is to provide such lists. Inquiry revealed also that lists for many other classifications are not available.

BLAMES INTERRUPTION

Dr. F. H. Frederick, chairman of the Civil Service Commission, commenting on the lack of available lists, said it is the duty of the commission's secretary, Thomas F. Hansbury, to provide such lists.

Hansbury contended that rearrangements of offices in the City-County Building had interrupted his work and that examinations had been held up for that reason. He said:

"The lists in our office are fairly complete. Perhaps there may be half a dozen cases where we have not asked for examination from which appointments could be made, but, generally speaking, our lists are up to date."

When asked why no lists for inspectors in the Department of Public Works were available since last September, he said:

"We were shifted around here considerably and because of the fact that some of the space we occupied had to be given over to other functions. In some cases we have not been able to ask for examinations for that reason. However, there are few departments where lists are not available."

LISTS ABSENT

There were no explanations offered, however, for the absence of lists at many times during the Kline administration when appointments were to be made.

During the first six months of Kline's term 12 Public Works inspectors were appointed provisionally because no lists of available candidates were available.

Critics of the Commission say the failure to provide lists is a convenient method of clearing the way for political appointments.

The political appointee, after obtaining a job on a provisional appointment, does not encounter the embarrassing situation of competing with more able men in a regular examination, but without competition is required only to make a passing grade in an examination given after his appointment.

HIGHWAY BILL PASSES HOUSE

HARRISBURG, April 14.—The House today unanimously passed the administration's bill to have the Highway Department take over 20,000 miles of township roads.

Improvement of roads in the present system before new roads are started was urged by Representative Turner, of Delaware. He said:

"There are some roads on the system which for 20 years have not yet been improved. These roads represent a prior lien. Before we embark on any program we should keep pledges to the people who live on these roads."

Turner criticized the Highway Department for its failure to supply the Legislature with information on the mileage of roads to be improved in the 1931-33 biennium, and the cost of maintenance.

Bakery Association Elects Officials

Officers were elected today at the fifth annual national conference of the Bakery Sales Promotion Association in the Fort Pitt Hotel. The new officers are: President, A. T. Tobey, Binghamton, N. Y.; first vice president, Carl R. Berquist, Minneapolis; second vice president, R. W. Varney, New York; secretary-treasurer, Robert E. Sullivan, Chicago.

Public Works Probe Records Stolen

that of his assistant, Tom M. Reed, had been entered, presumably with a master key, and the records taken from a steel cabinet safe in the former's office. Reppert, discussing the theft, said:

"We can't conduct our case properly if someone is going to break in and steal our records."

Milvy, who admitted that he had accepted a radiant fire stove as a gift from Darney, who had been awarded a contract for razing a building at 246-8 Grant street, was called a few minutes before Council adjourned the hearing until tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock.

Up to this revelation, the short session was given largely to the admission of technical testimony. Milvy was being questioned by Attorney Evans as to whether he had ever been given anything of value by a contractor. Milvy said:

"I never got anything. I'm still paying rent."

Evans then asked the witness if he had ever been given a stove by a contractor. Milvy admitted that he had been given a stove from a building which was being razed, but denied that it had been the gift of a contractor.

NAMES DONOR

Milvy refused to reveal the name, but after a long argument in which Evans stressed the necessity the witness was instructed to answer Evans question. Milvy said:

"I think he is in the audience now."

As he made this statement a man in the back of the audience arose and Milvy said:

"That's the man."

Turning to the man, who identified himself as Joseph J. Darfey, a building wrecker, Attorney Evans obtained from him the admission that he had given Milvy the stove, explaining that it was part of salvage in the old Sherman hotel building he was wrecking. He added:

"Tony Jordano told me: 'Give it to the inspector and I'll fix you up.'"

Jordano, it was explained, was contractor on the Grant street work.

At this point President John S. Herron interrupted with:

"I don't think there's enough in this to place the inspector under a cloud. He had nothing to do with the contract."

BLAMES INSPECTOR

Darney interrupted, saying:

"Yes, he did have something to do with the contract. He was supposed to keep 20 feet of the cellar clear and I had to pay $825 to Jordano to take the dirt out."

Darney said the dirt had been placed in the cellar by the Duquesne Light Company, to which Attorney Evans said:

"This is an unfortunate situation and one which ought to stop at once. I think Council should instruct employes to that effect in no uncertain terms."

Herron said:

"You are absolutely right and we will guarantee that it will be done."

Then Director Lang said:

"I can assure you that it will be done."

Darney said he had received a letter from Thomas M. Reed, city engineer, asking that 28 feet of the building be taken down for Judge Drew, the owner, instead of the 20 feet required in the widening. He complained that the extra eight feet of building was to be torn down free of charge. He refused, but did not disclose whether the work was done.

TROUBLE OVER DIRT

Attorney William H. Colvin, of the district attorney's office questioned witness, after which he related his efforts to get employes of the Duquesne Light Company to remove the dirt. He added:

"I even bought a quart of liquor for Denny Manners, a Duquesne Light Company employe, to get the dirt taken out."

Attorney Colvin interrupted the witness with:

"For what purpose did you do this?"

Darney replied:

"You might call it a little bit of grease to get something done."

Continuing, Darney related a conversation he had had with Assistant Engineer Reed relative to work on the Monument Hill. Reed, the witness testified, said to him:

"'Joe, you know that there is only one man in Pittsburgh who can do that work and you know damn well you aren't going to get it.'"

Darney said that a friend of Reed's, whose identity he did not know, had finally obtained the work.

INSPECTOR QUIZZED

Before Milvy took the stand, Joseph Dingfelter, also a city inspector, was called and while being questioned by Attorney Evans relative to his appointment, was interrupted by President Herron with:

"Can't you assume that if anyone works for the city he must have some political influence."

Evans replied:

"Yes, we will assume that."

Evans accused Dingfelter of not attending to his duties and spending a large part of his time in a downtown broker's office, which Dingfelter emphatically denied.

FURNITURE SCANNED

Furniture experts and representatives of Main & Company, participating in the dual audit of records of the Department of Supplies, have visited Mayview to determine if furniture delivered at the City Home complied with specifications for which the city paid.

What the inspection developed was not revealed, but it is understood that the auditors and experts spent practically the entire day at the City Home. It was learned, however, that the inspectors looked particularly into the furniture used in the new home of Mayview officials, completed there at a reported cost of $40,000.

DO-X REPAIRS NEAR FINISH

By KARL H. VON WIEGAND
Universal Service.

BERLIN, April 14.—The Dornier DO-X, world's largest airplane, undergoing repairs at Las Palmas, Canary Islands, after its mishap in February, will be ready in a few days to resume its flight across the Atlantic Ocean or have the venture canceled by Dr. Claude Dornier, it became known today.

The DO-X has been beached for the repairs and structural strengthening necessitated by injuries to struts when the craft was struck by a high wave near Gando Bay. The craft will be ready for new flights by next Monday.

Harvey Brewton, American engineer, and Maj. Brenta, Italian pilot, who is to command one of the two similar giant planes now nearing completion for Italy on Lake Constance, remained in Las Palmas to observe the repairs. Twenty-five mechanics, 11 of them from Friedrichshafen, have been working on the ship for several weeks.

PRINCE TO PAY CAPITAL VISIT

NEW YORK, April 14.—(AP.)—Prince and Princess Takamatsu, of Japan, who came to see the things which make "the greatness of America," are spending their last day among the towers of Manhattan. Tomorrow they will leave New York for Washington.

For the first time since their arrival last Friday the royal party got outside the limits of New York City yesterday. They journeyed to West Point on the destroyer Evans, a familiar environment for the prince, since he is a lieutenant in the Japanese navy, and inspected the cadets of the military academy. The prince wore his naval uniform with a saber.

Today's schedule for the prince and princess included a visit to Columbia University, a luncheon by the New York State Chamber of Commerce, an inspection of the Bell Telephone laboratories and a dinner given by the Japanese Society of New York.

'TRUST' RULING AGAINST U. S.

By WILLIAM S. NEAL
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, April 14.—The Supreme Court's sweeping exoneration of the "cracked gasoline trust," which the government sought to dissolve, aroused widespread speculation in legal circles here today as to its effect on the present "trust-busting" policy of the Justice Department.

Having won the case in lower federal courts after a six-year fight, Justice Department officials were confident the high court would reject the appeal of the major oil companies.

Instead, the decision was unanimous against the government. It was handed down by Justice Brandeis, known as one of the leading liberals of the court.

It will be the largest building of our group, and work on it will begin shortly."

Dr. Magnes' visit here includes a luncheon today in Hotel Schenley under the auspices of the Pittsburgh Chapter of Hadasah; a dinner Wednesday in Webster Hall, given by professional people of the city, followed by a public meeting in the Y. M. and W. H. A.

FOR YOUR INSPECTION

THE MERCHANT and manufacturer who advertise, actually are placing their merchandise before you for inspection. They invite your most critical attention and an uncompromising comparison. And their advertisements, so to speak, say to their products: "We have introduced you to the public—now stand on your own merits."

If the manufacturer and merchant did not have confidence in their wares, they would hesitate to call attention to them. For advertising rigidly tests the maker, the seller and the merchandise. Business so tested, and found not wanting, is prosperous.

In the long run, you can depend on the man who advertises, as well as on his product. That is one reason why people have found that it pays to read advertisements.

It is through advertising that the excellent things of the world are brought to the attention of those who are seeking for the best and most economical way to spend their money.

Read the advertisements. They are news.

EX-POLICE HEAD HELD FOR TRIAL

William J. Flood, former chief of police of Bridgeville, was held for court under $2,000 bond by the United States commissioner, charged with violating the prohibition law. Jack Defango, proprietor of a barbecue stand on the Bower Hill road, was held for court under $2,500 bond, and Joseph Martin, an alleged employe at the barbecue stand, under $500 bond.

Three prohibition agents, posing as bootleggers from West Virginia, made a deal with Defango to purchase 20 gallons of moonshine whisky, and after paying him $32, according to testimony, were directed to a building in McLaughlin road, Bridgeville, to receive the liquor.

They were told to see "Bill," it was testified. In accordance with alleged arrangements with Defango, the dry agents turned over their automobile to another man to be loaded and returned to them at the McLaughlin road building. The agents testified they met Flood at the latter place and he directed them as to the best roads to reach West Virginia. George Dudley and Sam Miller, Negroes, arrested in connection with the seizure, were held under $1,000 bonds each, for a further hearing.

6 INDICTED IN NUMBERS CASE

Six men have been indicted by the grand jury on charges of conducting a lottery, following the investigation conducted by District Attorney Andrew T. Park, of the embezzlement of $4,000 from the Dormont Savings and Trust Company by a former teller, Miss Pearl dda Ferguson, who, in pleading guilty to taking the bank's money, said she used it to play the numbers.

The six include Jesse Levy, Plainview avenue, Brookline; Patsy Martin, alias Young Broadway, Beechview; Frederick Rothweiler, Whitehill street, Brookline; Lawrence P. Bope, Arkansas avenue, Dormont; S. O. Thomas, West Liberty avenue, and Elmer Hart, West Liberty avenue.

Charles Solomon, 1612 Bedford avenue, former assistant cashier in the City Treasurer's office, also was indicted for embezzlement and fraudulent conversion of $3,000.

Mr. Wakatsuki intimated that his ministry, which he will present to the Emperor late today, will pursue much the same policy as the Hamaguchi ministry.

START BUILDING VERONA SCHOOL

Frank R. Smith, director of the Penn Township School Board, turned the first shovel of ground at the exercises yesterday morning for the new Verona Heights Public School. The building, a two-story brick, will contain eight class rooms and a combination gymnasium and auditorium, and is to be completed September 1, at an estimated cost of $65,000.

The ceremony was attended by more than 200 pupils and school board officials. Among the attending officials were H. S. Roberts, supervising principal; Charles G. Hershey, president of the board, and John Hetrick, board secretary.

Gunmen Complain Because Loot Is Small

Complaint was made today by the two gunmen who held up Edward Lookman, collector for the American Oil Company, in Washington boulevard. They complained that Lookman didn't have enough money.

With their machine they forced Lookman's car to the curb under the Lincoln avenue bridge, and took two envelopes containing money. One said:

"Is this all you've got? . . . I've a good notion to bust your head in."

The gunmen departed after disconnecting the ignition wires of the victim's car.

Lookman, who was held up three weeks ago in Swissvale, said he didn't know how much money was in the envelopes.

BURNS TO DEATH IN STABLE FIRE

Henry Jaskson, 56, a Negro, of 63 Marohn street, was dead today as a result of his attempt to save his horses when fire swept through a large frame stable in the rear of his home last night.

After one of four horses had been led to safety by Jackson's son, Harry, 17, Jackson rushed into the barn and attempted to save the other three when the roof of the blazing structure collapsed on him. Flames were consuming the entire barn when firemen arrived. The horses, 26 pigeons, seven rabbits and five chickens perished.

Because of the stable's location on a hill overlooking Bigelow boulevard, the flames were visible from many points. Jackson's body was found in the ruins by firemen.

The damage was estimated at $1,500.

SUICIDE LAID TO ILLNESS

Despondency over ill health and unemployment today was ascribed as the motive for the alleged suicide of John C. Brown, 70, of Lowries Run road, Emsworth, who was reported to have fired a bullet into his head on the back steps of the North Side Police Station last night.

Turnkey John A. Beck and Patrolman John Keefer, attracted by the shot, opened the steel door and found the aged man lying on the steps and a revolver nearby, they said. Brown was taken to Allegheny General Hospital and pronounced dead.

Mrs. Alice Scott, of whose home the victim lived and whom he requested to be notified of his death, told morgue attaches that Brown had left her home at noon yesterday for the office of a physician.

OAKLAND PLAY SITE URGED

Purchase of property for playground purposes, between Bates street and Hodge street, was asked of City Council by taxpayers of the district, in a petition presented yesterday.

Several hundred children in the neighborhood, according to the petitioners, have no place to play except on dangerous streets. The situation will be more acute this summer, they declared, because of additional traffic due to completion of the Boulevard of the Allies extension.

Council referred the request to committee for action.

ARREST MADE IN LOTTERY

Information charging him with setting up a lottery was lodged against David Olitzky, of 6524 Northumberland street, today by Detective Chief George Murran after Mrs. Theresa Solario, Etna store proprietor, identified him in the district attorney's office as the man who sold her punchboard prizes.

Olitzky was taken before Alderman George J. Anderson and released on $1,000 bail pending a hearing.

Assistant District Attorney George F. P. Langfitt ordered Olitzky to his office. According to Langfitt, Olitzky admitted he sold the prizes to the woman.

The case is the outgrowth of the charges of S. G. Fry, Etna police chief, that a civil suit against the woman was based on her failure to pay a balance due for punchboard prizes.

20 Orchestras at Musical Aid Ball

Twenty orchestras are expected to participate in the dance and show to be presented in Syria Mosque tomorrow night for the benefit of unemployed musicians in Pittsburgh Musical Society, Local No. 60, American Federation of Music. The society is sponsoring the program. Dancing in the banquet hall and vaudeville in the auditorium will be held simultaneously.

CHAMBER AIDE IN TRADE DRIVE

A "Buy in Pittsburgh" campaign, to win trade of suburban buyers, has been inaugurated by the wholesalers' council of the Chamber of Commerce. The movement is to impress on merchants within a 75-mile radius of Pittsburgh, the values to be obtained here.

The wholesalers' council, of which Alan Chandler is chairman, and W. P. Benson and Emil Frever, vice chairmen, has brought here F. L. Anderson, Chicago, expert in modern store management, to lead the movement.

This month Anderson will survey the district wholesale field, the stock in local establishments and visit customers in the district. Next month at a series of meetings of merchants and buyers in communities in this area, arranged by the chamber, he will lecture and point out, through the comparison of prices, cost of transportation and other items, why they can purchase products more cheaply and to their advantage in Pittsburgh.

INDICT GORDON DEATH SUSPECT

NEW YORK, April 14.—(AP.)—After hearing nine witnesses, including three men held by police, the Bronx County grand jury yesterday indicted Harry Stein, small-time racketeer, accused of slaying Vivian Gordon, Broadway blackmailer, on a charge of first-degree murder.

Stein, who has been held without bail in the Bronx County jail since his arrest last Monday on a charge of suspicion of the homicide, will be examined today.

Secrecy surrounded the jury's investigation into the murder, but it is learned that David Butterman, Sam Greenhauer and Morris Levine, held as material witnesses against Stein, were called. Others included Butterman's wife and the wife of a jeweler, whose identity was not learned.

SHAKESPEARIAN AND MODERN COMEDIES AND PHOTOPLAYS ARE NEW BILLS

'Twelfth Night' Is Fresh After 330 Years And Much Usage

By GEORGE SEIBEL

It is so many years since Viola came to town, even in repertoire with Sothern and Marlowe, or for a week's visit of Viola Allen, that it was almost a novelty—this play of "Twelfth Night" presented at the Alvin Theater last night by Jane Cowl. So much of a novelty that it took the audience a little while to discover that it's a comedy—and is to be laughed at. But when the discovery was once made, the audience collected all the arrears of mirth, and the last scene with Malvolio evoked guffaws though it was played almost as seriously as the last exit of Shylock in the "Merchant of Venice."

George Seibel

If the play itself seemed a novelty, the Malvolio of Leon Quartermaine has a startling suggestion in his makeup that Shakespeare himself first played this part. Quartermaine is made up like William Shakespeare—like the Shakespeare of the Stratford bust, the Droeshout engraving and the Fenton portrait. It may be unconscious on Quartermaine's part, but it is a happy accident. Who knows but that the author himself played Malvolio when the comedy was first put on at Middle Temple Hall on January 6, 1601.

How well it wears. After 330 years it is still the liveliest comedy of humors and the loveliest romance on the English stage. It is as full of poetry as Keats and as full of wit as Sheridan.

JANE COWL'S VIOLA

The heart of "Twelfth Night" of course is Viola, though King Charles used to call the play "Malvolio." Perhaps that was one reason why the Puritans cut off his head.

Jane Cowl's Viola is a serious young lady who does not take herself too seriously. She seems to be a bit astonished at the adventures that befall her—as if she were telling it to Mr. Ripley and did not expect him to believe it. She has a voice of music, which must have been the reason she got employment with the Duke who should have been born after the radio. And she reads her lines with a penetrating intelligence that makes them intelligible to the audience in spite of any archaisms and poetic phrases. Sometimes she forgets herself in an outcry of startled sincerity that gives a tang of realism to the golden romance. Most of the time she is a lovely lady from an old tale, seen through "magic casements opening on the foam of perilous seas in faery lands forlorn."

MALVOLIO SERIOUS TOO

Quartermaine's Malvolio has this same note of seriousness. Most of our Malvolios have been very fantastical—conceited asses who deserved what they got. He is a good man with the vanity of good men who try to regulate the conduct of others. There is no doubt that Shakespeare meant to satirize the Puritans who were becoming a nuisance in England in his day. But that satire had to be tempered with respect, because he had a Puritan in his own family. Quartermaine's Malvolio is respectable, with even a sense of humor—only he has never learned to laugh at himself.

That is where Sir Toby Belch excels. Sir Toby, played with exuberant unction by Walter Kingsford, is first cousin to Falstaff. And both of them are the true ancestors of John Bull, the typical Anglo-Saxon as he sees himself. Kingsford's Sir Toby is one of the best I have ever seen.

ARTHUR HOHL'S ANDREW

Toby has an excellent foil in the Sir Andrew Aguecheek of Arthur Hohl, foppish and silly with exquisite stupidity. In the convivial scene in the garden where they watch their conspiracy work out, and in the duel with Viola, Arthur Hohl played perfectly opposite Sir Toby.

Of the entire cast it may be said that Jane Cowl has a right to be proud. Lewis Martin's Feste, Royal Beal's Orsino, Jerrie Ralph's Maria, and Maren Evensen's Olivia were among the outstanding figures in the picture.

And the word "picture" is here used with peculiar fitness, for the production has another element of novelty in the settings. The scenery is all contained in a huge book of which the Clown turns the pages, and the pages are the scenes. Raymond Sovey is responsible for this device, which enabled the scenes to be played in rapid uninterrupted succession so that very little had to be cut. What was cut—like "Pigrogromitus and the Vapians passing the Equinoctial of Queubus"—hardly will be missed, for after all it is not a guessing contest, but a fine evening's entertainment, fresh after 330 years.

Gamble!

Dave Schooler, master of ceremonies, shakes the dice and tosses out some of the entertainment, which features "Take a Chance Week" in the Stanley.

FULTON AND SHERIDAN FILM MAKES COMEDY AND SELLS SOAP

By MILDRED FILLMORE

"It Pays to Advertise," a happy comedy based on the stage play, opened a four-day stay on the Fulton and Sheridan Square screens yesterday. It is light, easy-to-take entertainment.

The story is all about a soap manufacturer's son, who gets booted out of papa's house and then goes into the soap business as rival to his father, on what may be called the well known shoestring. A big advertising campaign is launched and the result looks like there won't be enough soap in the country to supply all the soap-hunting housewives.

Norman Foster plays the son and Skeets Gallagher is present as his partner in putting the business over. Skeets, very blonde and very wise-cracky, puts in a lot of laughs. When the great big building agent comes in to collect the office rent, Skeets tells a mother-boy story and sends him away in tears. Mr. Foster gives a likeable portrayal and, with the assistance of Carole Lombard, manages a little romantic stuff—kisses, clinches and such.

Eugene Pallette, as the big soap and suds king, who finally gets his son's viewpoint that it pays to advertise, and Lucien Littlefield, as another soap magnate, are big assets in the comedy way.

The picture is a "break" for a lot of manufacturers of nationally advertised products, for, during the course of the action, many familiar trade names sound in your ears.

TOMMY 'BOZO' SNYDER HEADS ACADEMY BILL

Tommy (Bozo) Snyder, comedian who never speaks, came to the Academy last night at the head of his own show, "Follies of the Day." Snyder appeared for many seasons over the big burlesque wheels. Supporting him are Gertrude Hays, Jr., and Sam Green, Billy Hagan, Margie Bartel and Ruth Bradley, Anna Toebe, Bob Conn, Bobby Vail and Nazarro Hallo contribute specialties.

SUN SHINES AND SAND FLIES ON DESERT IN WARNER

By CLARENCE E. GRUNDISH

"Beau Ideal," talk screen sequel to the silent "Beau Geste," Sir Percival Wren's story of the three Geste brothers, who went off to the French Foreign Legion, opened yesterday in the Warner. It is one of those pictures that starts off in the middle of its story, goes back to the beginning and then, via the middle again, gets to the end.

The desert sand and sun are here in as liberal doses as they were in "Beau Geste." But the stark dramatic power of that picture is lacking. And, somehow, the reform movement appears to have struck the Foreign Legion. It isn't quite so brutal as it used to be.

HOLLYWOOD INFLUENCE

There is, though, a gruesome episode that has your stomach feeling like a pin-wheel is whirling around in it. This depicts a prison in an old desert wheat-pit, and has the prisoners becoming corpses one after another, until only two are left. And they are half dead.

The men of this Foreign Legion are from many countries and of many tongues, but they go in for community singing in one language. Which is just an old Hollywood influence!

The "beautiful ideal" is a gesture of forgiveness on the part of the last of the Geste boys, portrayed by Ralph Forbes. He finds compassion for a fellow who would betray him for 30 pieces of silver.

ONCE THREE, NOW ONE!

Mr. Forbes, capable enough in his role, will be remembered as one of the original movie Geste boys. The other two were Ronald Colman and Neil Hamilton. However, if you know the Wren stories you know that they aren't in "Beau Ideal," because they were killed off in "Beau Geste."

There is plenty of excitement in "Beau Ideal." Mutinies, sand storms, Arab attacks and that sort of thing.

A large cast is present, including Loretta Young, Irene Rich, Lester Vail and Lenia Stengel. And Herbert Brennon again was the gentleman who told the players how to play.

WHITE DENIES ARSON CHARGE

Bobbie White, 28, North Side figure, who describes himself as a dealer in malt, denied in Central Police Court today that he had anything to do with a fire in a place at 730 East Ohio street which detectives said was a speakeasy.

White described his arrest as a frameup for revenge.

Harry Bandy testified that he refused to let White in his club, that White thereupon tore down the bannister outside the entrance and that, half an hour later, he heard a voice yelling from the rear of the place, "This is the compliments of Bobbie White," and discovered the club was on fire.

Detectives told of finding a five-gallon can which had an odor of benzine in the rear of the place.

Magistrate Leo Rothenberg reserved decision on White and two others arrested with him, Richard Butler, 34, of Beaver avenue, and George Butler, 31, of Metropolitan street.

Plays, Players and By-Play

The Alvin stage will be "dark" again next week—but not unoccupied. Ethel Waters, popular Negro entertainer, will head the cast of "Rhapsody in Black," opening next Monday. Lew Leslie is responsible for Ethel doing her "Rhap."

'DEATH TAKES HOLIDAY' AGAIN PRESENTED IN THE PITT

"Death Takes a Holiday," seen here this season with Philip Merrivale in the leading role, to be followed a few weeks later by a most satisfactory stock presentation by the George Sharp Players n the Pitt, began a new run in the same theater last night. As on the previous occasion, the leading parts are in the hands of Paul McGrath, as Prince Sirki, the name assumed by Death when he takes on mortal character, and Anne Forrest as Grazia, with whom Sirki falls in love.

Robert Fiske, as Sirki's host; Alice Ann Baker, Billy Link and Katherine Maison are the only members of the original Pitt cast of this play remaining. Mabel Kroman and Hugh Banks having joined Mr. Sharp's Columbus company, and John Winthrop having departed for other fields. Fred Sullivan now plays the role of the major, while Howard Inches has the part of Grazia's fiance and Arthur Marlowe is seen as the fiance of another of the three girls attracted by Sirki. Suzanne Colby and Alice Gundelfinger play two of these roles.

The story covers three days in which Death appears as a mortal in order to find out what there is so alluring about life that people dread to meet him. It is poetical as well as fanciful and is deeply interesting as well as affording the two principal characters, Sirki and Grazia, fine opportunities for subtle acting.

WE APOLOGIZE

—for our inability to accommodate even a fraction of the tremendous crowds that simply swept us off our feet today in response to the announcement that Pickering's were quitting business forever.

We didn't realize there would be such an overwhelming response. Perhaps this was due to our modesty. But one thing is sure—public confidence built up in our 59 years of history produced the greatest outpouring of shoppers Pittsburgh ever saw!

As This Paper Goes to Press!

We are completely swamped! Selling is so fast we cannot possibly determine the exact merchandise that will be left for tomorrow's selling. But we're working tonight—the whole night through if necessary—to clear our floors of all merchandise sold today so we will be ready for the crowds Wednesday.

We thank you all for your whole-hearted response and generous buying. We know the values you received more than repaid you for any irregularities in the usual Pickering service. We will be prepared to take care of everybody tomorrow—but would suggest you come as early in the day as possible.

Everything Goes at Cost, Less Than Cost, or ½ Former Prices!

SUPERIOR COURT SESSION OPENS

Paul W. McAllister and Ralph J. McAllister, brothers, of McKeesport, sons of the late H. J. McAllister, who practiced law in Allegheny County for many years, were among a group of 18 attorneys admitted to practice before the Pennsylvania Superior Court at the opening yesterday of its annual spring session here.

The first two weeks will be devoted to arguments on appeals from Western Pennsylvania counties, together with several appeals transferred from eastern counties. Appeals from Allegheny County will be listed for the third week.

The right of a property owner to recover damages for property included in the ultimate right of way of a road but beyond the line of the improved highway, affirmed by Quarter Sessions Court of Erie County, was argued on the appeal of the County of Erie against William G. and Elizabeth Walker.

Other appeals argued were The Grange National Bank of McKean County, at Smethport, against C. H. Collman, appellant; J. J. Sherwood against Paul F. and Bertha A. Boehm, appellants. William Chase against City of Erie, appellant, and Adelaide Moore, appellant, against the Peoples Bank and Trust Company, all from Erie County; Darlington R. Kulp, appellant, against Board of Prison Inspectors of Berks County; John T. Silveus against Lee Grossman and others, appellants, Greene County.

$113,500 ASKED IN SUITS HERE

The Alpha Claude Neon Corporation is named defendant in two suits filed in Common Pleas Court seeking a total of $100,000 damages for injuries to three persons in an automobile collision. Mr. and Mrs. Charles R. Hanks, of Pittsburgh, asked $50,000 damages and Mrs. Margaret M. Corbin, of Oil City, asked a similar amount, alleging they suffered serious injuries when the Hanks automobile, in which they were riding, halted behind a street car on Wylie avenue, near Chatham street, January 10, and a truck of dependant corporation crashed into the rear of their car. Thomas R. Corbin joined in his wife's suit.

The City of Pittsburgh was named defendant in a suit filed in Common Pleas Court by Mrs. Dolores Richards, asking $13,500 damages for injuries to her minor daughter, Mary Richards, when an automobile driven by James Maon, in which she was a passenger, crashed against a pole on Second avenue, near the Glenwood Bridge, August 25. The city was charged with negligence in failing to keep the street in repair, the suit claiming that the accident was caused by a hole in the paving.

EX-HOOVER AIDE SPEAKS HERE

Col. J. W. Krueger, who served with President Hoover in relief work in Russia, Belgium and Porto Rico, spoke at the luncheon meeting of the Hungry Club in the Fort Pitt Hotel yesterday. The topic of his speech was, "With Hoover in Porto Rico."

Col. Krueger, who is executive secretary of the Porto Rico Child Feeding Committee, appealed for funds for the distribution of milk for babies and mothers in the island where he has established 91 stations.

Col. Krueger said, in part:

"There is a great difference between children who are undernourished and those who are slowly starving to death. The program which the committee is carrying out is one of actual life saving. Our feeding stations feed 50,000 children, who otherwise would have nothing other than a cup of black coffee and perhaps a sweet potato, each day."

Crippled Worker Often Best Earner

CLEVELAND, April 14.—(AP.)—The disabled man often makes a valued worker and earns more money than the normal worker, the International Society for Crippled Children heard today from John A. Kratz, chief of the National Rehabilitation Bureau.

Thousands of men injured in industrial accidents move up to higher wages, Kratz said. This is because they take up vocational training and become skilled laborers. If the injured man was a skilled worker before the accident, his average wage drops slightly, but only $3 or $4 a week.

The crippled man, too, usually is a reliable worker and suffers less from employment reductions, Kratz said.

PASTOR TO TAKE NEW PULPIT

The call was extended last Wednesday. Dr. Spencer explained the transfer will be made within the next two months after the call has been passed upon by the Presbytery in the Canonsburg district.

To this concentrated dried brewer's Yeast is added three kinds of easily assimilated iron to quickly make rich, red blood and tone up nerves and muscles. TELL IT TO SALLY

By SALLY MARTIN

Don't Think That Luck Is Always Against You

Once, not so long ago, he had a good job, a savings account and a Bright Future.—

And marriage seemed very close for him and the Best Little Girl in the World.—

Then Old Man Depression hit town. His firm went broke, the bank account melted and, from a rosy glow, the future turned into a black cloud of discouragement and gloom. So—

"I feel as if I should tell her to forget all about me," he groans. "I don't know when I'll ever get a decent job again and I wouldn't have her go through a lot of hardships for anything in the world."

Meets Bad Luck

Is he being big and self-sacrificing and noble—or just foolish?

"Dear Sally Martin:

"Here is a problem that I hope you can help me on. It sure has me bothered. I have been going for the past five years, with a wonderful little girl—I say little because she is 23 years old and not very big. We care for each other an awful lot, and we planned to get married soon.

"I worked for a large company all through my high school years. After graduating, I went to work for another firm because the wages were much better. I was well satisfied, and had a little money saved, and a new car. We started our bank account together, because we thought it would be a good plan to have a little money to start on.

"Well, the company I was working for went bankrupt when business got dull. I went to work for another outfit on a straight commission basis when that happened. I made pretty good money for a while, but couldn't save anything, because I had to help my folks, due to illness in the family. Now, for the last three months, although I've worked hard, I haven't been able to make a living wage and I have tried every place to get a good job, but I can't seem to find any. And I don't care to get married on a job like this, with nothing but commissions to depend on.

Is Discouraged

"Another thing that bothers me is that I can't take my little girl out to the places I used to take her to. Not that she is kicking about that . . . she isn't. She tells me not to worry. That everything will turn out all right. But it bothers me a lot because some of her girl friends are having just the time of their lives, and I am not in a position to show her a good time any more.

"I feel as if I should tell her to just forget all about me, because I don't know when I will ever find a good job again. Gee! It sure is awfully discouraging! And if we were married at the present time, the way conditions are, she would have to go through an awful lot of hardships, and I wouldn't want her to do that for anything in the world.

"I care an awful lot for her, and I don't see how I could ever tell her to forget me. But do you think I should, for her sake? Will you please answer me, and let me know what you think about this? I'll thank you a lot, if you will. "KEN."

What do I think, son?

I think you're letting gloom and pessimism run away with you. Why should you tell the girl to forget you? Just because you're having a little hard luck? There isn't a speck of reason for doing so, except in your own imagination. So buck up . . . snap yourself out of the fog. Give yourself a chance.

I know it's hard and discouraging just now. But people have had hard and discouraging times before . . . and came out of them in a big way. And you can do it too, if you will. But it's up to you, big boy. No one can succeed at anything if he lets himself think that "luck's against him" and there's no hope.

Hardships Common

So stop feeling that you've hit bottom and can't climb out. If you don't . . . if you don't take a grip on your confidence and courage, you'll be shutting the door of success in your own face. You'll be doing that because hopelessness and gloom will inevitably cripple you if you hang onto them. Just now you're anticipating failure. And if you keep on doing that, failure will be what you'll get. Because so long as you anticipate failure, you'll never be able to unlimber yourself and beat it.

"But if she sticks to me, she'll have to go through trouble and hardship!" you cry. Well, maybe she will. But what of that? Anyone may have to go through hardships. No one can be guaranteed against them. Rich men often lose their money . . . Great men often lose their place and power . . . but if they have grit and spunk and confidence, they can win them back.

With love and courage to build on, even hardships may be great and gallant adventures that make men and women bigger and finer, and put savor and salt in their hearts.

So square your shoulders. Dig your toes in, and hustle, son! Be thankful for the little girl who loves you and believes in you! You'll win!

It was one of the ancient Greek philosophers, I think, who said that it is within every man's power to act justly.

No matter how humble or how high one's place in life, that circle is ennobled or degraded by just or unjust actions.

We are all very loud in our condemnation of important persons discovered in corruption and graft.

Yet many who lament these facts are themselves in smaller and less important walks of life guilty of the same deplorable practices.

Nor can one say of them that it is on a smaller and less important scale.

For justice and injustice can never be measured by the importance of the place or persons involved.

It is always only—just or unjust.

Love's Reawakening

Continuation of Love's Awakening

Mary's Wonderful Party Ends

"Double-crossing," Philip Veritzen had said in reference to Jack Leslie when I had told him of the threat which the "capering cockroach" had made to Mary, and the epithet caromed around my brain even after I had excused myself upon the plea of looking after the buffet supper, and had gone to the supper room leaving Dicky still talking to my employer as if the two were congenial chums whose friendship was of long standing. But I had no immediate means of knowing whether Dicky shared the suspicion of Philip Veritzen which his use of the word had brought to me, for the overseeing of the buffet supper, and the confusion incident to the party kept me occupied until the last guest had been sped.

That last guest was Ronald who refused all attempts to speed him while he was saying good-night to Marion, until the young girl herself commanded him prettily to go home and get some sleep. Then he reluctantly departed in the wake of his mother who had beamed approval upon her son and her friend's lovely young daughter throughout the entire evening.

Harry Underwood, one arm thrown affectionately around his stepdaughter, watched her youthful admirer's departure with a quizzical though wholly approving smile. But Lillian, though she was also smiling, had the deep-etched lines around her lips and nostrils which to me are sure signs of her emotional disquiet. That her maternal jealousy of Marion, unusual, obsessing, because of her daughter's long-enforced absence from her during the years of childhood, was warring with her real approval of Ronald—this was the message I read from those etched lines.

I touched her arm in warning, for Marion's eyes, searching her mother's face as if in prescient expectation of what she might find there, were shadowing. With a start, Lillian turned to her young daughter and smiled widely at the picture which I knew was so welcome to her of the child she adored in the embrace of her husband.

"Well, dearest," she queried, "did the party come up to expectations?"

"Oh, Mums!" Marion expostulated in pretty exasperation. "You do put things so—so mildly. It was the most marvelous party I ever saw in my whole life, wasn't it, Mary?"

Mary crossed to me before she answered and put her arms around me hugging me until I was breathless. We were standing, the Underwoods with Marion, and Dicky with Mary and Noel, in the center of our apartment from which the guests had departed after coming upstairs for their wraps.

"There isn't a word coined to describe it," Mary said in her listing voice. "It's what I've dreamed of ever since I was a tiny girl, only it was so much more wonderful than I dreamed. And it's all this darling woman's doings," she hugged me again. "You sweetheart Auntie Madge I never was so happy in my whole life before."

Over Noel's face flitted a shadow so evanescent that I almost doubted having seen it. But I knew that there had come poignantly to him the thought which had forced its way into my own mind. Did Mary mean that this party night had transcended in happiness the day of her betrothal or would rival her anticipated wedding day?

As if she had guessed my thought, she laughed in embarrassed fashion.

"I guess I don't quite mean that," she said. "It's the second happiest day of my life," she flashed a coquettish glance at Noel. "But it's the gayest, loveliest time I ever had, or ever expect to have, and it's all owing to Auntie Madge."

"Mary! Please!" I expostulated. "Your Uncle Dicky had as much to do with it——"

"Spare my blushes," Dicky interrupted, "and take your bow gracefully. Of course we all know that me and old Harry there really slung this party with the aid and advice of the kind gentleman who provided the posies for the occasion. But we're too modest to take the credit, and we'll let you have the whole thing. Hug her again, Mary, she deserves it."

I came very near to the tears which I saw far back in Mary's eyes, for there was that in my husband's voice which told me that he prized and appreciated the effort I had made to give his orphaned niece the "school girl party" for which she had longed so many times. But in the girl's ecstatic embrace I managed to choke the emotion back and steady her as well as myself by a practical admonition.

"There are more good times coming, remember, but we won't have any strength for them, if we don't get some sleep. I'm going to shoo you all to bed."

"Amen, and so be it," Lillian said. "Marion, I believe you're scheduled for a noon breakfast at Mrs. Brixton's, a last-minute shopping tour in the afternoon, and dinner at a Chicago restaurant. So you have a full program, and I'm going to tuck you between the sheets, pronto, Harry, bring Noel along with you in thirty seconds. That's time enough to say good-night."

Mr. Underwood good-humoredly doubled the time, and then as they went out the outer door, Mary disappeared into her bedroom, and Dicky and I were left facing each other. I felt as if my pulses were pounding. Was his mood the approving one which I had heard in his speech to Mary, or was it tempered by the subconscious resentment against Philip Veritzen which I knew he cherished?

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Hunger Often Cause of Baby's Crying Spell

Infants often cry for no other reason than because they are hungry. They cry for other reasons, of course, but hunger is the chief cause.

Dr. Copeland

Children and infants are rapidly growing animals. They require food in order to grow and develop properly. Children are always hungry, but fortunately they have a way to notify their elders when food must be had. The only way an infant can register its hunger is to cry. Usually it does not hesitate to make its demand.

Hunger pangs may be increased after the weaning of the infant.

This is due to the removal of the mother's milk which contains so many nutritive elements. This nourishment must be provided by wise mixtures of food. Supplementary feedings may be required to give the baby necessary nourishment, even before weaning.

Crackers, crusts, hard whole-wheat crackers and similar selected food may be given once daily to an infant between the ages of six and eight months. When eight to 10 months old, such feeding may be given twice daily and three times daily, after reaching 10 to 12 months. After one year of age, this food may be given with every meal. After the first year, bread and butter may be given once or twice daily.

The marked advantage of giving infants fruit juice has been recognized only recently. The vitamin content value of fresh fruits cannot be overestimated. Because of such feeding rickets and scurvy are now rarely seen in infants. In addition to being rich in vitamins, these juices contain important minerals which are essential to the welfare of children.

Fruit juice may be given to all infants as early as the third month. It should be given daily from six months on. After the baby has reached the ninth month, the soft pulp of baked apple, prunes or ripe pears may be given. Never sweeten the fruit. It will develop its own sweet syrup when properly cooked.

After seven months, a tablespoonful of cereal gruel may be given to the infant before a regular feeding. Frequently this is all that is essential in overcoming a stubborn constipation.

As early as the eighth month, vegetable soup may be given. I cannot overstress the importance of vegetables.

Young mothers are frequently astonished at the variety of foods which can be given to an infant. When these foods are utilized at an early age the mother's problem is greatly lessened and the baby is sure to be more content.

Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

Unless the heavyweight reduces carefully, keeps to a balanced diet, years will land on her face as they drop away from her figure. Two pounds a week are as much as one can lose with safety. Rapid reducing weakens the facial fibers, does away with the soft adipose tissues that are necessary for a youthful contour.

What a grand day it was when woman threw her armor plate corset into the ash heap! Foundation garments worn today are scarcely related to the heavy saddles that were endured with agony in the days of bustles, hoop skirts, mutton leg sleeves. Now, by healthful living, exercise and outdoor sports, girls grow their own corsets of strong, resilient muscles. You can't get rid of tummy bulges and spreading hips by lashing them down. You have to exercise, shedding adipose tissue and toning flaccid fibers.

Don't Take Coffee—If You Don't Want It

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. Very often when I have gone to parties my hostess serves coffee as a beverage. As I do not like coffee, I do not take any. I am frequently embarrassed as I am usually the only person at the party who does not take any. When I refuse coffee, am I being rude?

2. When I am offered it, I say, "Thank you, but I do not drink coffee." Is this proper? J.

1. There isn't a reason in the world why you should feel embarrassed. You aren't rude in not taking any coffee—it would be highly ridiculous if you did take it, since you do not wish it. Just be very sensible about it, and very casual, and put from your mind any thought of even need for embarrassment.

2. It isn't necessary to make this explanation. Just say, "No, thank you," graciously, and with no ado.

Managing the Baked Potato

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Will you please tell me the proper way to fix baked potatoes on your plate when served in the skin? Is it wrong to scrape the potato from the skin, or is it better taste to divide the potato in half, letting it remain in the skin?

PUZZLED.

Open the potato, if it is not already opened, and with your fork, scoop out the "inards" to your plate, placing the skin on your bread and butter plate. Then, also with your fork, add the butter, salt, pepper, and, if you wish, paprika . . . then all is ready. And if you wish to eat the skin . . . and it is good! . . . divide the potato, to each half add the condiments, and eat the skin.

The weekly luncheon meeting of the Pittsburgh Builders' Exchange will be held Thursday in the Red Room of the Keystone Athletic Club. Following the luncheon, motion pictures will be shown through the courtesy of the Lehigh Portland Cement Company. L. L. Van Nest of the cement company, will preside.

Plans are being prepared for alterations and additions to Miss Ellis' School for Girls, 4860 Ellsworth avenue. John Phillips Davis, architect, announces that bids will be taken in May.

Preliminary sketches are in progress for an addition to South Side Hospital, Twentieth and Jane streets, South Side. Press C. Dowler is the architect.

Mortgage loans amounting to $37,163,187 were made by the Prudential Insurance of America during the first three months of 1931, according to the company's quarterly report. In announcing this phase of its investment program the company disclosed that 3,628 of the loans were on individual dwellings, 204 on apartments, 71 on mercantile structures, three on public institutions and 1,715 on farm properties. The dwellings and apartments involved provided living accommodations for 6,003 families in both the United States and Canada. While the total loaned during the first quarter of this year was less than that disbursed over a similar period in 1930, the farm loans showed an increase, the report shows.

An improved property in Ridgefield avenue, Mt. Lebanon, has been sold by Henry J. Mahr to Charles S. Wardley.

Miss Rogers Gained 15 Pounds in Six Weeks

Skinny Men and Women Gain 5 Pounds in 30 Days Or Money Back.

My Dear Friends:

After my attack of Flu I was thin, run-down and weak. I had a sallow complexion, my cheeks were sunk in and I was continually troubled with gas on my stomach. I felt stuffy and had lost my appetite. I had read about McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Tablets and decided to give them a trial. At once, I began to pick up an appetite, my cheeks filled out and my complexion became healthy looking and I gained 15 pounds in six weeks and am very thankful for what McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Tablets did for me.

Miss Alberta Rogers, Decatur, Ill.

To take on weight, grow strong and vigorous, to fill out the hollows in cheeks and neck, try McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Tablets for 30 days. 60 Tablets—60 cents at druggists everywhere. If they don't give you wonderful help in 30 days, get your money back—you be the judge. But be sure and ask for McCoy's, the original and genuine.

JOB FUND WORKERS INCREASE EFFORTS

SIDEWALKS —of— PITTSBURGH

By William Pfarr

William Pfarr

Bob Maloney is probably the outstanding exhibitor of outstanding blue-blooded dogs in the land. There is usually a story back of the names he applies to his dogs — Herewithem Ginsberg, for instance. Usually Maloney won't tell these stories, but in view of the dog show scheduled for next Friday and Saturday at Motor Square Garden he has relented this time.

Herewithem Ginsberg, a prize pointer which has been adjudged the best of all breeds at 13 consecutive bench shows, was named for Jack Dempsey, the fighter. Yes, he was.

Maloney and Dempsey are good friends. Dempsey's wife, Estelle Taylor, has a nickname for her husband—Ginsberg. So when Maloney decided to name his new puppy he labeled him Ginsberg.

So that's where Herewithem Ginsberg got the Ginsberg. He goth the Herewithem from his father, of course, and this is how his father—Herewithem, J. P.—got it.

Some years ago Maloney bought a puppy of famous parentage from a gentleman in Scotland. Maloney hired the owner to train the puppy, still without a name, on the Pacific coast. This owner's initials were J. P., and when he reached the coast with the puppy, he telegraph Maloney:

"HERE WITH HIM. J. P."

Hence the Herewithem, J. P. Now as to why Estelle Taylor calls her husband Ginsberg. Dempsey's nose, smashed in by his fights, had to be reconstructed to allow him to act in the movies. After the operation, as the covering was removed from his face, Miss Taylor, standing alongside his hospital bed, exclaimed, "Ginsberg!"

Attorney Jim Magee, the former Congressman, was a good friend of the late Nick Longworth. He remembers that Longworth obtained the office in the Capitol Building once used by Henry Clay because Longworth's grandfather had been an admirer of Clay.

It was this same wealthy grandfather in Cincinnati whom Longworth once approached for a contribution to a political campaign. The grandfather didn't think much of the chances of the candidate who was heading the ticket, so he asked the confident Longworth if the money would be returned if the candidate lost.

"Sure," Longworth assured, and three months later he had to return the contribution.

Then there was the story that Longworth told Magee about Speaker Joe Cannon. It concerned the attraction that congressional funeral committees had for the congressmen. This particular congressman, from Louisiana, was dying by degrees. A few minutes after his eventual death a congressman hurried up the aisle of the House chamber and whispered to Speaker Cannon, "Mr. Cannon, I'd like to be named on that funeral committee. I've never been to Louisiana."

"Too late," Cannon replied." It was named when our late friend took sick."

Incident in the life of a detective: When he was a city detective 20 years ago Col. McGovern, the County Commissioner, was strolling in Fifth avenue when a thief who had stolen a tray of unset diamonds came rushing by. McGovern, suspicious, tackled the thief, and both rolled along the pavement. The diamonds fell out of the thief's pocket into the snow. The crook pulled the trigger of his revolver, but his handkerchief somehow became tangled with the trigger and stopped the force when the firing pin struck the cartridge. This, needless to say, saved McGovern's life — a mere handkerchief. McGovern then clipped the gentleman on the jaw and spent the next two hours on his hands and knees, groping in the snow for the diamonds.

Firemen to Hold Lincoln Park Dance

Lincoln Park firemen will hold a euchre and dance in their hall at 7408 Verona boulevard tonight. Proceeds of the affair will be used for payment on fire equipment of the company. A special musical program will be a feature of the evening.

80 FAMILIES EXPOSED TO SMALLPOX

Seek Identity of Those In East Boroughs Seen By Salesman Victim

Identification of between 80 and 90 families in North Braddock, Swissvale and Edgewood, believed to have been exposed to smallpox, was being sought today by Health Officer Michael Pastor, of North Bradock Borough, for vaccination to prevent possible spread of the disease.

The only victim is Leonard Shockling, 20, of 502 Seddon avenue, North Braddock, a shrubbery salesman, who was pronounced ill and quarantined in his home Saturday. Physicians, who say Shockling's condition is not serious, describe the attack as extremely mild.

Twelve families who made purchases from Shockling have been vaccinated at the Braddock General Hospital.

FIREMEN FIGHT BRUSH FIRES

Brush fires in the county kept volunteer firemen busy last night and early today.

A grass fire along Baptist road in Baldwin Township, which burned over nearly 20 acres, was battled by Baldwin Township and Brentwood firemen for several hours last night.

Stowe Township firemen were called to extinguish a brush fire which burned over about five acres along McCoy road, back of the Davis School, off Highland avenue extension late yesterday.

Two trips were made by Oakdale firemen last night and early today to extinguish grass fires on the Henry Kress farm along North Branch road and the Hankey Baking Company farm along Steubenville pike.

Ten or 15 acres along the Glasgow-Sherwood road in Forest Hills were burned over last night.

2 WOMEN HURT IN AUTO CRASH

Mrs. Charles Shadel, 35, of 311 Questend avenue, Sunset Hills, was in a serious condition in Mercy Hospital today suffering injuries received when an automobile in which she was a passenger with Mrs. E. R. Nichols, 35, of 325 Parkside avenue, Sunset Hills, crashed into a pole in Shady Drive East, Mt. Lebanon, last night.

Thrown against the front of the machine when it crashed into the pole in rounding a curve near Washington road, Mrs. Shadel received a possible fractured skull, a fractured jaw and knee. Mrs. Nichols, driver of the machine, police say, was treated for lacerations of the face and hands at the scene of the accident and removed to her home.

Inspector of Detectives Frank R. Boyd, injured when his car skidded over an embankment into a creek along Library road, was reported slightly improved at Mercy Hospital today. Boyd suffered a possible fracture of the skull, severe lacerations of the left arm and an eye injury.

Informally Clad Dancer Arrested in West Park

A motorist driving along West Park, North Side, early this morning, rubbed his eyes and stopped his car to obtain a better sight of a strange white dancing object in the park. Dancing lightly over the sward was a man, barefooted and wearing an abbreviated costume.

The motorist summoned police, who took the man to the Allegheny General Hospital, and later to the police station. At the station the prisoner was docketed as George Gilman, 34, of 1515 Fireman's way. He was charged with drunkenness.

A police sergeant recommended sulphur and molasses.

Foch Stood Firm As British Lost Hope in Flanders

In yesterday's instalment Marshal Foch told of his plans for meeting the great German offensive that began on March 21, 1918, and the steps that he took toward unifying the operations of the Allied forces along the entire Western Front when he had been vested with their Supreme Command. He told of the fears of the British that in the event of a serious reverse he might place the defense of Paris above that of the Channel ports. In today's instalment he continues his inside narrative of these strategic maneuvers.

By MARSHAL FERDINAND FOCH

Commander-in-Chief of the Allied Armies During the Closing Phases of the World War.

Translated from the French by Col. T. Bentley Mott.

CHAPTER XVII.

The battle of Flanders was moving northward, and this German offensive, by reason of its extent, its power, and, above all, its new direction, it now constituted, as we have already indicated, a serious threat to the Allied forces established north of Ypres.

These, including as they did the whole of the Belgian Army, ran the risk of being cut off from their communications and reduced to helplessness. The danger threatened the coalition and the northern extremity of its front, and no time must be lost in parrying it.

Our available railway lines had been reduced by the attack of March 21, 1918, and the difficulty of moving troops was considerably increased; nevertheless, French reserves must be hurried to Flanders.

I therefore sent instructions to Gen. Petain to make ready the movement of a new division to the region of Bergues, taken, if need be, from units in course of reconstitution; and to Gen. Maistre (10th Army) to push the artillery and train of the 34th Division to Norrent-Fontes, on the afternoon of the 16th, at the same time making ready to move the infantry of this division by motor transport in the early hours of the 17th.

Once this move was carried out, the 16th Corps (leading element of the French Army) was to cross the Somme and come under the orders of the French 10th Army, whose mission remained as previously defined.

Then in order to examine for myself the situation in Flanders, after stopping to see Gen. Wilson and Lord Milner at Abbeville, I proceeded to Blendesques, headquarters of the 2nd British Army.

On the morning of the 17th, at a meeting with Lieut. Gen. Wilson, chief of the imperial general staff, who agreed with the opinion held by Field Marshal Haig and Gen. Plumer in this respect, the British staff proposed that the Allied armies in Flanders should be withdrawn successively to the line of the inundations running from Aire to Saint-Omer and Furnes. I refused to adopt such a measure, and I could not share Marshal Haig's fears in regard to the port of Dunkirk, the evacuation and destruction of which he already envisaged.

In my opinion, there was no course open for the moment but to organize and maintain our resistance where we were, calling upon the French reserves as it be-

Plan Six Traffic Lanes In Widening Fifth Avenue

Providing for a six-traffic lane thoroughfare for Fifth avenue, east of Robinson street, to Clyde street, a widening ordinance drafted by the City Planning Commission was in Council's hands today for action.

An 80-foot thoroughfare is contemplated for Fifth avenue. West of University place, 20 feet will be taken from properties.

The new Falk clinic at the University of Pittsburgh, now nearing completion, and the new Montefiore Hospital were set back from the present line to allow for the widening.

According to the Planning Commission, steps on the Masonic Temple and the Pittsburgh Athletic Association building will be remodeled. St. Paul's Cathedral steps will not be molested.

A public hearing on the widening plan was held December 11, 1929. Some of the persons who objected at that time have withdrawn their opposition.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

PANAMA, April 14.

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

I still can't locate that canal. I am beginning to believe it's a tunnel. The Pennsylvania, a big boat, is here, going from Beverly Hills to New York. I have met 500 people around town and asked them if they had seen the canal and they all had the same answer, 'No.' But today is Pan-American Day. We are celebrating it by rushing two cruisers to Nicaragua. The best thing to do with these countries is to get out, let 'em alone and then sell things cheaper and better than any other nation, then we don't have to worry about relations and good will.

Yours, WILL.

COUNCIL ACTION RUSHED TO USE 'LOST' WHARF FUND

IMPROVEMENTS WOULD GIVE MANY JOBS

Herron Launches Movement To Spend Bond Issue Cash 'Discovered' in Old Files

Improvements to the city's wharves, made possible by a long-forgotten authorized $100,000 peoples' bond issue discovered in musty files of the city controller's office, would include retaining walls, parking platforms, repaving of the wharf surfaces and a general beautification program.

This was intimated today by President John S. Herron, of City Council, who presented a resolution at a meeting of Council yesterday, by which a conference was authorized to consider immediate action on the program.

Controller James P. Kerr, City Solicitor Charles A. Waldschmidt and Public Works Director Edward G. Lang will confer soon to discuss methods of procedure and the preparation of legislation to start work.

PLANS QUICK ACTION

Discussing the newly-discovered bond issue, President Herron said:

"This is indeed a fortunate 'break' for everyone. The bond issue was authorized by the people in 1910, and for some reason or another everybody forgot about it until a few days ago when the matter of wharf improvements came up for discussion. Naturally, with all this money at hand, it gives us a good start on a general beautification and utilitarian program. I want to get quick action on this."

Whether the city would take advantage of labor to be furnished by the Allegheny County Emergency Association and the $100,000 spent for materials, tools and supplies instead of farming out the project, at greater cost, to private contractors, has not been ascertained. It is thought likely, according to city hall observers, that the improvement will be done with the Emergency Association's laborers. Work would be provided for several hundred men over an extended period.

$25,000 GIFT OFFERED

The wharves extend along the Monongahela River, bounded by Water street, and along the Allegheny River, bounded by Duquesne way. For years they have been under supervision of the Department of Public Safety. Patrolmen are stationed at the parking lots to collect tolls of motorists who park their automobiles there.

Council has before it an offer from Harry Irwin Miller, Pittsburgh attorney, in which he promises $25,000 from an unnamed businessman to start work on the beautification program. Councilmen have declared in favor of his plan, and it is likely the offer will be accepted. Miller suggested labor furnished by the Emergency Association be used.

QUIZ CONTINUED IN GAS DEATHS

With the date set for the inquest over two women killed by fumigating gas in the Ramey apartments, 12 East North avenue, on Sunday, and the prostration of two other women and a man, Coroner William J. McGregor today announced his investigation is not yet complete. The inquest was set for next Tuesday morning. In the meantime, the coroner will inquire into what means Richard Clowes, of the Perfect Exterminator Company, took to safeguard occupants of the house. Clowes has been released on $2,500 bond pending the inquest. He is held on a manslaughter charge.

James Shields, Clowes' fosterson, said to have been aiding him in exterminating insects in the basement of the building, was released.

McGregor today declared the case emphasized the need of legislation to control fumigating processes.

Victims of the gas were Marie Mohney, 40, and Julia White, 32, nurses, who fell dead in their apartments on the third floor. Recovering in Allegheny General Hospital are Caroline and Florence Mohney, sisters of Marie Mohney, and Claire McGinnis, 45, who lived with his brother, Attorney Bernard McGinnis, on the second floor.

MOORE WILL HEARING TO BE RESUMED

STEP-DAUGHTER CONTINUES CONTEST

Seeks to Establish Contract Between Parents Before Marriage for Her Benefit

The adjourned hearing in the contest by Mrs. Dorothy Russell Calvit of the will of her stepfather, the late Alexander P. Moore, will be resumed tomorrow in Orphans' Court before Judge Thomas P. Trimble. Mrs. Calvit is seeking to establish a prenuptial agreement between Moore and her mother, Lillian Russell, whereby she claims Moore said he would make substantial provision for the stepdaughter in his will.

Mrs. Calvit was left $1,000 under the will of Moore, disposing of an estate worth $600,000, and including bequests of $100,000 to the Queen of Spain for charity and $25,000 to the widow of Enrico Caruso.

Counsel for Mrs. Calvit at the previous hearing asked for a continuance to seek proof of their contention that valuable assets of Mrs. Moore—including her Chinese collection with a statue of Buddha, a $15,000 marquise diamond and a pearl necklace—were not accounted for by Moore in the administration of her estate.

Actions were instituted in New York to recover a grand piano possessed by Mrs. Moore, traced to the American embassy in Spain and then to Mrs. Caruso, together with the marquise diamond, according to Attorney Ira W. Houck, local counsel for Mrs. Calvit.

SAILOR HELD IN W. HOMESTEAD

Because he failed to destroy identification cards from the United States Navy, Leo B. Stanger, 20, New York City, was held today by West Homestead police for Navy authorities.

"I didn't desert. I just walked off while the ship was in dry dock at Hampton Roads, Va."

DARWIN WARNS OF BARBARISM

Prof. C. C. Darwin, grandson of Charles Darwin, eminent scientist, in Pittsburgh to lecture to Carnegie Tech students, believes that civilization is tending toward barbarism. He said:

"Present progress will not last. When the mechanical cycle has been completed, people will ultimately get too lazy to want to work. Then we will relapse into barbarism."

Prof. Darwin, of Edinburgh University, Scotland, spoke to Tech students last night in the Union, Administration Hall, on "Wave Mechanics." Tonight he will speak on "The New Mechanics."

He is stopping with his aunt, Mrs. Herbert DuPuy, of 646 Morewood avenue.

The LOUDSPEAKER—By LOUIS REID

NEW YORK, April 14.—In no field of endeavor is the spirit of competition stronger than in radio. Fierce and continuous warfare is waged between the two major networks for the capture of the eardrums with the big shots in the day's news or the amusement heavens as the ammunition.

Europe was the chief area of battle until the last month—Europe with its hosts of famous writers and statesmen and scientists. Recently, Grand Marshal Aylesworth, generalissimo of N. B. C., has ceased much of his overseas campaign to concentrate upon more aggressive action at home, leaving only a small guard to fight for the privilege of airing the outstanding hoss races of Great Britain.

Grand Marshal Paley, head of Columbia's army, does not intend to disband his European headhunters. No author, no scientist, no public figure whose name is known in America will escape his dragnet. And if NBC is able to point to the exclusive broadcasting of the Grand National, Columbia can counter with a claim to the first American airing last year of the Derby at Epsom Downs.

Aylesworth captured Mussolini, a notable victory in itself. But Paley, pointing his finger at England, shows a corral of such important figures as John Masefield, Sir Oliver Lodge, Commander Kenworthy, John Maynard Keynes, Lord Moynihan, Viscount Grey, John Drinkwater. Turning to the continent, he can show Masaryk, of Czechoslovakia; Curtius, of Germany; Miklas, of Austria.

For a time it seemed that N. B. C. would be able to count the Pope among its exclusive broadcasts, but Columbia managed to get equal recognition from the Vatican.

The warfare during the last month has been sharp and steady. Aylesworth's battalions stole a march on Paley's by bringing William Cosgrave, head of the Irish Free State, into their tents two days ahead of his scheduled appearance in those of Paley. Similarly, they won first access to the authoritative voice of the Archbishop of York.

On the other hand, adventurous Marine sergeant, Faustin Wirkus, who became "king" of the island of La Gonave by virtue of his appointment as resident commander, was heard under the auspices of Columbia two days ahead of his scheduled appearance on N. B. C. networks.

Conquests continue. Microphone men, working late and frenziedly, are seeking outstanding figures in the day's news, in the public life of the nation for exclusive broadcasts. There are not many such figuree left, so active have been the broadcasters.

NBC won an unusually brilliant victory by the quick stringing of wires from Denver to Lamar, Col., and gaining the voices of those children who survived the death-dealing blizzard while marooned 36 hours in a school bus. It also, by reason of its close affiliation with Madison Square Garden, won access to the first broadcast of the noises and excitements of the circus.

* * *

Yet, there is glory, too, for Columbia. It has obtained the consent of Helen Keller for a broadcast. It was the first, with the help of Time Magazine, to put on dramatizations of current news events. It is scouring the highways for big names. It has lately enrolled Gloria Caruso, daughter of the great Enrico.

* * *

It is in the field of music that the contest is the hottest. Both sides report notable triumph. If Grand Marshal Aylesworth succeeds in winning a way to the hitherto inviolate pastures of the Metropolitan Opera House for a broadcast of Stravinsky's "Oedipus Rex," in being the first to lead the spectacular Lily Pons to the microphone, Grand Marshal Paley is able to offer to the eardrums every Monday night such operatic bigwigs as Jeritza, Schipa, Gigli, Ponselle, Lauri-Volpi, Queen Marie.

This Woman In 4 Weeks Lost 17 Pounds of Fat

Here's a letter written October 21, 1929, by Mrs. Fred Barringer, of Lewistown, Montana, that ought to be read by every overweight woman in America.

"Gentlemen: I started taking Kruschen every morning as directed as I was very much overweight and wanted to reduce.

I had tried going on a diet but would get so hungry that my diet would not last long, so I decided to give 'Kruschen Salts' a fair trial. The day I started to take them I weighed 256 lbs. and at present, which has been just four weeks, I weigh 226 lbs. And I must say, I feel better in every way, besides looking much better. Kruschen Salts had a decided effect upon the quantity of food I took and stimulated my desire to greater activity. May all large people, both men and women, who want to reduce in an easy way, give Kruschen Salts a fair trial. I am sure it will convince anyone."

A bottle of Kruschen Salts that lasts four weeks costs but 85c at any drug store in America. Take one-half teaspoon in a glass of hot water before breakfast every morning. To help reduce swiftly cut out pastry and fatty meats and go light on potatoes, butter, cream and sugar.

The Kruschen way is the safe way to reduce—Try one bottle and if not joyfully satisfied—money back. Your druggist knows all about Kruschen.

THE ECONOMY OF LASALLE OWNERSHIP?

La Salle prices are as low as $2195. Illustrated above, the 5-pass. Sedan, $2295. All prices f. o. b. Detroit. G.M.A.C. terms are recommended.

In your admiration of La Salle beauty and your delight in La Salle performance, do not overlook the fact that La Salle is an economical car to own. This economy is of the fundamental sort which always attends quality. The same fine design and precise craftsmanship that give both Cadillac and La Salle their spirited, smooth and silent performance, assure low operating and maintenance cost. Even La Salle beauty is a sound investment because it remains in approved good taste season after season. Yet La Salle prices are but little higher than those of many cars that lack its distinguished character.

GRAY HAIR IS EASILY DARKENED

Tells How She Did It With a Home-Made Remedy.

Mrs. E. H. Boots, a well-known resident of Buchanan County, Ia., who darkened her gray hair, made the following statement:

"Anyone can darken their gray or faded hair, and look twenty years younger with this simple remedy, which they can mix at home. To half a pint of water add 1 ounce of bay rum, one small box of Barbo Compound and ¼ ounce of glycerine. These ingredients can be purchased at any drug store at very little cost. Apply to the hair every other day until the gray hair is darkened sufficiently. It does not color the scalp, is not greasy and does not rub off. It will make a gray-haired person look twenty years younger."

ECZEMA
Itching Skin

If you want instant relief just apply Peterson's Ointment. The minute this soothing and great healing Ointment touches your inflamed, irritated skin—you obtain blessed comfort. Generally you need only a few applications to completely end this distressing condition.

Always have Peterson's Ointment on hand. Can't beat it for quickly healing chafed, irritated, erupted skin, for eczema and bad cases of pimples and blackheads.

H. A. Daniels of Hartford, Conn., writes: "For 6 months I was bothered with Eczema—it would itch so I could tear it to pieces. I had lotions and different Ointments which did no good. I saw your ad in the Hartford Times and I went and got a box of Peterson's and in one night it almost disappeared."

The mighty healing power of Peterson's Ointment overcomes Eczema and one 35c box will prove it—all drug stores.

QUICK RELIEF FROM TORTURING CORNS

Relief from the stabbing pain of a corn can be secured instantly, even though several days' treatment may be needed for complete, safe removal. So avoid rapid-fire "cures" and dangerous paring, and put your trust in the safe, sane, sensible treatment that has brought comfort to millions of feet for 31 years.

Ask your druggist for a little box of the famous Blue-jay corn plasters. In ten seconds you'll have a Blue-jay softly guarding the tingling spot; cushioning the pressure and chafing that cause the pain. Immediate relief!

After that, it's easy for Blue-jay. Mild medication loosens the corn; soon you're on easy feet. Corns will never bother you if you keep a box of Blue-jay handy. Made by Bauer & Black, noted manufacturers of surgical dressings. At all druggists', 25c.

By DARRELL V. MARTIN, Radio Editor.

Hack Wilson, home run king, is to give Pat Flanagan and Richy Craig his version of the Pirate-Cub game in Chicago when he appears on the Columbia network and WJAS at 10:15 tonight . . . Of the many Pittsburgh people who have "made good" on the networks, perhaps none is better known than Mathilde Harding, pianist, who graduated from the Washington, Pa., Seminary to KDKA to NBC . . . Mathilde is featured with Guy Fraser Harrison on WJZ at 10 and KDKA at 10:15 . . . she is to play excerpts from Carl von Weber's "Concertstucke" . . . At the age of 13, Mathilde appeared as guest pianist with the Russian Symphony . . . We add with pride that she is a sister of Irene Jones . . . brunette half of the "20 Fingers of Sweetness."

Having been invited to count the number of advertising words in the program that sponsors Arthur Pryor's Band, we have tabulated 73 words prior to the much ballyhooed "20 words of advertising" . . . and if our sixth grade arithmetic serves us right 73 and 20 make 93 . . . which is about 70 words too much!

SMALLEST STATION

We had the pleasure yesterday of inspecting for a short time the world's smallest broadcasting station—operated on .04 watt, or less power than it takes to illuminate your automobile headlight. It has a transmitting range of 200 feet.

Station WEE, managed by the Tiny Broadcasting Company, is attracting much attention in the lobby of a Fifth avenue theater.

Correct in every detail, the station is an exact miniature of its big brothers. All the parts are hand-made and the aerial towers, 24 inches high, are said to contain a thousand soldered joints. A small beacon on top of these towers flashes red signals intermittently to warn aviators.

WEE with its studio and control room is only eight feet high and 52 inches long. It operates on UX 199 tubes and regular batteries.

John R. Boyle, of Philadelphia, is the owner.

STUDIO LIGHTS

Baby Rose Marie has had her tonsils out . . . may appear as guest artist with Hal Kemp in a network broadcast when she recovers . . .

Toodle-oo! Ben Bernie dolls up in his blue pajamas and eats in a one-arm restaurant after his nightly broadcast . . .

Don Bestor returns to KDKA and the William Penn this Friday . . .

Beatrice Belkin, soprano, favors big notes rather than high notes . . . she has resigned the Metropolitan to accept a lucrative proposition at NBC . . .

B. A. Rolfe, Floyd Gibbons and William Burke Miller are the latest to "go talkie" . . .

Rev. John Sproul broadcasts a religious song service over WKBN, Youngstown, O., every morning at 11 . . .

Roy Atwell gave us something exhilarating last night . . . he'll come again . . .

Sight and sound are planned by WGBS and W2XCR, New York, in a regular schedule to be started tomorrow . . .

Jack Smart, "Joe" of "Mr. and Mrs.," lost his golf clubs on a railroad train recently and the search was kept up far, far into the night as Jack telephoned from one station to another to try to locate them . . .

"Little Orphan Annie" is clicking . . . and they say, too, that 4,820 people asked Morton Downey to sing "River Shannon Flows" on WJAS at 10:30 tonight.

PATRICIA PITT'S SPRIGHTLY COMMENT ON PITTSBURGH'S SOCIETY HAPPENINGS

Society Folks Attend Opening Performance Of 'Twelfth Night'

Jane Cowl, appearing at the Alvin this week in Shakespeare's immortal "Twelfth Night," attracted a full house last night. And between acts an enthusiastic audience congregated in the foyer to discuss the play. Among them I saw Elizabeth Jenkins, wearing an unusual gown of flowered chiffon, with a deep border at the hemline of black lace, and a deep cape edged with the lace. Her wrap was of black velvet with a collar of white fox. Her mother, Mrs. T. Clifton Jenkins, was among the first-nighters, too, wearing beige lace with a wrap of crimson velvet and white fox.

Mrs. James Edward Lewis chose burgundy velvet for her gown with which she wore a matching wrap of velvet. Her daughter, Mrs. Harry C. May, Jr., was with her. Mrs. May wore pastel blue flowered crepe. I saw the John W. Lawrences, too, among the spectators.

Mrs. John Milliken, of the Schenley Apartments, who is spending the early spring season in Sarasota, Fla., entertained at a dinner recently in the Plaza Cafe in honor of her hostess, Mrs. A. A. Armstrong, of Bradford, Pa., who is spending the winter at the El Vernona Apartments.

20th Century Club Hears Judge

The Twentieth Century Club honored itself when it asked Judge Sara Soffel to give the closing lecture of the season yesterday morning, "Some Trends in Political Affairs" was Judge Soffel's subject under which she sketched post war conditions in the United States, England, Germany, France and Italy and then commented on the changes which have come to these countries in the ensuing years.

She divided the post-war years into two periods, the first of which, she said, was dominated by thoughts of peace and pacts. The repudiation of Woodrow Wilson by the United States was a tragedy, she observed.

The present world depression comes from under-consumption, Judge Soffel stated, adding that economics is international but politics is national and that they have not kept pace with each other. Getting goods from one place to another demands international co-operation, she said.

Speaking of England, Judge Soffel said that country will have to come out of the Nineteenth Century into the Twentieth. She spoke of Russia's "gigantic experiment" that has caught the imagination of youth. Even if a person has no sympathy with the five-year plan and thinks there is a menace in it, it has challenged the thought of the world and is a question to which every intelligent man and woman will have to give attention, she said.

Judge Soffel was introduced by Miss Julia Morgan Harding, who also announced that the club choral had been invited to attend the Tuesday Musical Club's choral recital this afternoon.

SMARTNESS AND CHARM IN NEW SPRING MILLINERY

Sketched in Paris

Paris Bureau,
Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

PARIS, April 14. — We hope by now that you are headed for success with a spring hat that has made you realize how very charming you are. For that is the cardinal virtue of this season's crop of millinery, this most important virtue of being both becoming and devastatingly smart at one and the same time. And this is something that hasn't happened in the millinery world for a long time, a much too long time. Let us hope that never again will smartness be sacrificed to real beauty and charm.

BOTH BRIMMED and brimless models are available, each variety offering interesting ideas and details. Much liked are the shiny rough straws that have such a dashing way with them. Basket weaves, too, are blooming this spring and are much liked for the younger woman's hat. Bakou is as good as ever and is more than holding its own against the inundation of new weaves and fabrics. Ribbon trimming seems to emerge as first favorite and is used in a multiplicity of clever ways. The strictly tailored hat isn't much seen except for the ubiquitous sailor, for every model is tempered with some softening touches, no matter how utilitarian its destiny may be.

AND NOW for some hats, two of the very smartest models garnered in a round of visits to the leading modistes. The first sketch is a delightful model from Germaine Page. It is of the popular basket weave straw in a light brown and black mixture, with incrustations of black cire silk in the folds of the draped crown and on the wide brim. After the manner of the brimmed as well as the brimless models, this hat is worn well back off the face.

* * *

THE OTHER sketch is of a model from Mme. Georgette and is of empire green bakou. It has a cleverly flared brim rolled back off the forehead. At the left side the brim is fairly narrow and in its draped folds is tucked a rosette of grosgrain ribbon in three shades of green. A real spring hat.

U. S. INDUSTRIAL BOARD URGED BY KELLY

Regulation of Consumption Needed for Unemployment Cure, Credit Men Told

Appointment of a United States industrial board with co-operative features, to study situations of national importance, would help solve overproduction, under-consumption and unemployment problems in America, Congressman Clyde Kelly told a meeting of the Retail Credit Men's Association last night in the Downtown Y. M. C. A.

He said:

"We have come to the point where we will have to settle the unemployment problem with finality. Industry and the government must co-operate. America will have to control production by the same brain power that controls the machines, which are quickly eliminating the positions of workers in this country."

Speaking of immigration, he declared aliens are welcome to come to this country, but only for the good of America. He would permit no one to stay here who would overthrow the government, he said.

Harry E. Wilson, president of the credit body, presided, and Col. Franklin Blackstone introduced the speaker. Honor guests included Judges W. H. McNaugher, Elder W. Marshall, Ambrose B. Reid, Heber W. Dithrich, Paul D. Foster, Richard Kennedy, District Attorney Andrew T. Park, Councilmen Robert J. Alderdice and Robert Garland; and J. S. Deasy, vice president of the Central Region of the Pennsylvania Railroad. Music was furnished by the Red Arrow Quartet of the Pennsylvania Railroad.

Over-production cannot exist if the right number of people are engaged in the different lines of work and the channels of distribution are kept open, F. B. Nichols, managing editor of the Capper Farm Press, told the Pittsburgh Advertising Club today. Such a system, he contended, can have but one result: a higher standard of living. He added:

"The large productive capacity of agriculture and industry in America is faced with sub-normal consumption. That in turn has given free play to the psychology of fear among all classes. A serious obstruction in the channels of distribution has resulted."

Green Hat Man 'in Again'

By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER

Washington seems to have got the man in the green hat. The gent with the emerald chapeau was surrounded while purveying malted liquids in the Senate office building.

And when we say malted, we don't mean milk.

The law handed him 18 months. Six for the liquor. And 12 for the hat.

He may serve the scholarship. Provided that his lawyers cannot find some more courts. When a bootlegger is convicted in the department of oysters and terminal he immediately appeals to the appellate division on the ground that he has just written a new scenario.

If he loses there he is just getting started. He carries his samples to the higher courts and finally winds up among the stately whiskers in the Supreme Court.

If he draws a blank there he is whipped because he knows you cannot go any higher than whiskers.

Why is it so difficult to plaster a boothootcher with the ultimate verdict? In the first place he must be guilty or he wouldn't have the jack to pay his lawyers.

When a magistrate points the finger of authority at an ordinary man that citizen knows his gosling is hamburgered. He takes it on the chin and makes the best of it.

But when a racketeer is convicted it doesn't mean any more than a moo on a dairy farm. He reviews his lawyers as they march by in close formation drill, peels off a layer of thousand dollar bills from a bankroll that is muscled like an elephant's wrist and starts the influential whisper going. He hasn't any more idea of serving that rap then a centipede has of walking on its hind legs.

He appeals to a higher court. If that flops he carries it a rung further north. All of this takes time and meanwhile he is walking around in the co-operative sunshine as fresh as a geranium in the bud.

Why do we have magistrates if we require a judge to confirm their decisions? And why do we have judges when we also need higher justices to validate their guesses?

We must admire the racketeers for one thing. Their own brand of punishment is final. Nobody has to corroborate the decision of a machine gun or an expanding pineapple.

At least they get results.

SEASON OPENS WITH GOOD PROSPECTS

BASEBALL HAS HAD much to contend with in recent years, both inside and outside its own ranks, but as the cover is peeled off a new season today—the fifty-sixth in the National League and the thirty-second in the American—there is every indication that the game is in as healthy a state as ever and will speedily make good John A. Heydler's forecast that in spite of business slumps and other obstacles, 1931 will prove again that interest in the diamond sport is reborn every spring.

John A. Heydler

The old interest is certain to be found in evidence during the early stages of the season, at least, and as interest and patronage later depend upon the closeness of the flag races there would appear to be no doubt about the success of the new campaign as a whole. For with an open five-cornered fight in prospect in the National and three or four clubs threatening to give the A's a battle in the American, there are two races in sight that promise to hold public attention as steadily as any others run in late seasons. All around, it looks like a big year for the game.

WITH THE OPENING of another season, the revised playing and scoring codes show more than the usual number of rule changes for the baseball fans to digest. One of the oldest provisions in the book is among those wiped out. It is the rule stipulating a game must be started at least two hours before sundown.

Clearly, the object of this change is to make it possible for major league clubs to play night baseball. With one or two exceptions, the owners of big league clubs are opposed to playing games by artificial light, but the rule that made such games illegal has been killed just the same, so that night ball is now within the law if any of the moguls should take a notion to play it.

WITH A RUNNER on first or second base, the pitcher hereafter must hold the ball in front of him with both hands before delivering it to the batsman. He is also forbidden to stand with both feet in front of the rubber as was done formerly. He must have at least one foot ON TOP of the slab when he delivers the ball.

If the hurler employs a preliminary stretch by raising his hands above his head or in the direction of the plate, he must return to a natural position and pause momentarily before starting his delivery. The momentary catch of a fly ball by a fielder has been abolished. The ball must be caught and held.

BATTED BALLS LEAVING the playing field will be ruled fair or foul according to where they go out of the field instead of where they disappear from the umpire's view. A batter cannot now lose a home run through a ball's curving foul after leaving the park fair. There is no longer any such thing as a sacrifice fly. No matter whether a runner scores on a fly ball or advances elsewhere on the bases the batter will be charged with a time at bat. And a fairly batted ball that bounds into a stand or over a fence will be only a two-base hit instead of a home run. An unusual lot of changes for one year.

Andy Bednar

THE SEASON ON which the curtain rises today sees the major leagues presenting the largest crop of young pitchers that has started a championship campaign in the big show in many years. Pittsburgh's youngest flinger is Andy Bednar, 21, but he is by no means the most youthful in the fast set.

The youngest of all is Lewis Krauss, a recruit of 18 with the A's. There are three of 19 years in Harold Schumacher, of the Giants, and Al Butcher and Hank McDonald, of the Mackmen. The Athletics also have a 20-year-old in Carter.

THE 21-YEAR-OLDS, in addition to Bednar, are Gomez, of the Yankees; Harder, of the Indians, and Gans, of the Braves. Those of 22 years are French and Wood, of the Pirates; Sherid, of the Yankees; Lucas, of the Giants; Craghead, of the Indians; Durham, of the Red Sox, and Warneke, of the Cubs.

In the 23-year-old class are Ferrell, of the Indians; Parmalee, of the Giants; Derringer, of the Cardinals; Andrews and Rhodes, of the Yankees; Wyatt, of the Tigers; McAfee, of the Braves; Griffith, of the Senators; Gallivan, of the Robins; McKain, of the White Sox; Eckert and Johnson, of the Reds, and Stiles, of the Browns. To French Pirate left-hander, falls the distinction of being the youngest pitcher chosen to start an opening game in the majors today.

MAX CAREY, in Pittsburgh on a business visit, confirms the rumor that he may eventually become a member of the National League staff of umpires. President Heydler during the winter tried to find a post for the veteran. One of the clubs approached suggested that Heydler himself give Carey work as an umpire. The league chief and Max have talked the matter over, Carey is not averse to giving it a whirl, and possibly before the season is over Max will be seen out there calling them.

SOMETIMES A WINTER favorite for the big spring horse racing stakes fails to run up to expectations in his early trials and his supporters begin to weaken. But that certainly is not the case with Equipoise, Cornelius Vanderbilt Whitney's star, favorite for both the Preakness and the Kentucky Derby.

In a workout at Havre de Grace last Friday, Equipoise stepped three-quarters of a mile in 1:13 2-5, fast time for a 3-year-old at this period, and what's more, he did it eased up in the final furlong. Yesterday at the same track, in his first race of the year, he gave another impressive performance by winning the Glen Oaks purse in impressive style over a fair field. And he was under wraps all the way. He looks more and more like the probable 1931 standout.

NOTRE DAME men in Pittsburgh have received word that Joe Prelli, former varsity halfback at the South Bend school, is critically ill. Prelli, who was graduated from Notre Dame in 1928, was developed by the late Knute Rockne and played on the teams of 1925, 1926 and 1927 under Capts. Clem Crowe, Eugene Edwards-Tom Heardon and John Smith.

Those teams in their three full seasons lost only four games against 23 won and two tied. The 1926 team was identically the same as that of 1925 except for one man, Capt. Crowe having graduated. Among Prelli's team mates were Parisien, Enright, O'Boyle, Flanagan, Wynne, McManmon, Voedisch, Boeringer, Chevigny, Moynihan, Cannon, Hanousek, Law and Colrick.

Tommy Freeman

LIKE KING ALFONSO, of Spain, some of Glovedom's reigning monarchs may be forced to step down from their thrones. The first in danger of being unseated is Tommy Freeman, world welterweight titleholder, who risks his crown in a 15-round bout with Young Jack Thompson in Cleveland tonight. It was on a questionable decision by Referee Patsy Haley that Freeman took the title from Thompson in the same city on September 5 last. The system of having two judges vote first will be used tonight. Thompson looks to be the superior all-around fighter, and if he is at his best it will not be surprising if he turns the tables and wins back the championship.

Umpires—Quigley, Reardon and Scott.

By CHARLES J. DOYLE
Staff Correspondent.

CHICAGO, April 14—It's opening day in Chicago and it's good to be here.

The fascinating Cubs, under the leadership of Joe McCarthy, moved the capital of baseball to Chicago and the big city is filled with loyal subjects, 45,000 of whom wish to sit in this afternoon as the Bruins start a new season under Marse Joe's successor—Rogers Hornsby.

The Pirates are the piece de resistance. Alone in such a big city, they are supposed to jump through for the growling Bears, but Jewel Ens and his crew have no such feelings in their makeup.

Swinging into the championship event this afternoon, the Freebooters will battle behind one of the nerviest sharpshooters in the league. Larry French is just a boy in years, but here we have a youngster who has the confidence of a veteran and the courage to back up his stuff.

For Larry it is destined to be, unless Manager Ens makes an eleventh hour change in favor of Remy Kremer, who has been ill.

Jewel's slab plans for the inaugural were upset when Ervin Brame went down with sickness a few days ago. As late as last night the tall Kentuckian was running a fever, but his condition eliminated him even before the fever appeared.

Ens would be loath to pitch an ordinary southpaw against a club that boasts eight righthand batters, but French is no ordinary lefthander, even if his record of last year has the stamp of mediocrity. The skipper likes the southpaw, partly on account of his nerve and partly because he dishes up a screw ball. This offering is a half speed thing which drifts away from a right-hand batter and therefore is puzzling, especially when blended with a good fast ball and sufficient control.

French looks the part of a champion so far as physical condition is concerned. He is a reminder of Jack Dempsey as he awaits the bell, and if one or two of the boys have to hit the dirt at the plate you will know that Larry is riled a bit.

ROOT CUB CHOICE

Opposng Larry will be Charley Root, a veteran righthander and hero of many hot fights, yet withal a star of the mound who has not had too much success against the Freebooters. In days gone by the Pittsburghers have been severe with the sturdy Root, and you may be sure there will be nothing left undone to give Charley a shellacking this afternoon.

The catchers will be Rolly Hemsley for the Pirates and Leo Hartnett for the Cubs. It would be hard to find two receivers of more natural ability.

The temporary illness which has come to a couple of his pitchers has not dulled Manager Ens' ferver. Jewel is so pleased to be able to start his first-choice lineup he has no regrets to offer. He says he would like to get Brame and Kremer both into action in the four-game series here but he is not worrying heavily on that point.

The home club, too, will be in full strength in the jumpoff battle. Manager Hornsby expects to direct his club from his second-base position and he will be in his familiar third notch of the Chicago attack.

Unless the weather turns very cold Wrigley Field is likely to shelter a banner crowd. The vast ball park is reported to be sold out and there will be a lot of scrambling for the unreserved sections.

Manager Ens' statement:

"If our pitching holds up we should be right in the thick of Playing a sort of an oboe accompaniment to the resounding clash of cymbals and tooting of horns of the major league inaugurals, Pittsburgh's own high school baseball season pops today, with nine ball games on the book. Six will be played in the senior division and three in the junior.

The campaign opens up with Red Gross' Schenley warriors placed in the difficult position of defending senior league champions. Schenley copped the duke in Section I last year and then hammered away to defeat Oliver in the intersectional playoff series.

This afternoon, Connelley's Bellefielders will take off against Connelley in the feature tussle in Section I. Westinghouse meets Allderdice at Allderdice and Peabody and Fifth Avenue will mess with one another at Peabody, completing the section card.

In Section II the champion Oliver nine is to test its strength against Langley. Carrick goes to the North Side for a session with Allegheny and Vocational appears at South Hills.

He was the only sovereign in the world to pay taxes to his subjects. OLD HOSS RADBOURNE—Charles Radbourne, one of the greatest pitchers in the history of baseball, was the pitching champion of the National League in 1884, when he was with the Providence team, the pennant winner of that year. The 745 innings which he pitched during the season comprised 72 regular games, three world series games and five exhibitions. In the same year, he established two world records which still stand—pitched 22 consecutive games, and won 60 of the 72 regular games. (Reference: "All Sports Record and History Book," by Frank G. MAJOR LEAGUE CLUBS SET FOR OPENERS

BIG TURNOUTS TO ATTEND GAMES

NEW YORK, April 14.—(AP.)—It's fair and warmer along the baseball fronts for the grand opening of the major league season today.

Far from feeling any pinch of the times, the 16 American and National League clubs have marshalled reinforcements, increased the wages of many of their star performers and otherwise set the stage for a gala getaway as well as a brisk campaign and big business all summer long.

Approximately 230,000 fans are expected to turn out for the eight opening games, prepared to give the great American sport an appropriate sendoff and attack the fresh suplies of peanuts, popcorn and soda with patriotic enthusiasm.

HOOVER HEADS NOTABLES

President Hoover heads the list of notables, who will figure in the opening ceremonies, featured, according to time-honored custom, by formal parades, floral tokens and the hoisting of flags.

The President will be on hand to watch Connie Mack's Champions start the defense of their title against the Washington Senators.

There will be no special attraction, except for the annual debut of the one and only Babe Ruth, but the New York Yankees and Boston Red Sox expect to draw an opening day crowd of 50,000 to the Yankee Stadium.

More than 40,000, including Commissioner Landis, may see Rogers Hornsby and his Chicago Cubs start the National League campaign against the Pittsburgh Pirates at Wrigley Field, Chicago.

HEYDLER WATCHES GIANTS

John Arnold Heydler, president of the National League, planned to see the New York Giants open the season at Philadelphia, while the rampaging Brooklyn Robins journeyed to Boston to trade heavy wallops with the Braves.

The Detroit Tigers will play the Browns at St. Louis, featuring a southpaw duel between Earl Whitehill and Walter Stewart, while the Chicago White Sox oppose the Indians at Cleveland.

While standing pat on their regular lineups, the Cardinals and Athletics, outstanding favorites to repeat their 1930 pennant victories, both have strengthened their pitching prospects by acquiring sensational youngsters.

Says Nick Altrock

(Baseball's Comedian)

WASHINGTON, April 14.—Unless the umpires are wrong again, the season gets started today.

Nick Altrock

Hoover will toss out the first ball after spring training in the Virgin Islands.

Of course, the experts have closed the polls and elected the Cards and A's to the World Series, so that means the main season is just a recount.

They say Babe Ruth is in better form this year. That probably means the Babe can eat more hot dogs for dessert. But if he was off form last season I wish I had the same kind of stomach trouble.

I see Tris Speaker will announce ball games on the radio in Chicago. If that's what happens when you graduate from baseball I am going to sign up for crooning lessons now.

A. A. ENTRIES START RACE

CHICAGO, April 14.—(AP.)—Louisville's Colonels, the last club to win two American Association championships in a row, today attacked the task of accomplishing the feat again.

Under Joe McCarthy and Bill Meyer, Louisville won the titles in 1925 and 1926, but no team has been able to repeat since. The Kansas City Blues, victors in 1929 and strong favorites to repeat last season, were unable to beat the growing jinx and never figured in the championship race, finishing fifth.

The Colonels, however, in spite of the loss of two stars, Mel Simons and Phil Weinert, are regarded as a great possibility to repeat this season.

Louisville opened at home today with Minneapolis, which landed third last season, as its opponent.

St. Paul, runnerup to Louisville by two and one-half games last season, was at Indianapolis for the opening.

Columbus, once called the Senators, but now named the Red Birds since the club was added to the St. Louis Cardinal system, faced Milwaukee.

Kansas City faced Toledo at Toledo, with both clubs hoping for better things than last season. The Mud Hens finished third a year ago.

PITT TO NAME FLOOR LEADER THURSDAY

By JESS CARVER

Pitt's basketball captain, or captains (and it looks as if it will be the plural) will be announced at the annual sport banquet of the university at Webster Hall Thursday night. The announcement will be made by Dr. H. C. Carlson, the fiery Panther coach.

Coach Carlson already has turned in his recommendations for monograms and for the captaincy to the athletic council, which, by the way, is putting on the dinner. The council undoubtedly will place its o. k. on Doc's suggestions.

Varsity and freshman basketballers, boxers, swimmers and cross-country men will be guests at the affair Thursday. The footballers had their dinner shortly after the gridiron season ended, so the only way Jock's boys will get in Thursday will be as waiters.

The Tipoff

Earl Cavanaugh, a member of the younger set of football officials of these hyar parts, is receiving the congratulations of his pals on his fine schedule for next year, sent him recently by Commissioner Walter Okeson. Brother Cavanaugh, who was rated very high by the coaches last year, is to do quite a bit of work for Greasy Neale at West Virginia, numbering among his games the West Virginia-Fordham tussle in New York.

Dr. Carlson was the principal speaker at Monessen High's basketball dinner at Monessen last night. Other sammers on the program included this correspondent and Earl Louden, coach at Greensburg High, Friday night, at the Father and Sons' banquet of the H-Y Club of Aliquippa High. Bob Waddell will have the boys standing up on their chairs.

Beaver Falls High School will lose its track captain at a very important period of the season. Capt. Curt Young will become 20 years of age May 2, and after that day, he can't compete as a high schooler. Cose the W. P. I. A. L. will toss both himself and his school out.

Another high school star, Paul MacMurdo, Ellwood City's crack half-miler, also is ineligible this year. MacMurdo won the Carnegie Tech, W. P. A. L., Geneva Interscholastic and the Beaver Valley half-mile jaunts last year.

Track Coach Guy Halferty, of Carnegie Tech, has been strangely silent so far this spring with regard to his track and field prospects, which leads one to believe that Coach Guy is going to have a fair team. The Tartans haven't been able to do much in the way of track for the past few years, which is nothing to Halferty's discredit, by the way.

Cam Henderson, Davis-Elkins' crafty head coach, has appointed Albert Hawley, the crackerjack Indian center, and Kerr Whitefield co-captains of the Scarlet Hurricane eleven for next fall. Hawley ranks with the best centers in the East.

A meeting was held at the Edgar Thompson Club, Braddock, yesterday, by citizens of North Braddock, Braddock, Rankin, East Pittsburgh and Turtle Creek for the purpose of planning a testimonial banquet for the Scott High basketball team, champion of the state.

A. L. OPENERS ON AIR

NEW YORK, April 14.—(INS.)—The opening American League game in New York at the Yankee Stadium and the one in Washington, which will be attended by the President and Mrs. Hoover, were described today over nationwide radio networks.

The New York Yankees-Boston Red Sox opener were aired by the National Broadcasting Company.

In Washington the world champion Philadelphia Athletics-Senators game was carried by the Columbia Broadcasting System.

Seeded Stars Win In North-South Play

PINEHURST, N. C., April 14.—(AP.)—Despite one near upset, all the seeded players came safely through the first and second round matches yesterday in the thirteenth annual North and South tennis tournament.

The sensation of the day was Ed Yeomans, of Washington, University of North Carolina star, who forced Frank X. Shields, of New York, seeded No. 1, to three sets before losing, 5-7, 6-4, 9-7, in the second round.

John Van Ryn, Philadelphia; Berkeley Bell, Austin; Bryan Grant, Atlanta, and Wilmer Hines, Columbia, S. C., won easy victories in their second-round matches. Clifford Sutter, New Orleans, advanced by default.

Geneva Freshmen Win Class Meet

BEAVER FALLS, Pa., April 14.—Indications that Geneva will continue to flash considerable strength again this year in track, was evidenced here yesterday afternoon as the freshmen won the annual class meet with a 57½-point score, to finish ahead of the sophomores, who had 43, the juniors, 37½, and the seniors, 27.

MEN BOWLERS OPEN ATTACK TODAY

The men folks will come into their own as the second day's rolling in the first annual duckpin tournament of the Greater Pittsburgh Bowling Alley Owners' Association gets under way on the Haus alleys, North Side. Competition will be begun at 6 p. m., with pin-scattering in the singles first on the card.

Trick Passes, Double Spinner, Great Aids To Rockne's Elevens

ROCKNE'S LIFE STORY—THIRTEENTH INSTALMENT.

By WARREN BROWN

(Copyright, 1931, Chicago Herald and Examiner. Distributed by Universal Service.)

In preceding chapters, some mention has been made of the additions that Rockne made to the system that "just growed" at Notre Dame, the system that was based on the shift.

Rockne's early teams had no particular attack against the weak side of opposing defense. He found these opponetn massing their defense against the shift, and the plays that Rockne either devised himself, or took from others, and improved upon, were a natural consequence.

Ernie Nevers

One of these plays was a forward pass from a split buck. The split buck was one of the Notre Dame favorites, and there is testimony to be had that Joe Brandy, quarterback in Gipp's time, was the first to suggest to Rockne that a pass could be worked into the play.

"No," said Rockne, "it's no good."

Brandy insisted that it was, and went so far as to demonstrate, but Rockne held out against it.

Evidently he took time to study it, privately, for when Harry Stuhldreher, one of the Four Horsemen, appeared at Notre Dame, the play was used by him.

INDIANS SEE PASS

One of the first outside organizations that had a look at it were the Haskell Indians, then being coached by Dick Hanley, now of Northwestern.

"The Indians," says Hanley, "were on the road, as usual, and dropped off at South Bend to scrimmge Rock's team. They did very well, indeed, for a while, and then Stuhldreher began to throw that pass around.

"The Indians had never seen anything like it, and they actually stood around, with their mouths open, 'like brook trout,' Rockne said. As long as I remained at Haskell, whenever I would see Rock, he would ask how my 'brook trout' were getting along."

This same play figured largely in a victory scored over Northwestern in 1926, and even more so, in the concluding game of that season, against Southern California.

The only variation was that the passes were thrown with the left hand, Art Parisienne being the author. One of them beat Northwestern.

The chief characteristic of the Four Horsemen was speed. And the shift, placing the offense in a certain position before the defense was able to offset it, demoralized the enemy, for the Four Horsemen were very rapid young men, going places, and doing things.

The Four Horsemen appeared as a combination, for the first time in 1922, against Carnegie Tech.

None of the four was of the size usually associated with football playing. Elmer Layden and Jimmy Crowley had been fighting for the left half back job, when an injury to Castner caused Rockne to move Layden to fullback.

HORSEMEN ASSEMBLED

Thus was the quartet of Stuhldreher, Crowley, Layden and Don Miller assembled, a quartet that was to familiarize 28 out of the 32 teams they played with the blues, Nebraska, on both occasions, furnished the dissenting vote, but the 34-to-6 win the Four Horsemen scored over Nebraska in 1924, the year they rode to a national championship, seemed to balance the old scores.

It was this 1924 team which was the first to visit the Pacific Coast, participating in the Tournament of Roses game at Pasadena, against Pop Warner's Stanford team, composed largely of Ernie Nevers, whom Rockne has called one of the four great backs of all time, and whom Warner himself has placed ahead of Jim Thorpe.

The spinner used by Nevers in that game made Rockne just a bit thoughtful.

Some time afterwards, meeting up with Dick Hanley and Charley Bachman in the Kansas City Athletic Club, he talked at length of the spinner.

"Pop's got something in that," Rockne said, "but I'm going on further with it. Half spinners and full spinners are just a start. I guess I'll have to develop double spinners."

Rockne was joking then, or so it seemed to his audience, who laughed politely.

But the year 1930 saw Notre Dame teams actually execute a play which amounted to a double spinner. Southern California was the victim, and for days afterwards, coaches and authors were still attempting to describe what had happened in a play in which, it seemed, all the Notre Dame forces save Rockne, had been handling the ball before Carideo finally started to run forward with it, while most of the Trojans were chasing, tackling.

No More Shaving! No Razor!

One—
Two—Three—
and the beard is off without a razor!

Sensational Discovery
Now Makes Shaving Unnecessary!

Think of it—the quickest and slickest, closest and smoothest "shave" you ever had—without using a razor! A face so smooth you never knew you had such soft skin! And instead of shaving every day you need apply this delightful new discovery only TWICE a week! It "breaks" the whiskers off slightly below the skin while a razor cuts them off above the surface. You just cannot believe it till you try it for yourself. And why not—when you can do so without risking a penny?

SNOW
The FACIAL Depilatory

The only hair remover applied swiftly and easily with a brush. Just lay it on and take it off! $1.00 package lasts from one to two months.

MILLIONS SOLD ABROAD

Not a harsh chemical that eats off the hair. But a gentle compound that makes the beard so brittle it "breaks" off. Men with very tender skins now actually enjoy their morning glorification (which, by the way, may now be performed at night, because the beard barely grows overnight). In contrast with razor-shaving SNOW greatly slows up the growth of the beard and makes it much lighter, thinner and softer. Endorsed by European authorities as perfectly harmless. Silver Medal Winner at Strasbourg, France.

—WOMEN—

Women delight in this new and gentle depilatory which may be used on face or limbs with great speed and complete freedom from pain or stench. A $1.00 package is four times larger than most others.

For Sale by Gimbel Bros., Kaufmann's, Joseph Horne Co., Rosenbaum's, Boggs & Buhl, H. J. Mansmann's, and all drug stores.

If not convenient to shop in town, ask your druggist to get SNOW for you or order direct.

Rasofix Corp. of America,
200 Broadway, New York, N. Y., Dept. 90
Please send a large box of "SNOW" and a special fibre brush. I enclose $1 (or I will pay $1.15 on delivery). You are to refund the full cost if for any reason I am not delighted with the results.

WOLGAST WINS OVER BELL

CHAMP PROVES TOO SPEEDY FOR FOE

By HARRY KECK
Sports Editor.

One of the smallest houses of the season turned out at Motor Square Garden last night to see a championship claimant strut his stuff in the boxing ring. It was obvious that the terrible third meeting between Jackie Rodgers and Johnny Dado, followed by the sloppy exhibition of the out-of-condition Maxie Rosenbloom, light-heavyweight champion, against Billy Jones, in the two preceding shows, had made a lasting impression on some of the best customers of the city's largest arena, which had been coasting along in the best stride of its career until these snags were struck.

Announcements that a wrestling show will be held in the Garden tomorrow night under the auspices of the Boxing Commission's hand-picked and unknown promoter from out of town, Arthur Sharkey, and that Buck Lawless, of Syracuse, and Pete Suskey, of Scranton, will box the main bout next Monday night were met with almost deafening silence, promising two more wasted evenings.

SPEED DECIDES BATTLE

The windup last night between Midget Wolgast, flyweight kingpin, and Archie Bell, Brooklyn veteran, was a good one, earnestly fought, with Bell, sporting a weight edge of almost five pounds, stalking Wolgast about the ring throughout, but winning only the fifth and sixth rounds, when Wolgast slowed down long enough to be hit. Over all of the remainder of the route, the Midget was entirely too fast of hand and foot and won by whatever margin he elected.

There were no knockdowns and the only really exciting feature, aside from the rattling of blows from Wolgast's lightning-like left hand, came in the closing seconds of the seventh round, when the Midget accidently struck Bell low with a left swing. Almost simultaneously a cut was opened on Bell's right eye. He resumed fighting after a few seconds' rest, and they continued to trade punches after the bell.

The bout was a fine boxing exhibition between two masters, with Wolgast's superior speed the determining factor. Wolgast weighed 114½ pounds and Bell 113¼ at 3 p. m.

ELIMS ONE-SIDED

The preliminaries were one-sided and for the most part uninteresting, but all, for some reason or other, went the limit. Jesse Butch, Oakland southpaw, 103¾, shellacked Frisco Grande, Filipino veteran, of Buffalo, 117½, in the eight-round semi-final; Len Carter, local Negro, formerly of California, 137¼, made a punching bag out of Nick Zinnia, of Connellsville, 140¼, in the second bout of six rounds, and Joey Bazzone, of McKeesport, 137, was aggressive but no match in boxing skill for Eddie Hebner, of Clairton 136, who handed him a good beating in the six-round opener.

Al Grayber and Eddie Kennedy alternated as referees. Frank Brown and Lou Meininger were the judges, A. C. Couch and Norman Borland the timers and Harry Klaas the announcer.

Bass Beats Firpo In Return Battle

PHILADELPHIA, April 14.—(INS.)—Benny Bass, king of the junior-lightweights, had evened the score today with Young Firpo, the sawed-off Pennsgrove (N. J.) battler, who trounced him at the Arena here two weeks ago. Benny gained revenge by dealing out a beating to his chunky opponent in a 10-round bout last night before 10,000 yelling fans.

Firpo chased Bass for the first four rounds, taking them on aggressiveness, but then he tired, following a knockdown in the fifth for a nine count, and Bass took the majority of the late rounds and the decision. Firpo was down for an eight count in the eighth round.

Rockne's Life Story

or bumping Notre Dame players, yards away from the ball.

ILLNESS DELAYS PLANS

The culmination of Rockne's attempt to create a new offensive with the spinner and the reverse and fake reverse interspersed with the basic value of the shift, was delayed in 1929 by his illness.

He had begun to work out his plan of attack and demonstrated some of it. His last year found the change and it was a change—working to perfection.

His team began piling up large scores, and appeared to be using new plays to do it.

Practically all the games down to the last few on the schedule were decided by a running attack and each time out the team looked more impressive.

It was after scouting the team against Pitt that Pat Hanley, brother of Dick, announced that he was going back to Northwestern and suggest that his brother call off the game, and offer to wrestle Rockne on the 50-yard line, instead.

LEWIS REGAINS MAT TITLE

LOS ANGELES, April 14.—(AP.)—For the fourth time in a decade, Ed (Strangler) Lewis today assumed the role of claimant of the heavyweight wrestling championship of the world.

Considered by many in recent years to be too decrepit to return to the throne of grapplers as recognized in California and several other states, Lewis last night terminated Ed (Don) George's reign which had lasted four months, defeating the former university athlete in straight falls.

The 39-year-old veteran crushed his 29-year-old opponent into submission with a series of headlocks in the first session, and then made short work of this former national amateur champion to pin his shoulders to the mat for the deciding fall.

CUP PLAYOFF SHELVED

OTTAWA, Ont., April 14. — (AP.)—Arrangements for a playoff series between Tulsa, champions of the American League, and the 1931 National League holders of the Stanley Cup, emblematic of the world's professional hockey championship, can not be made this year, custodians of the Stanley Cup announced here last night. Tulsa's challenge had been filed formally yesterday.

The Stanley Cup holders for 1931 will be decided at Montreal tonight when the Montreal Canadiens clash with the Chicago Blackhawks in the fifth and final game of their playoff series.

Carrick, Allegheny Battle for Laurels

Carrick and Allegheny clash today for the senior volleyball championship of the city high schools.

Carrick won the title in Section I by defeating Fifth Avenue High, while Allegheny was crowned Section II champion by defeating Connelley.

In the junior high tourney yesterday Gladstone advanced to the semi-finals by defeating Langley, 15-4, 15-2 and Latimer, 15-5, 15-11, after Latimer had eliminated Fifth Avenue, 15-9, 15-11. Herron Hill advanced at the expense of Peabody, 15-10, 15-10. The semi-finals will be played Thursday and the final Friday night.

RANGERS WIN ON COAST

VANCOUVER, B. C., April 14. (AP.)—Starting with a whirlwind attack that netted them four goals in the first period, the New York Rangers defeated the Vancouver Lions, 6 to 2, in an ice hockey exhibition here last night.

Phainting Phil Offers to Bet On Self

LONDON, April 14.—(AP.)—Phil Scott, British heavyweight boxing champion and beauty parlor operator, has offered to make a personal bet of $500 that he beats Larry Gains, of Toronto, Negro heavyweight champion of Canada, when they meet here June 13. Gains signed for the bout yesterday.

Acclaimed here as a puncher, Gains rules a strong favorite over Scott, who has not fought since his beating at the hands of Young Stribling at Wimbleton last July.

Scott declared he was in fine condition after weeks of light workouts. His beauty shop, he revealed, has not proved a brilliant financial success.

Macks, Bruins Betting Choices In Majors

NEW YORK, April 14.—(INS.)—The Athletics and Chicago Cubs are favored to win the 1931 pennant races in the latest betting odds, posted in the financial district today as follows:

American League—Philadelphia, 1-1; Washington, 8-5; New York, 2-1; Cleveland, 5-1; Detroit, 10-1; St. Louis, 20-1; Chicago, 50-1; Boston, 100-1.

National League—Chicago, 6-5; St. Louis, 8-5; New York, 2-1; Brooklyn, 3-1; Pittsburgh, 6-1; Cincinnati, 20-1; Boston, 50-1; Philadelphia, 100-1.

BUCS, BRUINS AWAIT GONG

the race, and I am hopeful it will hold up. At the present time our catching is satisfactors, our infield is good and we have a dandy outfield. It is hardly necessary to state the condition of our club is much better than it was one year ago. Personally, I look for a flag chase involving five teams, with Braves likely to cause trouble. Besides our team there are the Cardinals, Cubs, Giants and Robins. I think the Cubs are good, but I believe the Cardinals are more dangerous, the Giants fight you to the last ditch and the Robins will be mean if they get good hurling."

Manager Hornsby's statement:

"I guess I have said all there is to say about the 1931 race and the Cubs. However, I know we have a team that will make a lot of runs and that will play good ball. We are stronger than last year, but I understand some of our rivals are strengthened, too. You may be assured that the Cubs rate as contenders and will give their best efforts to bring another pennant to Chicago. Five clubs in the National League are so evenly balanced the breaks may decide the outcome. We will try to force our share of 'em."

Voigt to Compete In British Amateur

NEW YORK, April 14.—(AP.)—The British amateur golf championship at Westward Ho next month, will have no Bobby Jones to harass native born players, but George Voigt, of New York, has decided to have another shot at the title.

Voigt plans to sail on the Aquitania on May 5 and already has filed his entry for the championship which starts May 18.

Voigt competed in the championship last year and bowed to Jones in the semi-final only after a bitter struggle.

Berlenbach, who is seeking to regain the heights in the 175-pound class, gave Henderson a terrific beating from the opening gong and the referee stepped in to save the Harlem fighter after two minutes and 20 seconds of fighting.

Freeman weighed 146¾ pounds and Thompson 145.

Many boxing fans from the Pittsburgh district will take in the world welterweight championship boxing bout in the Cleveland Auditorium tonight between Tommy Freeman, the champion, and Young Jack Thompson, former champion. A number of them left early enough to witness the opening game of the American League season, a joint sports feature of the day in the Ohio city.

An all-star preliminary card backs up the show, Jackie Rodgers, local Negro featherweight, appearing in a six-round bout against Chico Cisneros, a Mexican protege of Freeman.

The Freeman-Thompson bout is their third meeting. They first fought in Detroit, in January of last year, with Freeman winning the decision. Last September, in the Cleveland baseball park, Thompson won hands down, but was stripped of the championship on an atrocious and generally denounced decision by the referee. Thompson and his manager, however, took the loss of the title so lightly as to leave a suspicion of "business," and, for this reason, many of the fans who witnessed that clash will make it a point to be absent from tonight's return bout.

Two judges will try to make the right guess on the decision tonight. If they fail to agree, the referee will decide the winner.

Between Rounds

Motor Square Garden has arranged matches between Eddie Shea and Steve Smith, and between Ray Levinsky and Emmett Rocco. Dates are to be announced later.

Tiny Roebuck, the big Indian wrestler, who meets Wee Willie Davis, of Chicago, in one of the time limit matches on the mat card at Motor Square Garden tomorrow night, is a reformed fighter. He found the boxing game too tough and wrestling not only easier, but also more lucrative. Jim McMillen meets Young Romano and Dick Shikat opposes Andy Zahraroff in the two finish matches on the five-bout card.

Promoter Apples Meyers, of the Moose Temple, will have a brother act for his patrons Friday night, having signed Tony Bazzone, of McKeesport, to box Carl Montebano, of Braddock, in his opening bout and Joey Bazzone, brother of Tony, to meet Jack Thompson, of Wrren, O., in the second bout. Pal Silvers, of New York, and Joe Walters, of Springfield, O., are back for a repeat of their recent sensational draw in the same ring in the windup, and Frank Novak, of the North Side, and Lee Peer, former Marine, heavyweights, box the semi-final.

Johnny Risko and King Levinsky have been matched for Boston next Tuesday night. Gene Stanton, Cleveland heavyweight, meets Frankie Wine at Charleston, W. Va., May 1.

Fay Kosky, San Francisco southpaw, meets Gaston Le Cadre, the Frenchman, in Frisco tomorrow night.

Buddy McAuthur, who boxes Lloyd Clements on the Tiger Joe Randall-Ted Yarosz card in McKeesport, Thursday night, is not on the program at Franklin, Pa., next week, according to his manager, Bernard Kelly, Jr.

The oft-postponed return bout between Benny Touchstone and Frankie Simms is back on the boards for Ypsilanti, Mich., Thursday night.

Johnny Dixon boxes Johnny Peppe and Bob Schilling meets Pete Shedrick in bouts in Philadelphia, Friday night.

Joey Angelo, of Braddock, and Kid Blues, Negro boxer, will open the McKeesport show Thursday night.

Grays Sweep Series With St. Louis Stars

GEN. PERSHING ADDRESSING U. S. OFFICERS ABOUT TO MOVE TO THE FRONT IN APRIL, 1918

came necessary, and making the best possible use of the Belgian forces on their own territory.

This same point of view I presented to the King of the Belgians and the chief of staff of the Belgian Army, whom I saw during the 17th; it also inspired the instructions I left with Gen. Plumer on the 18th, before leaving Blendesques to return to Sarcus.

It was this way of looking at the matter which formed the basis of the letters I wrote some hours later to Lieut.-Gen. Gillian and to Field Marshal Haig, for I wished to make clear to them again the line of conduct to be followed in the present circumstances by both the Belgian Army and the British 2nd Army.

It was the same which was developed in the memorandum I had issued to the Allied armies, treating of the general principles which should govern a defensive battle.

The idea of a vigorous resistance where they stood should not, however, relieve commanding generals from the duty of selecting and organizing one or more lines on which to retire in case of retreat, or of improving existing defenses, such as those of the British 1st Army running from the neighborhood of Arras to the vicinity of Saint-Omer.

At a meeting of the Belgian and British staffs held at this time, we arranged for a study to be made "of the measures necessary to adjust the successive British (defensive) organizations with the existing or anticipated organizations of the Belgian army" as well as the best line of demarcation between the two armies.

Finally, supposing an enemy offensive directed from Ypres on Poperinghe, the use to be made of Allied reserves, whatever their nationality—British, Belgian or French—was prescribed in a general scheme fixed jointly by all the staffs concerned.

It was not long before all these precautions bore their fruit.

From April 17 to 20 the enemy multiplied in vain his efforts against the Allied front south of the Flanders hills; he reaped nothing but sanguinary losses. But if the drain on the Germans was heavy, that on the British was no less so, and a letter dated April 18 from Marshal Haig, set forth its extent. Fortunately, other resources were about to become available for continuing the struggle; these were the French reserves.

Important Town Taken

There was thus produced a general movement of extension of French reserves toward the north, justified by the threefold necessity of supporting the British in Flanders, of acting with them, if need arose, in the Arras region, and of being properly distributed for intervention on the Somme.

All menace in the last two directions was far from being removed, and the struggle might flare up there again at any moment. For, according to the calculations of the French staff, the enemy still had available some 60 divisions with which to make another try at separating the French and British forces. So far he had failed to accomplish it.

For three weeks comparative calm had reigned on the front to the south of the Somme; but on April 23 the alarm was suddenly given. A German attack, carried out by eight divisions advancing under cover of the fog, captured Villers-Bretonneux from the British 4th Army and Hangard from the French 1st Army, and then pushed forward up to the outskirts of Cachy.

The establishment of the enemy at Villers-Bretonneux was bound to have most unfortunate consequences for us. It provided him with observation posts and gun positions which would enable him to bombard, attack and capture Amiens under excellent conditions; in other words, by following the line of the Somme, he could greatly advance his plan of cutting the communications of the Allied armies, and he might even separate them.

Villers-Bretonneux was a fairly large place and would constitute a point of support of great value to the enemy if he were given time to organize it. It was necessary that we recapture it immediately and at all costs.

Try to Regain Loss

Accordingly, as soon as the news reached me, I wrote to Gen. Rawlinson to make preparations to recapture Villers-Bretonneux, the possession of which was vital to us, and to arrange with Gen. Debenny for the counter-attack. Gen. Rawlinson, without hesitation fell in with these views.

The counter-attack, executed the night of the 24th, 25th, was entrusted to some Australian battalions. They carried the high ground and the village by assault, while, on the right, the Moroccan Division of the French 1st Army regained some ground north of Hangard.

To consolidate the re-established situation, Gen. Debeney continued his movement forward while, at the same time, Gen. Fayolle sent two divisions northwards, so as to be in a position to intervene between the Somme and the Luce.

For all the British reserves on their right had been engaged in the struggle around Villers-Bretonneux. They had suffered new losses there which had to be added to a wastage already very great.

Marshal Haig drew my attention to this point on the evening of the 24th, and satisfaction was given him, not only by assurance of the eventual co-operation of the French reserves, distributed as has just been explained, but also by relieving the British 3rd Corps, Gen. Rawlinson's right, by the French 1st Army.

At the same time, I requested Gen. Fayolle to make preparations as rapidly as possible for an attack by the 3rd Army in the Montdidier region. This attack, if it was pushed beyond the Avre, would have the effect of cutting the enemy's communications south of the Somme and, subsequently, of clearing the ground in the direction of Amiens.

Crown Prince Advances

In fact, the German effort against Villers-Bretenneux resulted in nothing.

On April 25, 1918, the Crown Prince of Bavaria again attacked between Bailleul and Ypres, employing the right of his 6th and the left of his 4th armies. The latter gained ground toward Ypres, while the former captured Dranoutre and threatened Locre on the Poperinghe road.

In the center, the Bavarian Alpine Corps assaulted and took Kemmel and Mount Kemmel, thus gaining a foothold on the eastern portion of the Flemish hills. On the following day, the 26th, the struggle was continued with fury on the Scherpenberg-Vormezeele front, but the enemy was unable this time to register any important advance.

At the same time, I requested Gen. Petain to furnish two regiments of field artillery and 12 groups of heavy artillery for the army detachment of the north as well as one regiment of field artillery for the Belgian Army.

The importance of these reinforcements proved once more our willingness to support the British Commander-in-Chief to the utmost; it was also evidence of the determination to continue our defense of the ground where we stood at any cost.

Indeed, there was no more ground to lose in Flanders. Mount Kemmel is only 25 miles from Dunkirk, and it commands the whole plain stretching up to that town. If the enemy succeeded in establishing himself there with his heavy artillery, he would be able to crush any resistance we could oppose to his march toward this port; in other words he would reach the shores of the Channel and threaten our communications with England, while at the same time placing the whole Belgian Army in peril.

Allied Troops Weakened

I did not succeed, however, in preventing the British front in the Ypres salient from being moved back, on April 27, to the walls of the city, with, as a consequence, the withdrawal of the Belgian front to the Yperlee canal.

On the afternoon of the 27th, I again left for the North. I first saw Gen. Plumer at Blendesques, and then Gen. de Mitry at Esquelbecq. I explained to them the gravity of the situation and the fundamental principles upon which the existing circumstances required that the defense be based. I also emphasized the necessity of sending troops as they arrived straight into action with clearly defined missions, making all questions of cantonments yield to tactical requirements.

I was now struck with the enormous wastage among the Allied troops, subjected as they had been to incessant attacks and bombardment by a prodigious number of gas shells. In order to meet this situation I ordered three more French divisions (the 32d, 129th and 168th) to be sent to Flanders; a part of these would be used to relieve the British XXII Corps, which had reached the extreme limit of endurance.

Furthermore, I requested Gen. Petain to make arrangements to keep three fresh French divisions in rear of the front occupied by the Army Detachment of the North as long as the violence of the German attacks made it necessary.

Nothing Being Done To Help Unemployed?

By B. C. FORBES

AS MONTH follows month without bringing any very substantial reduction in unemployment, sentiment among the idle becomes more bitter.

Mr. Forbes

This is abundantly brought out by the volume of letters received by this column.

What is being done about it?

"Nothing," is the reply of the unemployed man. And the tragedy is that that reply contains far too much truth.

M. H. KENNELLY, recently elected president of the National Furniture Warehousemen's Association, made this statement at their annual convention:

"I wonder, have we given enough time, at conventions, to the problems of our employes? All other matters have been gone over thoroughly.

"Real and continued prosperity, in my opinion, will not exist in this country, until trade associations, like ours, employing thousands of men, take it upon themselves, as a duty and a part of their business program, to discuss ways and means of promoting the prosperity and happiness of their employes. I propose to do this."

Mr. Kennelly is good enough to add:

"I believe your articles on employer and employe relationships are doing a lot of good."

A RAILWAY worker makes this suggestion, very different from most suggestions in that it proposes self-sacrifice:

"I earn 82¾ cents per hour for eight hours, or $6.62. I contend we should keep this hourly rate, but should work only six hours per day, decreasing our earnings 25 per cent, but increasing employment 25 per cent. Where we have three shifts now we would have four shifts.

"If this were done in all major trades there would be a great increase in employment. This would make a great many more producers and consumers, as we all know the man in the breadline doesn't help the workingman, the butcher or the baker."

CURIOUSLY, L. J. Brown, president of the Kellogg Company, largest manufacturers of cereal foods, Battle Creek, Mich., makes this announcement:

"For the immediate purpose of helping relieve unemployment, we adopted the 'six-hour day' last December 1. By continuing to operate 24 hours a day, and replacing the three daily shifts of eight hours each with the present system of four shifts of six hours each, the company was enabled to employ about 25 per cent more persons. Simultaneously with this change, the base wage scale was increased 12½ per cent.

"The Kellogg plan now has been in operation long enough to have passed the experimental phase. It is a complete success for this company and its stockholders and it is benefiting the employes and the community."

J. C. Sullivan, Jacksonville, Fla., after saying that "unemployment is a disgrace to our boasted Christianity and 'Americanism,' too," makes this suggestion:

"Why don't you insist, and insist effectively and daily, that the fathers, worthy married men, are furnished employment, and some of those children, boys and flappers and married women, be relieved and fathers put to work?"

N. L. HOLMES, Bronson, Mich., in course of a lengthy letter, says:

"You assume that returning business activity must come through the channels of old-time business methods . . . The capitalistic scheme of industry is the law of the jungle, the survival of the fittest. You can't proceed much further in the old paths of capitalism. The end of the line has been reached."

IT ISN'T enough for capitalists to take the superficial attitude that "we have had unemployment before and worked out of it all right."

The present economic problem confronting the United States and the world demands not superficial but the most fundamental thinking.

Pittsburgh-United Not Selling Steel

Officials of Pittsburgh-United Corporation, which owns a block of 108,402 shares of United States Steel common, state that there is no intention to sell any of the steel stock at present prices to retire the preferred stock of the company. They add that "when and if liquidation takes place, it will be in an orderly manner and at levels substantially higher than those now prevailing."

In addition, they point out that to provide for the calling of the $6,049,400 of Pittsburgh-United preferred stock at a premium, less than 50,000 shares of Steel common would have to be sold at present prices. Finally, the officials state that the holders of Steel by their company can in no sense be considered a "menace to the market."

Pennsylvania Coal Production Drops

WASHINGTON, April 14.—The mild weather of spring has begun its annual inroad in coal production in Pennsylvania.

Anthracite production for the first time in months fell below the million ton mark in the state during the week ending April 4, dropping from 1,076,000 net tons to 775,000, a reduction of 28 per cent.

Cities Service Profits at Record Level

By GEORGE H. SNYDER

CONTINUED EXPANSION IN OPERATIONS and the acquisition of new properties made it possible for the Cities Service Company to report record earnings for 1930 in spite of the generally depressed condition of the country.

The consolidated statement for the company and its subsidiaries showed net profit after expenses, taxes and interest but before reserves of $60,622,740 for 1930. This compared with $48,423,519 in 1929.

Due to the fact that the company does not make any provisions for reserves for depreciation and depletion it is impossible to make an accurate computation of earnings per share on the common stock. After deducting preferred dividends a surplus of $46,423,683 was left available for these reserves and for the common stock. This compared with $34,229,570 in 1929.

On the basis of 31,372,651 common shares outstanding at the close of 1930 this surplus was equivalent to $1.48 a share. On 28,945,629 shares in 1929 the surplus of that year was equivalent to $1.18 a share. It must be remembered, however, that these earnings per share are interesting only for the sake of comparison and do not represent earnings available for dividends from the standpoint of conservative accounting practices.

Net Before Interest Larger

CONSOLIDATED NET EARNINGS of $84,862,958 shown in the summary of the annual report released by the company yesterday represented earnings before providing for interest charges. This showed an increase of $15,100,000 over the corresponding figure of 1929.

The report declares that 1930 was marked by unprecedented expansion of the organization as well as by record earnings. It states that the company was fortunate in carrying out this program during a period of general depression when costs of development work were low.

Power Earnings Maintained

GROSS AND NET EARNINGS of Cities Service electric subsidiaries compare favorably with those for 1928 and 1929, periods of exceptional prosperity. Although power sales show a decline, the earnings were greater than in 1928 and only 1 per cent less than in 1929. This record is due to a continual increase in kilowatt hour sales per domestic customer. Subsidiaries sold more than 1,483,000,000 kilowatt hours of electrical energy to more than 416,000 customers.

One of the most important developments in the natural gas industry took place in 1930 when Cities Service Company joined with Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, the Insull interests, the Texas Corporation, Skelly Oil Company, Phillips Petroleum Company and Columbian Carbon Company in the construction of a natural gas pipe line from the fields of the Texas Panhandle to serve the Chicago district and other points. At the close of 1930 about 480 miles of pipe line had been completed and the remainder was being laid at a rapid rate. It is expected that the line, which will be one of the longest ever laid, will be ready to transmit gas by September, 1931.

Oil Output Expanded

DEVELOPMENT OF ADDITIONAL crude oil production will be an important factor in future earnings of the Cities Service organization when more satisfactory conditions are restored in the oil trade. Particular emphasis was laid on the increase in potential oil producing capacity in the report.

In 1930 the domestic production of crude oil by subsidiaries of Cities Service Company was 32,317,225 barrels, an increase of 55 per cent over the preceding year. The daily average production was more than 88,000 barrels, as compared with 57,000 barrels in 1929. At no time in 1930, however, was actual production a true index of the ability of Cities Service subsidiaries to produce from wells already completed. Proration restrictions in effect at the beginning of the year, especially in the Oklahoma City field and the general Seminole area, became more exacting as the year advanced. Potential production in the Oklahoma City field increased rapidly, and at the end of the year Cities Service subsidiaries in this field were producing only a small fraction of their indicated potential production.

NEW YORK BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, April 14.—Increasing firmness in rails gave the bond list a better tone today. There was comparatively little activity in industrials or utilities. Foreign obligations were spotty.

STOCK MARKET YIELDS AFTER RALLYING

Numerous Issues Show Net Losses of Point or Two by Early Afternoon

NEW YORK, April 14.—(AP.)—The stock market lost courage and yielded to fresh selling in the electrical equipment and motion picture issues today, after a display of strength in the initial transactions.

The vulnerability of the list after its best rally in nearly a month was discouraging to bullishly inclined traders. Its inability to carry yesterday's upturn beyond the early trading today was accepted in brokerage circles as an indication that there had been no fundamental change in the wobbly character of the market.

The quarterly report of American Telephone helped the early advance, carrying that issue temporarily up more than 2 points, but the general tenor of news of corporate profits remained uninspiring. Net losses of a point or two were numerous by early afternoon.

The selling of electrical equipments was coincident with the appearance of an unofficial report that General Electric's first quarter statement expected to appear next week, will show that its 40-cent quarterly dividend was not fully covered by earnings for the first time in several years. It has previously been rumored that Westinghouse ran in the red during that first quarter. The motion pictures were selected by bear traders as a likely group, because theater attendance is inclined to fall off when warm weather arrives.

The American Telephone report was cheering in that it showed that quarterly dividend earned with a fair margin to spare and that the decline in the number of telephones in service early in the year had been checked in March. Furthermore it was announced at the annual meeting of Erie Railroad that March pulled that company out of the red, canceling losses of the first two months of the year.

The news of the change of government in Spain was largely a negative influence since Spanish securities are not traded in this market. It is not known what the effect may be on the recent stabilization loan made by international bankers, but in any case, the total amount was only $60,000,000. The Spanish peseta, of course, declined.

Credit conditions remained unchanged. The weekly condition statement of larger Federal Reserve member banks was favorable, showing a drop of $110,000,000 in loans on securities. Credit conditions were unchanged, with call money at 1½ per cent.

Denies Purchasing Standard Plate

W. C. Alcorn, vice president and general manager of the Triplex Safety Glass Company, denied reports that Triplex has completed negotiations for the purchase of Standard Plate Glass Company, which formerly operated plate glass factories in Springvale and Butler, Pa. Mr. Alcorn, however, said that the business of Triplex had grown to such an extent that the company was considering the purchase of an existing factory or construction of a new plant.

All In A Day

By Mark Hellinger

NEW YORK, April 14

CHAUNCEY WAS ONE of the saddest misfits the world can possibly know. He described himself as an actor—and he had no more acting ability than a Reuben's sandwich. Yet, for year after year, he marched along Broadway and looked important. And then, when some schoolgirl pointed him out as an actor he was supremely happy.

Hundreds of men like Chauncey are walking Broadway this very moment. If they're lucky, they manage to get a minor part once or twice a season. How they exist, nobody seems to know. And when one passes on, it seems that two more always jump in to fill his place in the ranks of the misfits.

Around the various booking offices everyone knew Chauncey. He had been around for so long that everyone had to know him. Occasionally when an agent felt charitable and the role didn't mean anything Chauncey was sent to a picture studio as an extra.

When these jobs rolled around Chauncey was just about the most important man in all of the picture business. Although there might be 500 extras to keep him company, Chauncey would never mingle with them. He—a great character actor—mingle with common extras just because he needed a few dollars? Think not so, my friends.

Instead, while the others were talking, Chauncey would stroll into a corner and study his character. He would find out somehow just what the extras were to be in this picture. And when the time came he was all prepared.

If there was to be a riot scene for instance, Chauncey would get off by his lonesome and go through a private riot. When the scene was actually filmed, this so-called actor would give everything he had, even though the camera was pointing 10 feet from where he was standing. Never was there such a willing worker as Chauncey—and never, alas, was there such a rotten actor.

And then with his few dollars in his pocket, Chauncey would walk Broadway until he encountered someone on whom he might create an impression. It might be a cab driver who was waiting for a fare. Or it might be a cashier in a small lunch room.

"They had me over at Paramount today," he would murmur as he flicked the ashes from his 5-cent cigar. "Wanted a special performance in the leading role of a riot scene. We dickered for some time before the price was set. But they finally came around to my terms. They generally do, you know."

He would go on in a similar vein until his listeners yawned in his face. Then, his cane gripped firmly in his hand, he would step into the night. Haughty and proud, he was walking through the years. An actor . . .

All of a sudden Chauncey disappeared. Things grew just a little too tough for him. I guess, because he even stopped making the rounds of the agencies. Nobody heard a word about him for several months. But one morning, when a young actor who had worked with Chauncey on several pictures was walking along Tenth avenue, he saw the haughty Thespian. And what do you suppose Chauncey was doing? He was seated on a wagon truck and was driving a pair of horses!

The young actor ran after the wagon and hailed Chauncey when the lights changed. He put his hand up.

"How are you, Chauncey," he cried, "I'm glad to see you again."

The older man was visibly embarrassed.

"I'm happy to see you, too, sir," he returned.

The young chap shook his head. He saw the signs in Chauncey's eyes.

"Listen, big boy," he asserted, "don't you feel the least bit funny about driving a couple of horses? As a matter of fact, I'm glad you're out of the theatrical business. This way, at least, you have a steady income."

Chauncey was the actor to the end. He drew himself up to his very proudest.

"My dear young man," he cried, "when you say I have left show business, I might tell you that you are greatly and grossly mistaken. I have merely been informed by a reliable authority that 'Ben-Hur' is about to be produced in the talkies, and I'm just rehearsing. Giddyap!"

OVER IN night court a week or so ago, reports Teddy Frank, they brought in a character who looked as though he hadn't had a bath since the armistice was signed. He was covered with grim from head to foot. Asked what his business was, the filthy gent said he was a coal heaver.

The complainant was a German who ran a tiny coffee pot somewhere in the neighborhood. He stammered out a charge that the coal heaver had tossed a brick through his window on two successive nights. Whereupon the attendant asked the coal heaver how he pleaded.

"Aw," muttered the latter nastily, "I done it all right. And I'm gonna tell youse somethin' else too. De minute I gets outa here I'm likely to put anudder brick right tru de Dutchman's same winder."

The judge pounded his gavel and told the speaker he couldn't talk in that fashion in court.

"Aw," muttered the coal tosser aggrievedly, "I gotta right to feel dat way about dis Dutchman. He ain't no good."

"Wait a minute," cried the magistrate. "What has this man done that makes you feel so bitter?"

The coal heaver glared at the German. Raising a fist that was as black as Carnera's scowl, he shook the paw in the complainant's direction.

"It all started in his joint de night before last," he growled. "I walks in very peaceful like and asks dis guy for a bowl o' soup.

"An' whaddaya tink happened, judge? When he brung me de coup, he had de noive to have his finger in it! . . .

"LAST WEEK," writes Fred Hunter, "I wrote a story that I wanted to send to you. The following morning when I meant to mail it, I couldn't find it. I asked the wife if she had seen it, and she said she hadn't. I then suggested that she look in the garbage pail, because that's where our little son frequently throws stray papers.

She gave me a strange smile.

"The child wouldn't throw your writings away, Fred,' she said. He can't read well enough!"

If I were you, Fred, I'd divorce that gal. There's scold in them thar chills . . .

ALTHOUGH the experts continue to warn us, Wall St. doesn't seem to have changed a bit. The fools are still rushing in where angels fear to trade.

DUQUESNE NET LOWER

The annual report of the Philadelphia Company for the year ended December 31, 1930, shows consolidated gross earnings totaling $61,521,044, a decrease of $2,155,731 or 3.38 per cent, and net earnings including other income before appropriations for retirement reserves were $31,469,379, a decrease of $1,442,569 or 4.38 per cent. The balance available for dividends after appropriations for retirement reserves, amortization and other reserve funds was $15,330,103 for the year 1930 compared with $14,992,623 for 1929, an increase of $337,480.

Earnings of the company's electric and steam heating subsidiaries increased during the year while earnings of the gas and transportation subsidiaries decreased. Consolidated gross and net earnings showed the effects of the general business depression in the Pittsburgh district. However, because of the diversity of industry in this district results of the general business depression were not as severe as in many other sections of the country.

Fugitives Tell Troubles To Their Attorney

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

Louie Scorpio, known as "Slaughterhouse," is looked upon as a tough character. While in a disreputable restaurant he talks to the proprietor, Johnny Franks, and Nick Mizoski, known as the "Gouger." They ask him to join them in selling moonshine. Prompted by the great profits he will make, he consents. He accompanies them to the place where they make the stuff. While in the building police raid it. A Russian who had been helping to make the whisky is arrested, but the others elude the police and hide in another part of the building. They succeed in getting away altogether. Hank Rogers and Carl Luckner, rival newspaper reporters, get the story. The three bootleggers are afraid the captured Russian will expose them.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER V.

Richard Newton had, in his day, been one of the most brilliant criminal lawyers in the city. His cases were sensational. His defense of the notorious Bartholomew, whom he freed against damning evidence by sheer force of his dominant personality and his oratory before the jury, is still part of legal history.

Then drink claimed him. He was seen less and less in the courts of law. Gradually he was forgotten. The once dignified and keen-minded attorney became a shambling wreck.

To Newton's shabby office came Franks, the Gouger and Scorpio, just as sunlight was beginning to peep over the hills.

The place reeked of raw alcohol. Sprawled across the desk, on which lay several empty bottles, was the prostrate figure of the lawyer. He was unshaven, shabby and in a stupor.

Explain Their Trouble

Franks seized the man by the shoulder and shook him vigorously. This elicited a grunt. He shook again.

"Mr. Newton—Mr. Newton—you gotta wake up! You gotta tell us what to do!" Franks shook the man again. "Turn on the light," he instructed Scorpio, over his shoulder.

Newton shuddered, stirred and finally straightened. His red-rimmed eyes opened dazedly. He stared at the trio for a moment as though focusing his alcohol-distorted vision. Then a flicker came into the steely orbs. He spoke, as one from whom all vitality has been drained: slowly, incoherently at first, then as he became accustomed to the light, more sanely.

"The cops, Newton. The cops. They knocked over the still. Listen—you gotta listen." Franks fairly yelled in his anxiety. "They pinched Vronski, and they'll give him the works. He'll spill. I think maybe we'd better quit, and get under cover!"

"You think?" he demanded with biting irony. He straightened his chair, eyed Gouger contemptuously, then turned and surveyed Scorpio.

"Who are you?" he demanded.

"Old pal of mine—the guy I told you about from the slaughterhouse. He's in our mob now, and he thinks—"

"So you think, too?" sneered Newton, rising unsteadily.

"Yes—damned right I think—I'm going back to pigsticking," growled Scorpio. Newton interrupted.

"That's enough!" he barked. "Shut up, you rats. Vronski won't squeal. He knows he'd get bumped. And I'll have him out the minute the police court opens." He looked around the room.

"Find my hat!" he commanded.

Lawyer Is Scornful

Franks and the Gouger searched hurriedly, recovering the lawyer's faded gray hat on the floor by the window. Silently they handed it to him.

"Now my stick—I'd see you all hanged before I'd leave without my stick!"

Another search resulted in the finding of the cane. Newton took it, straightened himself, and buttoned his threadbare coat.

For the first time, Scorpio noticed that in the buttonhole was a faded flower.

Through all, Newton had never forgotten his former gentility.

Johnny Franks stepped forward, stretching his hand out as though to help guide Newton's wavering progress. The lawyer turned on him with a scornful, withering gesture, and almost a snarl in his voice.

"Keep your hands off me," he barked. It was plain that, however low he had sunk, Newton felt contamination in the touch of these men, whom he frankly called "rats."

"What if they have raided the still?" he sneered. "I'll order a dozen built to take its place! Think a still or so will stop me?"

Scorpio looked inquiringly at Franks.

"It's his brains that figured it all out—we can't operate without him," whispered the restaurant man.

Newton turned toward Franks, attracted by the sibilant whisper.

"As for you—all of you—go back to the holes you came from. You'd RUN, would you? Run from money—from power?" He paused with a scornful laugh.

"Yes, run—RUN, you spineless rats!" he sneered, as he strode through the door, and banged it behind him.

Scorpio stared at the door.

"That guy," he declared, "sounds like real dough. I'm gonna stick to him till alky freezes.

DAILY TRUE STORY — Little Rollo, Jr.

(All names of characters in this story are fictitious.)

Girl's Decision Results In a Catastrophe

"If it's a boy," said Roland H. Simpson, Jr., to his wife, "we shall name him Mike or Joe or Pete!"

"The very idea!" exclaimed Mrs. Simpson, meaning that such wasn't her idea at all.

"Sure, Celia."

"In the first place, Roland is a lovely name. Even if your father hadn't been so sweet and generous to us, or if his name wasn't Roland at all, I would want our child, if it's a boy, to have your name."

"I suppose father will be hurt if we name a boy of ours anything except Roland, but the poor kid will be up against it, just as I was—he will be called 'Rollo.'"

"What of it, dear?"

Mr. Simpson groaned. He also shuddered.

"Didn't you ever read or hear of the Little Rollo books, Celia?"

"Yes, but then, I don't see—"

She hesitated for she was beginning to see.

"You were never a little boy," he said.

Mrs. Simpson giggled and blushed a little. Her condition at this time indicated rather clearly that she had never been a little boy.

Inherits Fortune

"Well, I was—and the kids called me 'Rollo' and it used to give me a pain—it also got me into innumerable fights. I didn't like to be called Rollo and I know well enough that our son won't like to be called Rollo."

"He won't mind, dear, and he won't be Rollo, junior, he will be Rollo, third, because of your father—"

And so on and on they discussed it.

The child was a boy, as they had hoped.

Married men need only one guess as to what name was given to this male infant—yes, Rollo H., to be sure.

"At any rate," said his father, he can sign his name 'R. Howard Simpson.'"

"His grandfather," said Mrs. Simpson, "won't like that so very well."

His grandfather, one may easily assume, was possessed of a great deal of money.

But Roland H. Simpson, the third, had not attained five years before his grandfather died and so he became "Little Rollo Junior." He also became extremely wealthy, thanks to his departed grandfather.

Rollo Junior, possessed of so much money which was handled for him by his parents, who were also sufficiently wealthy, was pampered.

He was pampered too much and in his adolescence was somewhat anaemic.

Now when a big husky lad is called R-[illegible] a break. He can bump together the heads of any and sundry who dare attempt attaching such ignominy on him. But when a young chap is rather spindling and pale and lacks stamina and muscle, he hasn't a chance, when called Rollo, to do more than wisely grin and pretend he likes it, or unwisely pout and sulk.

When Rollo was through college there were plenty of girls who were after him. Their hearts made them gaze with longing on the husky athletes, but their wise little heads made them see that Rollo's worldly goods were not to be sneezed at, or to be missed if they could land him.

Rollo Junior wasn't much interested in girls.

That is, until he discovered that Lila Ormand, right in his home town, had grown up, come home from finishing school and was, in the vernacular of those days, a "peach" which, translated, means an "eyeful."

Lila was handsome, almost beautiful. But she was a rather Amazonian type, full of pep and vitality, with red cheeks and the figure of a Hebe.

Pleads for Time

The way Little Rollo Simpson Junior tagged around after her amused her. It also flattered her because so many other young ladies were jealous.

As time went on Rollo Junior made it quite clear to Lila that he wanted to marry her.

Another year went on its way and Lila was still undecided, or at least that was what she told Rollo Junior.

"Lila, dear, please make up your mind," Rollo begged.

"It is so difficult, Rollo—marriage means so much to a girl and it isn't to be jumped into as one would plunge into a pool. I must think it over," she explained.

"All right, dear girl—I'll wait for you—I'll wait for you forever!"

"Do you mean that, Rollo!"

"Of course I mean it."

Probably Lila Ormand would have married him at this time if someone else hadn't come along.

His name was Curt Danforth. Curt was tall and broad of shoulder. He was handsome, after the manner of one of those movie lads, with seal-sleek hair, square chin and no giveaway as to lack of gray matter in ordinary light drawing-room chatter.

Danforth wasn't such a bad business man in a way. He represented a big American concern abroad. He got a pretty good income and he simply swept Lila off her feet.

Shocking Announcement

Danforth had an idea that Lila was an heiress and she did not disillusion him.

She had an idea that he owned half of this great American corporation, and let it go at that.

One morning Roland H. Simpson, Jr., choked on his grapefruit and he glanced at the local paper propped up before him.

It was a good thing he was breakfasting alone.

There was an announcement in the local morning paper that on the night before Miss Lila Ormand had quietly become Mrs. Curtis Danforth. It was a simple home wedding, held at that time to enable the happy couple to sail for India, where he represented his firm.

Rollo Junior lost his appetite.

Lila believed that she was going to be very happy. She lived in the English settlement in this city in India. There were native servants and afternoon teas and bridge and more of the same.

She saw that many of the men drank a great deal. She could scarcely blame them. She hated the life out there, and so did the men. Her husband disappointed her in many ways and they were always crimping for money. She was amazed at his small income and he was peeved because she was no heiress.

Only a Joke

For five years she lived like this and then Mr. Curtis Danforth died.

"A touch of the sun," Lila said, but she knew that it was really an ocean of alcohol that had killed him.

There was some insurance. She got ready to come home. And she thought of little Rollo Junior as she had so often thought of him. He had said he would always wait for her. She would go back, weep on his shoulder, and then marry him.

She promptly wrote this letter:

"Mr. Roland H. Simpson, Jr.

"My darling little Rollo:

"You have heard, no doubt, of the passing of Mr. Danforth. I realize now that it was a mistake to marry him. And I have never forgotten that you told me you would always wait for me.

"I am sailing next week, dear Rollo, and I hope to be in your arms within 30 days, realizing that I loved you always.

"Forever your Lila."

The still charming widow, Lila Ormand Danforth, arrived at the end of 30 days. A wonderful big Norman style house had been built on the Simpson grounds.

As Lila started to go to the great veranda she saw some people on the terrace. She crossed over. She recognized Rollo's mother. She was holding a lusty baby boy. The baby boy was holding a letter. It was the letter Lila had written.

And then Rollo came out. He had grown husky and healthy and was Rollo Senior.

"Hello there, Lila," he called, "meet my wife!"

Lila managed a smile and met a mighty pretty young woman.

"And meet Little Rollo Junior," he indicated the baby. "He's got the letter you sent to Little Rollo Junior. When he grows old enough we shall let him decide!"

Lila's face blazed, then she coughed and managed to say, "Of course you knew it was a joke."

"Oh, yes, I saw the joke, Lila," Rollo answered.

By Tuthill

HELLO, GEORGIE. SAY, WHAT'S ALL THIS I HEAR ABOUT YOU INHERITING 10,000 ACRES OF LAND AND A BIG CASTLE IN EUROPE OR SOMEPLACE? I ALSO HEARD YOU HAD PAPERS SHOWING YOU WERE A DUKE OR SOMETHING.
WELL, LOUIE, SOMETHING LIKE THAT COULD HAPPEN BUT SO FAR I'M JUST LOOKING INTO THE FAMILY HISTORY.
I SAW YOUR COUSIN MAX BUNGLE YESTERDAY. HE HAD HIS POCKETS FULL OF MAPS AND WAS ON HIS WAY TO SEE A LAWYER. HE TALKED ABOUT BUYING A BIG NEW AUTO AND GETTING ENOUGH DOUGH TO OPEN UP ANOTHER REAL ESTATE OFFICE.
HOW MUCH DID YOU LEND HIM, LOUIE?
WELL GEORGIE, THAT'S WHY I SPOKE ABOUT THIS THING TO YOU. MAX WAS SO POSITIVE ABOUT THIS 10,000 ACRES AND SHOWED ME SO MANY MAPS AND SO FORTH THAT I LET HIM HAVE PART OF MY RENT MONEY. HE OFFERED ME BIG INTEREST AND ASSURED ME THAT—LISTEN LOUIE, ALL I KNOW ABOUT THIS 10,000 ACRES IS THAT YOU'RE THE FOURTH MAN WHO TOLD ME HE MET MAX BUNGLE ON HIS WAY TO SEE A LAWYER.
HE TOOK ME AROUND AND LET ME TALK TO OTHER BUNGLES. ALL OF THEM ASSURED ME YOU HAD SOME KIND OF A CERTIFICATE THAT WAS GOING TO PUT THE WHOLE BUNGLE FAMILY ON EASY STREET.
I'LL ADMIT I'VE GOT A CERTIFICATE LOUIE BUT IT'S JUST A SORT OF HUNTING LICENSE TO LOOK AROUND IN EUROPE FOR ESTATES AND SO FAR AS PEOPLE LIKE MAX BUNGLE ARE CONCERNED FINDERS ARE KEEPERS.

Sir—

You recently ventured the opinion that the Wickersham Commission would make a nice jury for anyone who happened to be up for murder. I don't agree. They'd probably bring in a unanimous verdict of guilty and then each write a 10-page brief on his reasons for thinking the accused was innocent.

This world is so full of a number of things
No doubt we are all just as happy as kings—
As happy, for instance, as King George appears—

Too timid and cautious to utter a word.
The moment we try to play sprightly and Emose
We all, like Em-man-u-el, get (pardon!) the Duce.
For many a man has a wife who's a meanie
And governs her husband a la Mussolini.
This world is so full of a number of things
I'm afraid we are all just as bad off as kings,
As bad off, no doubt, as Alfonso of Spain
Who's obvious lot is a neck full of pain.

Flattering the Killers

Individual Murderers Encouraged When Government Imitates Them With Capital Punishment.

Imitation is sincere flattery. When the government imitates the killers, and kills in its turn with capital punishment, the individual killer is encouraged and feels partly justified in his crime.

He says, "When I want to kill, I kill, just as the state kills when it wants to kill."

Imitation of the criminal is unworthy. Men are convicted sometimes of torturing animals and children. The government does not say, "We shall now seize and torture you." It used to say that. Torture was once the rule in every "civilized" government.

And when the French Revolution, which put an end to so many abominations, also put an end to torture, the judges said: "In forbidding us to torture, you cripple justice. We cannot convict without torture."

Advocates of capital punishment say:

"If the government ceases imitating the killer, if it ceases to kill as the murderer kills, that will handicap justice. Murders will increase."

The FACTS prove the exact contrary.

The state of Michigan, setting an admirable example, has just rejected the suggestion that capital punishment be restored in the state that abolished it 80 years years ago, a state in which there has been no execution of criminals for 100 years.

Even in Russia, which we associate with violence, capital punishment has been abolished for all but political crimes, the maximum penalty for murder there being 10 years in prison.

In 1930 the number of murders in Russia diminished almost 50 per cent as compared with 1929.

There is no death penalty for murder in Italy. But there life imprisonment MEANS life imprisonment.

The world will be more civilized when it realizes that the command, "Thou shalt not kill," applies to governments as well as to individuals.

When Franklin was young, boys of 12 and younger were executed. In the century of his birth capital punishment was inflicted for petty theft, hence the expression, "As well be hung for a sheep as a lamb."

If you stole a lamb you were hung in England. Therefore you might as well steal a sheep, as the penalty was no greater.

Capital punishment disgraces every state that enforces it. Those who believe that it discourages murder are ignorant of the facts.

Capital punishment, imitation of murderers by the state, should be abolished as cannibalism and slavery have been abolished, although each in its day was considered necessary to human welfare and happiness.

Unemployment Relief

City Must Give Full Support to Pittsburgh Plan Drive.

Workers in the Allegheny County Emergency Association drive have a big task ahead of them if they are to reach their goal of $3,000,000 to make the Pittsburgh Plan for unemployment relief fully operative.

A total of $2,037,505 must be raised this week in order to put the drive over the top. Up to noon on Friday the total secured was $962,494 of which $736,384 had been contributed before the drive started.

It would be a sad comment on Pittsburgh's public spirit for the drive to fail to reach its objective. Any such constructive step as the plan to aid the unemployed is deserving of enthusiastic support. Surely Pittsburgh will not fail in giving this needed help to unfortunates who have been deprived of jobs through no fault of their own.

The $3,000,000 will be used to provide working hours for honest and industrious Pittsburgh citizens who are not asking for charity, but who do want jobs. The working hours to be bought with the fund will be used for the completion of public works.

Our Railroad in History

Pennsylvania Is Result of Bill Signed 85 Years Ago by Governor Shunk.

W. W. Atterbury, president of the Pennsylvania Railroad, on the eighty-fifth aniversary of the signing of the bill through which that road came into existence, paid tribute to the pioneers of railroad building and the "remarkable judgment with which they forecast the future development of America and its transportation needs."

Great as the span appears to be, it is not so difficult to look back, as visioned in years, as it is to look at in retrospect in terms of transportation improvement. It is hard to think of the high-powered locomotives hauling long trains of freight and passengers across the mountains at incredible speed and try to see their predecessors as a system of canals and short railroads laboriously performing the same service in the early part of the nineteenth century.

The bill signed by Gov. Francis R. Shunk permitted the construction of a railroad 320 miles long. Today the Pennsylvania System is a network of approximately 11,000 miles, and the very backbone of its immense traffic is Pittsburgh and its environs. The Pennsylvania has meant a great deal to this city and the city has been equally important to the railroad, and it was known in early transportation days as "The Gateway to the West."

While other great rail centers have developed since the beginning of the Pennsylvania, the importance of Pittsburgh in that respect never has been diminished. Today, as of old, it is the tramontane gateway to the west, a fact that gives it a distinct advantage as a center of national trade and commerce.

Fewer Auto Deaths

Work of Better Traffic Committee Starts to Give Results.

Better traffic regulation and safety campaigns at last are showing results. For the eight years ended with 1930 the death toll from traffic fatalities steadily climbed. But this year the situation is being corrected.

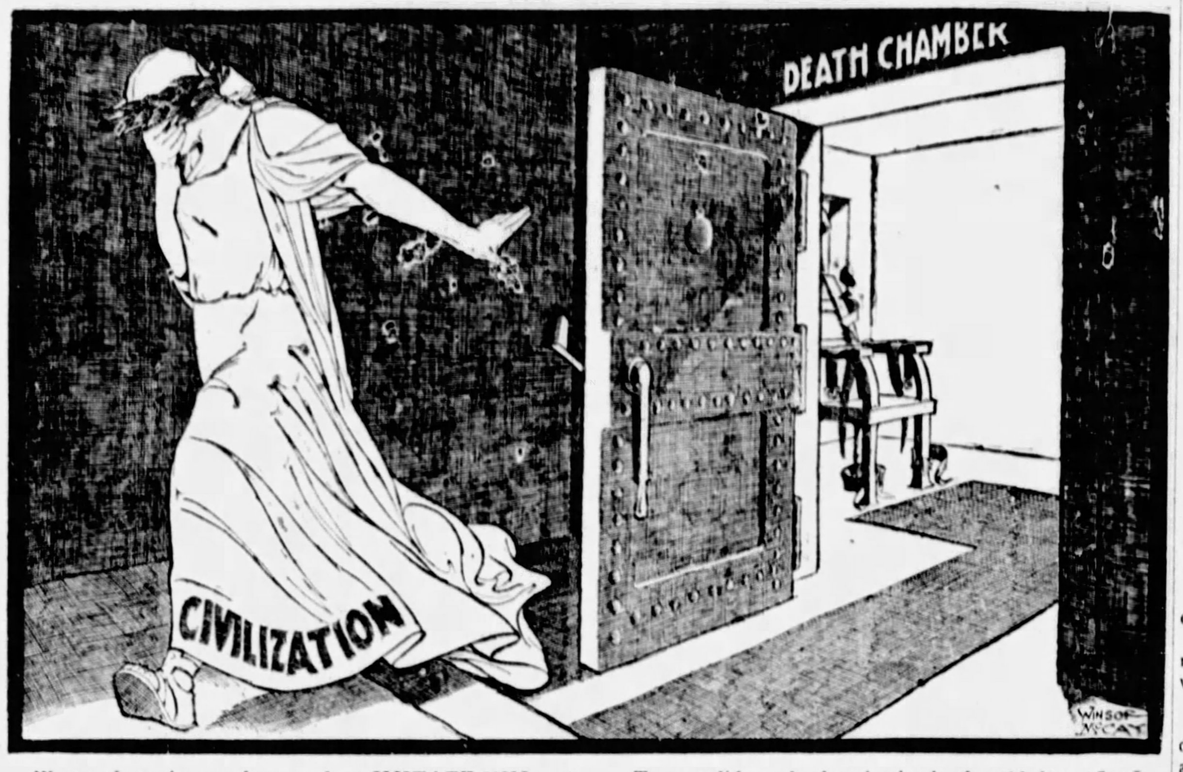
In the first three months of 1931 traffic deaths of adults were 50 per cent under those of the first three months of 1930. This year there were only 22 deaths as compared with 44 in 1930.

Unfortunately, in the three-month periods one more child was killed this year than last. Six children met their deaths as the result of automobiles this year against five last year.

Improvement was shown in both classes in March when three children and 10 adults were killed while four children and 15 adults were killed in March, 1930.

Civilization's Disgrace

(Copyright, 1931.)



We condemn the murderer, and we IMITATE HIM.

We subscribe to a religion which says "Thou shalt not kill," and yet we kill for punishment, as the criminal kills for gain.

Torture did not further justice in the old days. Capital punishment does not diminish crime in these days.

The Rhyming Optimist

By ALINE MICHAELIS.

Growing Smaller

The world is growing smaller year by year
And as it shrinks far places are brought near;
What once was but a fable, vague and dim,
A storied realm upon the wide Earth's rim,
Looms now so close an outstretched hand can reach
The sacred mountain, the exotic beach.

As conquerors of time and space, we know
More truly how once-distant lives must flow;
All that was veiled, uncertain and obscure
Becomes known land, whereon our steps are sure;
And with increasing continents revealed
Increasing treasures do the swift years yield.

The world is growing smaller and we find
As it has dwindled, hearts have grown more kind.
Greater man's grasp of all his brothers' deeds
And quicker his response to all their needs;
Until bright promise shows the Earth one land
Whereon all peoples love and understand.

MAWSON'S ANTARCTIC TRIP

By Archibald Henderson

Since Admiral Byrd's fascinating report on his explorations in Antarctica, there has been increased popular interest in South Polar explorations and research. Sir Douglas Mawson's Antarctic Research Expedition sailed from Tasmania late in November, to continue the fruitful explorations of last season. New land and new whaling waters were then discovered and mapped.

Among the objectives of the present season's expedition were: the completion of the survey of the region more directly south of Australia; study of the sub-antarctic life at Macquarie Island; investigation of the geographical features of the great 800-mile stretch between Adelie Land and Queen Mary Land; and establishment of a number of marine stations for a study of the sea, temperature, chemical character and marine specimens.

On the return of the expedition to Tasmania in late March, Sir Douglas Mawson issued a report, prepared on board of the S. S. Discovery. During the first month, the work in the fields of meteorology, hydrology and zoology progressed satisfactorily. The geographical work was postponed until the beginning of the year, and was steadily prosecuted with success.

It was found that land does not exist in the latitudes assigned for certain areas, laid down by name, on some maps which have already been published. In the segment, where Knox Land lies, the ice-covered lands which Wilkes assigned to this region were found to exist. But from the plane, used by Sir Douglas Mawson's party in one of its flights, new land was sighted, roughly northwest of the juncture of the 66th parallel and the 127th meridian. This new land was charted as Banzare Land, after the title of the expedition itself. Other land sighted from the plane was named, in honor of Balleny's exploits in this region in 1839, Sabrina Land. A more definite location is given to this land, which has been variously located on former Antarctic charts.

West of the 116th meridian, ice land some 13,000 feet in altitude was discovered, and this land was given the name Bowman Ice Land. This was named for Isaiah Bowman, director of the American Geographical Society. Other land west of Queen Mary Land, named in honor of the Duchess of York, was called Princess Elizabeth Land. Many important scientific results were also achieved in the fields of magnetic, solar radiation, glaciology, ornithology and geography.

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

I don't ask advice any more.

Now I'll confess that this isn't easy. For I like to ask advice. Not that I intend to follow it. Far from it! But asking advice is, to me, one of the most pleasing diversions. By no other method can I so delightfully gratify my egotism. For when I ask advice, I also gratify the Other Fellow's egotism, and, in return, he's willing to let me hog the spotlight. Hence, Asking and Giving Advice has become one of our most popular indoor sports. And many a cozy hour have I spent telling all my symptoms to some flattered friend.

But I'm not doing it any more—FOR I'VE FOUND THAT ADVICE COMES TOO HIGH.

Even when you don't follow it—as you practically never do—it comes too high. For though it is theoretically free, there is always a heavy penalty to advice.

Every time you seek advice you do something to the Other Person—and something to Yourself. Something serious.

The Other Person may be a dear friend—even a member of your family. He may—it's dollars to doughnuts he will—welcome your S O S. He may give you willingly, gladly, almost too gladly of his vast store of wisdom. BUT THE MORE HE GIVES YOU OF HIS WISDOM, THE LESS HE THINKS OF YOURS.

He may love you more because you have sought him in your need, but in the secret depths of his heart, he'll respect you less. As he swells—and unless he's the Angel Gabriel, he WILL swell—you'll shrink. He'll never quite forget that, in this crisis, he knew more than you. And if he's human he'll broadcast that fact.

You change the Other Fellow's attitude toward you when you seek advice. And you also change your attitude toward him. If he becomes secretly condescending to you, you become secretly resentful toward him. It was fun telling all those harrowing details about yourself . . . taking on, for hours 'n' hours, about Exhibit A . . . BUT IT'S A PAIN IN THE NECK WHEN YOU REMEMBER IT NEXT MORNING. And, of course, you don't blame yourself. You blame him. You feel that, somehow, it's all his fault. He has taken advantage of you. He shouldn't have let you go on and on like that. Pretending to be your friend and letting you make such a fool of yourself! Always after that, whenever you meet him, you feel a secret grudge against him. You're sure he's remembering what you told him. Although the truth is he's probably worrying about where in heck he's going to raise the money to pay the next installment on his radio.

"It isn't so!" you declare indignantly. "I don't hold grudges against the friends who have given me advice and I'm POSITIVE they don't feel in that horrid cynical way toward me."

Well, don't get mad about it. Of course, there may be exceptions. And probably all your dear, kind, understanding, high-minded friends are exceptions. But, I tell you straight—most of mine AREN'T. That's why I'm looking wise these days AND CONSUMING MY OWN SMOKE.

(Copyright, 1931, King Features Synd., Inc.)

Many a true word is spoken when two women engage in a quarrel.

It is always possible to float a loan, but quite another matter to keep its head above water.

OH, THESE WOMEN

By Leola Allard

If you want some enlightenment as to which sex does the courting these days, go to the theater and watch the young couples around you—and some not so young—when the lights are low.

Last night I was completely surrounded by young couples and the one next to me was a lovely girl in a white satin evening gown. Her escort was a handsome, well-bred looking fellow, who sat upright and behaved faultlessly. There were love scenes on the stage, but even when there weren't, the girl ran her hand under his arm and squeezed him, and leaned close to him—not conspicuous to anyone who wasn't sitting as close as I was. His face looked a bit flushed, and he sat up straight, sometimes looking at her lovingly, but doing no open spooning for the benefit of bysitters. That part of it seemed to embarrass him, especially when he caught me looking. He was, I think, a tiny bit ashamed for her.

She had no shame. The lovely young thing leaned over to say something to him, once when the lights were low, and took pains to lean against him in a way that would have made an old-fashioned mother take her and a slipper straight out to the woodshed.

Back of me—and to one side—sat another couple. The girl used such a delicate perfume that I turned to see what SHE looked like. She was making love to her young man, who looked even more fussed than the first one. She had her hand on his knee and he was holding her finger, rather reluctantly it appeared to me, and she rolled her dreamy eyes at him, and leaned close, saying things that I'd bet a hat had nothing to do with the play.

I imagine it is spring to that girl in the middle of winter and, if she happens to see a man she wants, tries to outdo the Northwestern mounted. The strange thing is that they so often GET THEIR MEN. She made it a point to whisper to him and when he put his head down to listen, his face forward, she turned her face sidewise so that she could whisper (presumably), and then let her lips rest on his cheek. I couldn't have seen except that I was in front of them, turning around. I should have been reprimanded, but all the world loves lovers, and the fact that all the girls seem to be doing all the courting interested me.

On my left side, ladies and gentlemen, exhibit three! A girl in tailored clothes, with an extremely handsome youth. The boy had been brought up to believe that spooning shouldn't be done in the sunlight on the main street. That fact was written plainly on his theater attitude. Like the other two young men, he sat straight, dignified, looked ahead when the girl would permit, and submitted—not without being affected, I'll admit—to her love making.

I'd like to have had with me some of the people who have disputed my statement that WOMEN marry MEN. I've never said the men were not willing, but the women make them willing. Men are bashful. These men looked as if they were. It is the women, especially these days, who are bold and aggressive and determined and matrimonially successful.

The fact that there are fewer men in the world may have influenced their actions, their contact with business which has added to their self-assurance and determination to get what they want may have helped.

The fact is, women are wooing men, shamelessly and in public places. I can understand the man who said (I read it some place) that he was sick of women who try to please men and he would like to meet a woman who didn't care WHAT he wanted, or WHAT he thought.

The Nicaragua Canal

Doubly Needed Now.

MAP OF NICARAGUA, SHOWING LIMITED SIZE OF QUAKE AREA. THE NEAREST POINT ON THE PROPOSED NICARAGUA CANAL IS 60 MILES DISTANT FROM MANAGUA.

Much capital will be made out of the Managua, Nicaragua, earthquake by opponents of the proposed Nicaragua Canal.

The facts are, however, that the canal route is fully 60 miles from the earthquake center, and that the area through which it passes is less subject to seismic shocks than Panama.

Judging by past records, the Panama Canal is in more danger of interruption by quakes and resulting landslides than a Nicaragua canal would be.

Most of the Nicaragua route consists of the San Juan River and of Lake Nicaragua. A cut of a few miles will be necessary from the lake to the Pacific Ocean. But the chief recommendation of the route as a whole is that it will take advantage of natural waterways. From the days of the Spanish conquest to the present time there has been no earthquake in the region of sufficient strength to cause concern from an engineering point of view.

The Managua quake, indeed, is a powerful argument in favor of building the Nicaragua Canal. A similar quake is quite as likely to occur at Panama, and the United States would then be caught with only "one string to its bow"—AND THAT STRING BROKEN.

The United States needs two strings to its bow, and should see that it gets them. The warning it has just received is too plain to disregard.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, April 14.—In a pineapple toss of Times Square are a half hundred muscle schools catering chiefly to the hard-boiled but soft living Broadway crowd. Portals are studded with such names as: Health Institute, Physical Culture Studio, Athletic Auditorium. And one is a Salon de Vim.

The professors are largely of the old school that used to advertise themselves—bare-chested, swathed in a tiger skin and holding a cave man club aloft. Quite a number tour as strong men in the summer and conduct classes in the winter.

Some of the visitors are iron workers, clubmen, taxi drivers and even adagio dancers. But mostly the recruits are among those who live hard and dangerously along the dazzling path. They cannot do much with their minds so they try to keep pepped up physically.

Men who imbibe heavily of speakeasy varnish, all night poker and dice players, confidence boys, race track touts and such are regular patrons. The pasty faced gangster drops in to toss the medicine ball in the effort to give sagging muscles a little bulge.

Any number of those sleek boys who pop into the chop houses at twilight looking so fresh and vigorous have just come from a muscle jousting at one of the sundry little gyms. In other days they used to "steam out" in a Turkish bath.

But a Turkish bath a day is a trifle too depleting and they have found massages stimulate an appetite and give them a temporary red-corpuscled flush. There are also several institutions catering especially to wild ladies who go the pace.

If anyone thinks these ladies cannot pack a punch despite their semi-dissolute lives, just sit around the night clubs some early morning. They usually whirl into action when the crowd leaves. And their victims are often carried out feet up.

Maids in the ladies' room of night clubs on Broadway keep foot bowls for customers who peel off their stockings, soak their tootsies and slip on dancing slippers to dance bare-legged, the hussies.

In this connection someone tells me Ann Pennington started the stockingless fad.

A Shadchen holds forth in an office building at Broadway and 42d street. He is a benign Jewish patriarch who derives his calling from the decree in the Talmud, "Blessed is he who finds his mate through the wisdom of an intermediary." The Shadchen introduces persons of the opposite sex for the honorable purpose of marriage—for a fee. They are numerous in the Ghetto.

* * *

In my life I have unofficially served as a Shadchen for four couples. That is through my introductions, they met, fell in love and married. All, so far as I know, have lived happily ever after and have several times expressed their gratitude. This little puff might develop into something in case anything happens to the columning business. I have a robe and can sprout a beard in three weeks. The Great Oom!

* * *

Another house robe hound, incidentally, is Paul Whiteman. In prowling around an avenue haberdashery the other day I ran across one of his late creations in process of making. It is apricot colored with shawl lapels of deep pink. And there are sandals for the bum in the two shades.

When I recognized the Whiteman monogram the clerk confessed it belonged to the famed conductor. He explained it could not be finished until Paul returned for another fitting. And right there I shucked off a dandy. "Just try it on over the back end of a hack," I screamed.

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

Successful men are busy men, yet, if they so desired, they could find time to give valuable advice to young men who would like to consult them.

It is difficult for a young man to procure the necessary personal information of those whose careers are known to be successful.

Business college and courses in business administration are fine, but often an interview with practical business men could become the little cornerstone around which a business might be built.

This business man could select the one thing he thought essential to the individual interviewing him, and hammer it home.

If heads of firms employing young men would give an hour or two of their time each week to advising young fellows in their establishments they would do a most important job.

Such talks should be free of bias on the part of employer.

If these talks are tinctured with personal interests the chief purpose of the counsel is lost.
